Questions arise over Wilson Township taxes

Three students from foreign countries are attending East Jordan High School this year. From left, they are Odd Hoel, Peter Caeg and Azusa Ishimi.

Foreign students broaden their horizons

EAST JORDAN - Snow, doctor bills, guns and people with blond hair aren't unusual things for us. But to three foreign students attending high school here this year, those are some of the most surprising things they've seen in the United States.

The students are Peter Caeg of the Philippines, Odd Hoel from Norway and Azusa Ishimi from Japan. They've been here since late last summer, and they will return to their homes sometime this coming summer.

Azusa, 17, is staying with the Gil Fox family. She spent her first few months with the Charles Mason family. She is here as part of the Rotary Club's international exchange program, and that program traditionally has students stay with two or three different families so they get a broad view of American life.

The East Jordan Rotary Club has been participating in the exchange program for at least 20 years, longtime club members say. Each year the club arranges homes for foreign students to stay in while they are in East Jordan - and also chooses East Jordan students to spend a year abroad. This year, Dan McKinnon is living in Sweden as part of the program.

Azusa says many people ask her the same question: "How do you like East Jordan?"

"I always say the same thing," she says. "I really like it here. And I love the snow."

Small town life is also a big change. Her home town of Osaka has 400,000 people.

Understanding people when she first arrived in the U.S. was quite difficult, Azusa said. She laughs about it now, but she said it was quite frustrating trying to decipher American slang and trying to get people not to talk so fast.

School here is easier, she said. "We have to take 13 or 14 subjects and we have to do much more homework in Japan," she said. Tests are much harder and many students stay up all night to study for them in her home country, she said.

Shooting a gun was the most unusual experience she's had here so far. Guns are illegal in Japan, and you'd be thrown in jail if you were caught with one, she said.

Another new experience was skiing. "I screamed all the way down the hill," she laughs.

Peter Caeg, 17, is staying with the James Patton family. He came to East Jordan under the Youth for Understanding program.

His home of Manila, the capital of the Philippines, has four million people. Thus, small town life is an adjustment. "It was kinda surprising," he said. "There's not much to do except drive around town or go to the movie or the disco once in awhile."

Still, he said, he is enjoying his stay here. "The scenery is quite different here," Peter said - and he doesn't just mean the lakes and the hills. Seeing blond people was his biggest surprise. Everyone in the Philippines has jet black hair, he pointed out. "It was quite a shock" to see so many blonds, he said.

Language hasn't been much of a problem for Peter, because English has been proclaimed the official language of his home country. Actually, the people of the Philippine Islands speak about 80 different dialects - and so one official language was chosen.

Odd (pronounced "Ode") Hoel is also a Youth For Understanding student. At 16, he is one of the youngest to participate in the exchange program. He is staying with the Bill Hanson family here.

It's difficult for anyone his age to be uprooted and move several thousand miles from home to a strange country. But a few things made it easier for Odd. First of all, he is from a small town in Norway - so East Jordan looks a lot like home to him. The weather is very similar and cross-country and downhill skiing are popular in both places.

He speaks English quite fluently because he has been learning it in schools since the fourth grade. His language and his understanding of our country were both helped last year when his family in Norway hosted an exchange student from California.

School is much different in the U.S., though. "Here, they have the same classes every day," he said. "In Norway, we have 14 different classes during the week - and in different order every day. It's a little more exciting that way."

One thing he doesn't like about America is paying doctor bills. Sweden is a more socialistic country, and health care is provided for everyone at no cost.

In April, Odd's mother will be coming to East Jordan to visit him.

Davis: 'EJ needs health corps help'

BY JIM BAUMANN

EAST JORDAN - Congressman Bob Davis has written the U.S. Public Health Service to question its decision not to help East Jordan get a doctor. The East Jordan Family Health Center board had asked the health service for a special designation which would allow them to recruit doctors from a special pool of public health service doctors.

Doctors in the Public Health Service Corps are required to work in medically under-served areas for a period of time in exchange for government financial aid while they were attending medical school.

While the health service has not issued a formal denial of the health center request, staff members have told center officials that the request would be denied because East Jordan is not far enough away from other medical service.

In his letter, Davis said it was "particularly difficult" to accept the health service decision because an area of Saginaw was recently designated as an under-served area. Davis noted that 150 doctors are listed in the yellow pages of the Saginaw telephone book.

He urged the U.S. health service to reconsider East Jordan's request due to distance to hospitals, weather, lack of public transportation and other factors.

East Jordan's denial was brought to Davis' attention last week when a letter writing campaign was started. Two health center board members circulated letters asking Davis to help, and they gathered 393 signatures in only four days. But Davis wrote the letter as soon as he heard that the letters were being written.

Neal Colburn, administrator of the East Jordan health center, said this week that the U.S. Health Service denial was particularly hard to accept because he had originally been told East Jordan would have no problems getting approval.

The health center's objective all along was to get two doctors for East Jordan, he said. "One reason we're delayed right now is that we were told the approval of a health corps doctor was imminent last September. Then they kept us up in the air until just a couple of weeks ago, when we were finally notified that we were denied. Otherwise, we would have been recruiting that entire time," Colburn said.

That, of course, became doubly discouraging news because it came shortly after the city's only doctor, Klaus Hergt, told the health center board he would be moving to Cheboygan June 1.

Local health center officials were looking for a doctor long before they knew Hergt was leaving because they wanted to make Hergt's job easier.

"A doctor practicing alone has a difficult time," Colburn said. "He is always on call, 24 hours a day. And there are a lot of things like hospital visits that have to be done daily - in addition to keeping office hours. If you have two doctors, they can spell each other."

And family practice doctors are hard to find anyway, Colburn pointed out. National trends show that doctors prefer to specialize and prefer to work near hospitals. (Dr. Hergt himself said the reason he is leaving East Jordan is so that he can devote more time to his specialized field of surgery. And Cheboygan, where he is moving, has a hospital.)

In starting to recruit a doctor, Colburn said he is discovering, "There are a great many more openings than there are family practice physicians."

But East Jordan's selling points are its "vacationland" location and the fact that it has a fully equipped and staffed office ready and waiting for a doctor.

With this in mind, Colburn is hoping the community won't have to wait too long to get a doctor. "I think there are enough people out there, but to find them on such short notice is difficult."

Something for nothing?

Long strike ends

BY JOE McELROY

Fear of sacrificing something for nothing ended the five month strike at Top O'Michigan Rural Electric Authority in Boyne City.

Company linemen and stakers, convinced they would be replaced if they stayed away from work, provided enough votes for a 35-18 vote to accept a contract offered by the management.

The company linemen had refused to work out of sympathy for the 25 office workers who went on strike October 19 because management refused to sign a union contract after the office workers voted to join the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers (IBEW). The same union represents the outside workers.

When the line workers' contract expired March 16, they voted down a new contract proposal from the company and voted to go on the picket lines with the office workers.

The company has replaced 24 of the 25 striking office workers and has refused to give them their jobs back. The company sent the linemen and stakers a letter warning that the same thing would happen to them if they stayed out on strike.

According to a press release issued by the company: "Upon expiration of a contract between the cooperative and the line workers last Friday, the cooperative had notified these employees that, as they were now officially on strike, the cooperative intended to exercise its legal right to find replacements for those who refused to return to work."

So the linemen, stakers and office workers, voting as one group, accepted the contract, even though 24 of the office workers were not rehired.

The settlement says the company must give first hiring priority to the former office workers if and when their new replacements leave the company. But until that attrition occurs, all of the office workers except rate technician Preston Schomp, who hadn't been replaced, are out of a job.

But while the striking office workers lost their jobs, the settlement marks the first time the company has signed a union contract with office workers.

"We lost the battle but we won the war," said Tom Schewe, who led the office workers. "The union is in the whole shop now. I don't look upon it as a complete defeat."

Schewe said the new workers will have to pay union dues because they are working in a union shop. An engineer's assistant with five years at Top O'Michigan, Schewe had mixed emotions about the strike settlement.

"I hate to be out of work," he said, "but striking is no fun. It's a matter of economics after a while. I don't know how much longer I could have lasted financially."

Schewe and other office workers said they understand the economic pressures that led the outside workers to accept the contract, even though it meant the office workers losing their jobs.

"They just got scared, I guess, so they decided to accept the contract," said Yvonne Hocquard, another strike leader. "I hated to see it end this way."

According to Schewe, "Some of the older guys (among the outside workers) figured they couldn't afford to lose so much. That's what turned the tide."

The outside workers all will receive eight percent increases each year for the next three years. Journeymen linemen are now paid $8.39 an hour, up from $7.77.

But the contract also calls for lower salaries for some office positions. Mrs. Hocquard, an accounting worker who started with the co-op in 1944, says she would have to take a 50 cent per hour pay cut if she returned to her former job.

Even though they have their jobs back with pay raises, some linemen say they aren't happy with the way the strike ended. "It leaves a bad taste in your mouth that everybody didn't get to go back," said Larry Piper, a lineman.

"I don't think anybody let anybody else down. It was the lesser of two evils. It was probably the hardest decision these people have ever made."

"It's an awful position to be in," Piper said. But he said the outside workers were afraid that if they stayed on strike everybody would lose their jobs with nothing accomplished.

"We had a choice to make," he said, "between putting 40 people back to work or putting another 40 people out of work."

"In a sense, it was a sacrifice. It was one hell of a hard decision and there were a lot of mixed emotions."

Recall petition drive continues

The organizers of a recall movement against the Top O'Michigan Rural Electric Company Board of Directors say they will pursue the recall that started during the office workers' strike.

"We're planning on pursuing what has been done," said Bruce Sanderson of Ironton. "We feel we have an obligation to carry through on it."

The recall was started by Sanderson and other co-op members unhappy with company management, especially its handling of the strike. Sanderson said 4,450 customers signed recall petitions, which are presently being validated by the company.

Commercial redevelopment

Tax Breaks raise questions

EAST JORDAN - The questions of which city businesses might be eligible for "commercial redevelopment" tax breaks was raised at Tuesday's city council meeting.

Chamber of Commerce board member Duane Chappuis asked the council to consider establishing such a district. He presented a map outlining proposed areas.

If the city establishes a commercial redevelopment district, business owners who meet certain requirements when they improve their facilities would be able to have their tax assessments frozen for 12 years. According to a 1978 state law, the assessments would be frozen at the value of the property for the year preceding the improvement.

New or replacement facilities within the district would get 50 percent tax breaks for the same 12 year period. But questions arose when Chappuis presented the map of areas the Chamber would like to have included in the redevelopment district. Virtually every parcel of commercial property in the city was included.

Council members did not express disapproval of the idea of giving tax breaks, but they were unsure of how to apply the new state law to East Jordan's circumstances.

As a result, the matter was referred to city attorney Roy Hayes for clarification.

Questions arose over what areas would qualify under the redevelopment act. The Chamber of Commerce proposal includes some land, such as the site of a new Glen's Market, which has only recently been rezoned for commercial use.

As City Clerk-Treasurer Fern Morris said, "According to this map, Glen's Market might be able to get a tax break.

But in reading the law, I don't see where they would fit in."

While the intent of the act is to encourage redevelopment of existing obsolete or blighted commercial areas, Glen's proposed new location would represent a move from the existing downtown business district to a previously undeveloped area on M-66 near the edge of town.

Since the undeveloped area was rezoned from residential to commercial specifically at Glen's request, it may not qualify as "redevelopment." If this is the case, then Glen's would not be eligible for the tax break if it carried out its plans to move away from the downtown. (Construction of the new store was scheduled to start this spring.)

Further interpretation of the redevelopment act will be provided by Hayes at a future council meeting.

Sign up soon for school board

If you're thinking about serving your community as a school board member, now is the time for action. To run for a school board seat you must turn in a nominating petition.

Petitions must be turned in to school administration offices by 4 p.m. Monday, April 9. Petitions can also be picked up at the administration offices.

School board seats are open in Boyne City, East Jordan and Boyne Falls. East Jordan will have the busiest election June 11 when four seats will be up for election.

The election will result in at least one new board member, since long-time incumbent Bruce Malpass says he won't run again. The seat Malpass is vacating is for a four-year term, as is the seat presently held by Herb Griffin, who says he hasn't decided yet whether he will run again.

Tom Galmore, recently appointed to the board, says he may run for a three year term, but hasn't completely reached a final decision. Ed Drenth, another incumbent, says he will probably run for the one-year vacancy.

Two seats on the Boyne City Board of Education are open. Both are four-year terms. One incumbent, Dr. Tom Neumann, says he'll run again. The other, Ray Towne, says he hasn't decided yet whether he'll run.

Two seats are also open on the Boyne Falls Board of Education. They are both for four years and presently are held by Jeanette Sevenski and Louis Matelski. Mrs. Sevenski does not plan to run again.

Proposed city commission

Trying to keep our history alive

BOYNE CITY - It's easier to know where you are if you realize where you've been. That's what interests people in history, and that interest has led to a proposal to create an official Boyne City Historical Commission as part of the city's government.

"You can't replace history," says Gail Toffolo, one of the organizers. "Once it's gone, it's gone forever."

"You can't go back in time, but you can learn from the past." Such sentiments led to the establishment of the Boyne City Historical Society in 1976, when interest in history was high because of the country's Bicentennial. It's a semi-formal, somewhat social group of 16 people with a common interest in local history.

But a recent discussion between historical society members and City Manager Tim Clifton led to the proposal to establish a more permanent, formal group.

"The historical society might fall apart someday," says Mrs. Toffolo, its president. "But that will never happen with the commission since it will be part of the city."

The proposal must be approved by the City Commission, which is scheduled to vote on the issue next month. If approved, as expected, it will be structured in the same fashion as other commissions, such as the Parks and Recreation and Planning Commissions. The hope is that the new group would complement the historical society, not replace it.

The five commission members, who would be appointed by the City Commission, would have to meet at least four times a year. One of their first projects might be a time capsule for the new city hall.

Eula Martin, a member of the historical society, has written up a list of suggestions for the capsule. It includes essays on what Boyne City will be like in the future, maps of the city, a present day phone book and copies of The Charlevoix County Press.

No final plans have been set. "We would have to look at ourselves and ask, 'What's really special about the town today?'" Mrs. Toffolo says.

Mrs. Toffolo said people would be more likely to donate old photographs, documents and other historical records if an official commission were established.

"It gives more credibility to anything having to do with history," she said. "Any donation will always be looked after since it will be part of the city government."

"It gives history here some clout." City Manager Clifton said many other cities started similar groups during the Bicentennial. "Cities found them useful so they have kept them going," he said.

"They can look at the historical significance of any future action the city might take," he said. This could include providing information on whether a local building slated for demolition has special historic importance making it worth saving.

The historical commission could also help the city get grant money for items such as history books for the library, Clifton said.

"The money is there," he said. "People just have to follow the right procedures to get it."

Board of Review will not meet again

WILSON TOWNSHIP - Should the Wilson Township Board of Review meet again to hear protests from residents who didn't get their tax assessments until Tuesday, March 13, the last day the Board of Review met?

"We're tired of all the complaints we're getting because assessors aren't doing their jobs," Equalization Department Director Joan Blanchard told the county commission last week.

She said her office has had many complaints from Wilson Township residents who say the late mailing didn't give them a chance to protest higher assessments.

County Prosecutor Scott Beatty says state law mandates tax notices must be sent out at least 10 days before the board of review meets. The board of review listens to property owners who think their taxes are too high and has the power to lower assessments.

Wilson Township Supervisor Harvey Crozier said he doesn't plan on having another board of review meeting.

"I just don't feel it's necessary. It wouldn't solve a thing," Crozier said. "It would cost the township money and we would sit over there and tell people, 'Sorry, we can't help you.'"

Crozier said a board of review meeting would be futile because higher property values raised everybody's assessments. "It's an across the board increase," he said.

Crozier said he doesn't know why the township's assessor, Ivan Parsons, mailed out the assessments late. But he said residents can't protest the tardy notices by refusing to pay their taxes. "This doesn't nullify your taxes," he said. "You have to pay taxes regardless." County Prosecutor Beatty agreed, saying the next step in the protest process would be the state Tax Tribunal in Lansing.

Beatty said he hasn't become officially involved because there are no criminal penalties for sending out tax notices late, and he only handles criminal prosecutions.

But Beatty added, "I'm looking into it because I don't think it's right. It's essentially a political issue. What they (township residents) should do is get ahold of their elected officials and demand the board of review reconvene."

Protestors at board meetings usually have a better chance of getting their taxes lowered if they have supporting evidences, such as testimony from realtors or lower, independent assessments.

One township resident whose assessment went up $3,000 said he didn't have enough time to organize a protest. "We were going to go to the board of review," he said, "but I didn't realize it was over."

But Crozier said the assessment hikes were justified and uniform. He said agricultural land went up 23 percent, while residential property went up 13 percent and timber land went up 33 percent. He said if assessments had not been raised, the county's Equalization Department would have made up the difference by putting a factor on all township property.

Crozier doesn't deny that high taxes are a problem, but says it's caused by an active real estate market raising prices. "It's getting more valuable for the person who wants to sell it," he said.

"But what about the poor devil who just wants to live here?"

No progress in strike

No progress has been reported in the strike at Courter, Inc., which began February 19.

The company and union, which represents over 300 employees, met February 8 but didn't make any progress, according to union leader Zeke Bronson.

He said the company repeated its original proposal calling for the elimination of automatic cost-of-living increases, one of the main issues that started the strike.

"As long as they're going to be arbitrary, we can't change our position," Bronson said.

"No further negotiations are scheduled. It's their move," he said.

Thomas Neff, a company spokesman, said Courter's salary offer is for a three-year contract with increases near the top of President Carter's suggested wage limit of seven percent a year.

The money could be re-arranged so that the workers could receive more than seven percent the first year, he said. "The guidelines don't call for cost of living increases," he said.

Best decision may be the tough one

No, it's not easy. Yes, it is worthwhile.

When East Jordan school officials decided last summer to provide space in the middle school for an emotionally quite a handful, even though there are only six of them. There has been at least one occasion, according to school officials, when an EI student has caused problems for other students.

It might be tempting to simply abandon the program. That would be the easy way out. But the easy way isn't always the best way. We hope East Jordan keeps the program.

Public schools are for all our children, not just the most pleasant ones. There are many exceptions, but usually the children who do best in school and cause the fewest problems are the ones who came from the most advantageous backgrounds.

Other children aren't so fortunate, and that often causes problems. In an ideal world, our schools could concentrate solely on education and never have to worry about behavior problems.

But this isn't a perfect world. So an important part of the educator's mission is helping children learn how to conduct themselves. As future members of the work force and adult members of society, they must learn proper interpersonal skills as well as academic ones.

Education is for all our children. Our local schools have proven in the past they are good enough to help students deal with special situations. Title One deals with learning problems, and special education helps the handicapped, retarded and the gifted.

Even though it's much harder to feel sympathy for a child with a behavior problem than one in a wheelchair, they both have a handicap which schools must face.

What are the alternatives to the emotionally impaired class? The students could be put back in regular classrooms, where they probably would disrupt the education process for many other children who are trying to learn. That's not fair.

Another alternative is expulsion. If a child can't behave in school, there are established procedures that can lead to him being removed from the system. Out of sight, out of mind.

But this solution, while attractive at first glance, has some hidden pitfalls. If a minor can't stay in public schools, he will probably end up in some sort of public institution. Here he meets other young people with serious behavior problems and gets his bad habits reinforced.

If a person learns bad social habits instead of practical skills in his youth, there is a good chance he will end up in our already over-crowded criminal justice system. The process is sad and very expensive for taxpayers.

A better solution is to nip problems in the bud. One fault of the emotionally impaired program is that it's designed for middle school children who have had problems for years, problems so ingrained in their personalities that it's difficult for them to change. It's too bad the program doesn't begin at the elementary level.

Difficult, but not impossible. School officials who want to see more discipline in the class are probably right. If the class can be controlled better, there is a greater chance that it can remain a part of the school system in East Jordan. The funding for the class instruction comes from the Char-Em Intermediate School District, so taxpayers aren't assuming an extra burden by having the class in East Jordan.

Whatever the future holds for the program, East Jordan school officials deserve a great deal of credit for assuming a difficult challenge. The students in the class come from several different towns, so East Jordan is performing a service for the entire county. We should all appreciate it.

impaired (EI) classroom, they knew it would be a challenge.

But it's proved to be even more of a challenge than expected. The students, placed in the class because of serious discipline problems, have proven to be

Sunbelt faces special problems

Last month in Orlando, Florida, I happened to run into three area residents who believe property in the booming "Orlando-land" of central Florida will attract Michigan buyers.

Anyone who knows anything about Northern Michigan winters and Florida sunshine can't be surprised at the notion of someone trying to make a buck in real estate with such an idea.

During last month's deep freeze weather, I recall a local wag saying to me that half of Charlevoix County was in Florida and the other half wishes it was. Thus, there are a large number of potential buyers in our area who dream of spending at least several months of the year in the warm Florida sunshine.

"Orlando-land," with its many man-made attractions to accompany the winter sunshine, is a prime location for real estate investment by snowbirds from the north. Such part-time residents, retirees, visitors and tourists help fuel the economy of central Florida and make it attractive for anyone in the real estate business.

My last day in Orlando, the temperature was in the high 70's - a perfect Northern Michigan summer day. A few hours later when I arrived at the Pellston airport, the temperature was 20 degrees below zero.

You'd expect me, therefore, to sign the praises of Orlando-land in winter. Not so!

PARADISE COST

My last three hours in Orlando was spent listening to the "other side" of the Florida paradise story from a variety of public officials deeply concerned about the problems caused by those people without money who like the warm sunshine, too.

In Orlando, they call these people "transients." And that word, despite what the dictionary says, didn't mean visitors like me on business.

Even though I didn't bother going to Disney World, Sea World, Cypress Gardens, Busch Gardens, Circus World, or any of the many other man-made attractions in the area, I did have the money to stay in a downtown hotel across from beautiful Lake Eola Park, eat at nice restaurants and sample the nightlife. Thus, I was a tourist, not a transient.

I'm welcome, so-called transients are not. But the area's public officials are virtually powerless to prevent tens of thousands of transients from coming in each year and mingling with the tourists on the main streets. For most Orlando-land residents, a transient means "bum." But, public officials say bums are just one part of the transient problems. In addition to bums - primarily single men without education or marketable job skills - there are destitute families whose household heads sincerely wish work; sick and mentally disturbed people who have wandered down to the sunshine somehow and do not want to wander further; and unskilled laborers who come to Orlando with their last dollars seeking work in an apparent boomtown only to find jobs are scarce.

In the weeks prior to my visit, Orlando had been hit with some uncharacteristic cold weather. The transients who usually spend their nights in the parks, in doorways of downtown businesses and in alleys, were forced to seek shelter during this time. Many apparently chose to sleep in dumpsters filled with trash and garbage in attempting to keep warm. Two at least were killed when the trash was picked up the next morning and then crushed inside of huge garbage trucks. The problem, long festering, had come dramatically to a head.

The Chief of Police appointed a citizens task force to study the problem and to offer possible solutions. It was this task force that I heard at its first public meeting last month.

TURN-OFF

A major part of the problem for Orlando is the impact of transients on the tourist-based economy. Who wants to shop in local stores when the doorways are filled with drunk, unconscious or panhandling bums? Another part of the problem is the impact on many of the area's older residents who fled the north for peace, quiet and warmth in Florida when their working days were over.

A friend of mine is a native of Detroit and her mother has lived in Orlando for more than 10 years. Today, she is terrified - along with many others - by the visible presence of ill-kempt, desperate-looking (if not acting) individuals who might - as happened to a neighbor - walk into your house looking for a place to sit, something to drink and eat.

According to Paul Rowell, Orlando's prosecutor who heads up the task force, the problem is not especially a crime problem. He notes that the bums are usually victims of crime, not instigators. However, the only way until now to deal with the problem has been through the criminal justice system.

During the community forum that I attended, police officers testified to their frustration in coping with the problem of transients.

Arrest a bum for trespassing and he's out of jail in a short amount of time, probably drunk again in hours and soon sleeping in a store doorway - where the police found him in the first place. Pick up a drunk, take him to a detoxification center, "dry him out," and then let him out - without money, without a steady job - to be picked up again shortly. According to one police officer, "we're just moving them around from one place to another."

As the testimony was offered by task force members and others, it was apparent that Orlando - and the "Sunbelt" generally - has a major problem - one that's never going to be mentioned in the promotional brochures that herald the joys of Florida living or visiting. And no one - not social service agencies, the Salvation Army, the state labor pool, a variety of Christian organizations that help the needy - offered much in the way of solutions at the forum.

The appointment of the task force - by the police chief of all persons, not the city council or the Chamber of Commerce - just to study the problem was not greeted with enthusiasm because many businesses believe to tell the world there is a problem would hurt tourism. Still, two dead bums isn't good public relations either.

Even among well-meaning church representatives, there was a hot debate as to how to aid those transients already in the area. At the forum, charges were hurled back and forth that one or the other wasn't doing enough for the transients who didn't have enough to eat, decent clothes to wear, a job, or adequate housing.

There was one emotional statement by a man calling himself a "Christian" who charged that the churches of Orlando kept their doors closed to the many unfortunate while he struggled to care for a few of these people in a small facility he operated.

Nevertheless, the amount of care being provided by church-related organizations staggered me. The Salvation Army fed 67,000 people in 1978; The Daily Bread, a Christian Service Center operation, fed 50,000 more. And there are still more groups providing similar services.

According to the Salvation Army spokesperson, the agency opens its dormitory of 100 beds each afternoon and 30 minutes later it is full. Many of those who do not get in just sleep on the sidewalk outside.

This sparked a discussion on the feasibility of providing a building that could be used as a dormitory for the homeless and poor. Funding it was suggested, could come from the area's charitable organizations and churches. In such a facility, the transients could receive meals, medication and job counseling as well as shelter. One quick response to this possible solution was that if Orlando provided decent facilities for the transients, the area could expect to be overrun by desperate people seeking help.

Only summer can save him!

It was neither winter nor summer, a sort of a blah day with spring trying to fight its way into balmy weather - that time of year when a person must think up things to introduce spice and excitement while waiting for some city-wide controversy to rear its head and engage us all in fresh buzzings.

So I went into a local pub to get a drink of water and perhaps catch some fresh ideas that might spice up a drab day. The sign on the wall read: Please do not stand while room is in motion. Someone was allowing as how Boyne City could not afford more than one town drunkard, one atheist, and only a few Republicans. Nothing exciting. So I went down to get a haircut.

The man waiting next to me had been promoted to head his company. "Now that I've worked my way up to being the boss," he said, "it bothers me to see those workers leaving at five o'clock. I know how they stop for cocktails and boast about the important work they're doing at the office. It makes me wish for the good old days when I, too, was a big shot."

From there I wandered over to the

Marshall Sayles

Granary to pick up whatever news was on tap. A woman at the bar was in good voice. She was complaining to her friend about someone. "He's neither married nor single," she said. "Just frustrated."

Later, at the gas station, I watched a young fellow fill my tank with John D. Rockefeller at 80 cents per gallon. A non-customer was standing around, reacting from an overdose of idleness.

The man was complaining about his wife. "She told me to go to hell this morning," he said. "And that made me mad. Whenever I do something nice for her, she never tells me to go plumb to heaven. I never could understand women."

From the station to the book store to pick up the Detroit News, a factory picket stopped me on the street to say that the strike would be over within a few days. "We've gone over management's head," he said, "and taken our problem directly to the Lord."

Heading for the restaurant, where I would pay 35 cents to out-manuever a caffeine fix, a man was urging a woman to fill out a questionnaire. "You don't have to sign your name," he was saying.

"You can remain anonymous."

"Remain anonymous!" she said. "I can't go around Boyne City remaining anonymous. What would people think?"

Drinking my coffee and reading the paper and saying nothing to anyone, a couple of men began staring at me. "That guy looks intelligent," one of them said, "but actually he's kind of nuts."

"Not necessarily," his buddy said. "Even a fool is smart when he keeps his mouth shut."

And I got to thinking. Only a buffoon would wander around town looking for some excitement on a dull, drab, dank, first day of spring.

Suddenly that little poem worked its way into my head and I began mumbling.

See the happy moron,
He doesn't give a damn.
I wish I were a moron,
My God, perhaps I am!

Snowstorm in city: Every man for himself

Whenever there's especially bad weather up here, such as last February's monster blizzard, people go to special effort to help each other out. It's the same kind of helpfulness that allows Imagine what Boyne City would be like if the city had done no snow removal on side streets during January. Now add about 100 times the traffic, think of the mess you would have and you'll understand what winter was like in the big city.

Actually, my old neighborhood wasn't too bad. Politically well-connected neighbors apparently saved the day. But then we made a trip over to Grandmother's House. We did not take a one-horse sleigh.

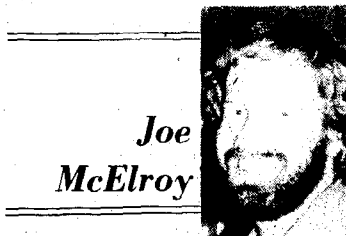

When we entered her neighborhood, we saw chairs, chairs, everywhere. At first I thought there had been a fire. But then it became clear the chairs were being used as barricades to mark off parking spaces which people had dug out along the street.

Carving out a space was so much effort that people put up barricades so nobody would take their space while they were gone. And you didn't mess with them if you knew what was good for you.

My cousin had come over earlier to take my grandmother shopping. She had the nerve to briefly park in somebody's marked off space while my grandmother got ready to go. When they got back to the car, there on the windshield was a threatening note warning her not to park there again.

It could have been worse. Legend has it that one fellow returned to his car to find it had been covered with snow and then sprayed with water. Nothing that several hours with a snow pick and chisel wouldn't solve.

These things really happen. Thank you to everybody who helps push people out of snow banks when they get stuck.

Get facts straight

Editor,
I would like to comment on your article entitled "How Boyne Got Its Name" that appeared in the March 15th edition of your paper. My first comment is on the caption under the picture of John Miller. Reading this makes your readers assume that John Miller was responsible for naming our community. This is a false assumption. The credit for naming our community should be given to George Beardsley, who platted a town in 1876 that he called the "Village of Boyne."

Another inaccurate statement appears in the first paragraph in the fourth line. This statement leaves the impression that Oswegotchie is a town in New York. To read correctly, it should appear Oswegotchie Township, St. Lawrence County, New York.

Finally there is another error in the fifth paragraph in the first line. This statement reads that John Miller was the first settler, but facts have it that Rueben T. Nichols is responsible for being the first settler in the area. It should appear that John Miller was the first permanent settler.

Debbie Olds

Editor's note: The above is one of five similar letters The Press received from Robert Morgridge's Middle School class in Boyne City History. The newspaper story was based on information from the Rotary Quintennial, published in 1965, and "An Early History and Centennial Program," compiled by Anna Dietze.

Miss Olds is correct regarding the photo caption. As the story said, John Miller only named the river. The Press regrets the error.

People at work

Everyone loves what Betty cooks

BY KAY SEVERINSEN

A visitor to The Depot Restaurant in Boyne City asks the waitress if manager Betty Kelts is around.

"Yes," the waitress says, "but she can't talk now. She's experimenting." The experiment turns out to be cream of broccoli soup.

"It turned out really great," said Betty, sounding rather surprised. "I didn't have any kind of recipe for that."

In fact, Betty has been cooking in area restaurants for at least 30 years. She says she almost never uses a recipe. One exception is her famous carrot cake. She can rattle off the recipe in less than a minute.

"But most of the time I just taste things until they come out right," she admits. "If it doesn't taste good to me I won't serve it."

Her high standards have earned her a well-deserved local reputation for good home cooking. Homemade cream pies and soups are her specialties.

"People just sort of follow me around," she says. "I don't mean that in a bragging way, but I know a lot of people and they come where I am."

Betty began her restaurant career almost at birth, she says. Her parents, Vellie and Lizzie Fox, owned the Red Fox Inn in Horton Bay. She grew up in the restaurant atmosphere, learned to cook from her mother, and began waitressing at the age of 14.

"The restaurant was considered way too expensive in those days (the 1940's)," she recalls. "We had family style chicken, steak and fish for about $4.50. It was definitely for the resorters. But it was packed all summer."

Winters the restaurant closed, and Betty worked in restaurants at the Dilworth Hotel or out at Boyne Mountain. In the meantime, she had five children.

Then in 1962, a friend talked her into buying a Boyne City restaurant, which she named Betty's. She quickly drew a following.

"It was real popular with the kids, they'd come in after the games or after school," she says. "On Friday or Saturday nights, you couldn't even get in. But I want you to put in there that a lot of my success is due to my fine help, good people who stick by me."

Eight years ago, when she discovered she was pregnant with her sixth child, she sold the restaurant. "I had no intentions of selling at all, but there was someone really interested in buying. And besides, I was busy all the time. I'd no sooner get home and they'd be calling me about something."

But so formidable was her reputation as a cook, that the new owners made her sign a clause agreeing not to own a restaurant in town for five years.

"I enjoyed being off, although I worked part time at Robert's and at the Dilworth, but after my husband died and my son went to kindergarten I was bored."

So when The Depot owners asked her to manage the new restaurant several years ago, she accepted the challenge.

And, since the restaurant opened, each one of her children, except the youngest, has worked there also.

"My son Jerry brought back several recipes from California," she says. "The tuna chez, the BVR and the Monte Cristo sandwiches are from California."

And now, without further ado, Betty offers her carrot cake recipe. (Her homemade pie recipes, she says, are family secrets.)

Florida

Interestingly enough, no one suggested that the city, county, state or Chamber of Commerce pay for such a facility.

According to Police Sgt. Paul Rumbley who carried out a department study of the problem, the only cities in the Sunbelt that had successfully handled the problem of transients were those who strictly -- and harshly -- enforced public drunk and vagrancy laws, filling jails and scaring off others in the same circumstances. Today in Florida, public drunk laws are not legal and the vagrancy laws have been ruled unconstitutional.

One police officer who had special responsibility for dealing with the transient problem in downtown Orlando said if police were to cope they needed a law broad enough to stop people from "being crazy in public." Many of the people he comes in contact with are mentally retarded, alcoholic, epileptic, and so on.

Not a pretty picture of that paradise in the sun, is it?

MIXED BLESSINGS

There I was in beautiful Lake Eola Park; the warm afternoon sun turning my face red, the breeze off the lake blowing softly, the seagulls racing to and fro, the Azaleas blooming directly behind the speaker's platform. And I was listening in that beautiful spot to a horror story being told by responsible and concerned men and women of Orlando who, at that moment, didn't have a clue as to how to resolve their dilemma -- a dilemma caused by geography and a good national promotional effort that sells "paradise" to the frigid northern U. S.

A few hours later I would enter an "icebox" in the frigid north, but it didn't seem like a bad alternative to sunshine anymore.

As I noticed several of Orlando's infamous transients move toward the left-over forum refreshments at the meeting broke up, I was reminded that there are no paradises in human society. Even where there's a will -- and cooperative weather -- there's not always a way.

No matter how humane and just we try to make society through the various public and private agencies we create at the local, state and national levels, there will always be human problems -- even in America's new frontier, the Sunbelt.

So, don't feel badly if you can't vacation or buy your dream home in paradise; you might, as a result, avoid coping with a major problem that doesn't end with the annual spring thaws.

Betty Kelts prepares another taste treat at the Depot Restaurant in Boyne City. See story on her for her famous Carrot Cake recipe.

School play

These East Jordan Middle School students are the stars of a play which will be performed for elementary and middle students Friday. They've been rehearsing for more than two months to perform "The Prince Who Wouldn't Talk." Director of the play is Jamie Baumann. A middle school talent show is also planned for later in the day. Stars of the play include, from left, Kathy Barnes, Jay Peck, Belinda Sutton, Gary Coolman, Danielle Baker, Shelly Cihak and Keith Matheny. In front is narrator Lisa Stanek.

Cable TV

More channels, higher rates

Cable TV rates will go up in April for residents of East Jordan, Boyne City and Charlevoix -- but two more channels are being added to soften the blow.

Lake Charlevoix Cable TV Co. is raising its basic rates from $6.85 to $7.60 per month. A letter to subscribers explains that the increase is needed to offset increased operating costs, continue to upgrade the quality of our product and expand existing services."

Senior citizens can get a $1 per month discount. They must go to the company's office in Charlevoix to sign an affidavit stating that they are 62 years of age or older and that their household income is under $10,000 per year.

Starting March 15, subscribers will be able to watch a new Madison Square Garden channel, featuring live sports events. Also slated to be added is Windsor Channel 9.

Starting April 1, "Home Box Office" service will be available on another new channel. A fee of $8.95 per month brings the subscriber feature films, sporting events and nightclub entertainment "uncut with no commercial interruptions."

April 6th

EJ schools plan family fun night

EAST JORDAN - The elementary and middle schools here are going all out to plan an enormous Family Fun Night for Friday, April 6.

The students and staff are planning so many activities that the Fun Night will be spread out over two gymnasiums, the library and the cafeteria. It's all being done to raise money for a video tape machine and recorder which will be shared by the elementary and middle schools.

The video machine can be used to film educational projects and television shows for later viewing. It will also be able to play a large supply of video tapes now being purchased by the Char-Em Intermediate School District.

The video machine will cost $2,400, and the students hope to raise at least $1,800 from the Family Fun Night. They hope to raise another $600 by collecting Glen's grocery receipts.

Activities planned for the Fun Night include a supper in the cafeteria, carnival games, a book fair in the media center, cakewalk, jail, and door prizes of a bicycle and a large stuffed dinosaur.

Family movie planned

EAST JORDAN - The movie "Guys and Dolls" will be shown at 7 p.m. Friday at East Jordan High School.

The romantic comedy is part of a series of family movies sponsored by the city Recreation Department and the school Community Education Department.

The movie stars Marlon Brando, Jean Simmons, Frank Sinatra and Vivian Blaine.

Admission is $1.25 for adults and 75 cents for senior citizens and students. The film will be shown in the high school auditorium.

WHERE THE GOOD TIMES JUST KEEP ROLLING ALONG

Here's what's cooking

Thatsa tasty meal!

Everyone likes Italian food. At least I don't know anyone who doesn't like some type of it. And like American food, Italian cuisine varies from north to south.

Pasta, however is served with every meal except breakfast, in one way or another.

It comes in all shapes, sizes and colors and can be stuffed, baked, boiled, smothered in sauce, served plain, can be a main course, appetizer, an accompaniment to a meal -- Italians love their pasta and so do I!

Believe it or not, making your own pasta (noodles) is very easy and takes only a few minutes to prepare.

Since Pasta has a bland flavor, it's a perfect base for highly seasoned sauces.

about 3/4 to 1 cup finely chopped cooked spinach and work into dough, proceeding the same way you would with the above recipe.

A very quick sauce for pasta is one that is "cooked" by mixing it with the hot pasta. And you can add anything you want to the basic sauce.

SPAGHETTI ALLA

INGREDIENTS

4-5 slices bacon, chopped
2 eggs, beaten
3 tablespoons of butter
1/2 cup heavy cream

1/2 cup freshly grated parmesan cheese
Any of the following can be used:
1/2 cup diced ham, sauted
1 cup sliced mushrooms, sauted
2 tablespoons fresh chopped parsley
1 can drained minced clams

DIRECTIONS:

While spaghetti is cooking, fry bacon in a large skillet until crisp. Pour off most of the fat, add any of the above optional ingredients along with the cream, salt and pepper. Simmer slowly.

When spaghetti is ready, add beaten eggs to cream mixture, stirring quickly, until thick. Pour mixture over spaghetti, toss well, sprinkle with parmesan cheese and serve immediately.

For lasagna noodles, don't roll the dough as thin, and cut into large rectangles.

The noodles can be dried at room temperature for about an hour before cooking or stored in the refrigerator until ready to use.

To cook, drop into boiling salted water and cook rapidly for 5-10 minutes, depending upon thickness. Drain, then serve with your favorite sauce, tossed with butter, parmesan cheese, parsley or any combination you wish.

SURVEY QUESTION

What do you think about the idea of remodeling East Jordan's downtown stores with an old fashioned theme?

Here are some comments from people we called:

It would be nice, because I'm old fashioned and would like to see my town the same.

It is an excellent idea. It would sure give this town a boost it desperately needs. Also it would make our younger folks proud of the city and maybe then they would feel better about themselves.

I'd like the idea if it were an old western look.

I think it's old fashioned enough now. We need a modern look.

Anything would be an improvement.

People are getting more tuned into the old fashioned way than the modern.

I think it's just another reason to drag their feet longer, and the town will probably still look the same in another 10 years.

It would be better if they just tore down the whole town and put in one big shopping mall.

As long as it doesn't look fake like Gaylord.

Maybe if we modernized the outside of the stores and then put new merchandise inside we wouldn't have to go to Petoskey to shop.

Next week's survey question: Do you think sex education should be taught in our schools - as long as it is not a required course?

FREE CONTOUR ANALYSIS EXAMINATION FOR VICTIMS OF CHRONIC OR ACUTE PAIN

The International Pain Control Institute in conjunction with New York Chiropractic College is presently engaged in what is the most extensive research program ever undertaken by the chiropractic profession. This research is directed toward determining the relationship between health problems and spinal misalignments and utilizes a screening process called Contour Analysis.

Volunteers are being sought for screening. Contour Analysis enables taking a three-dimensional picture (called Moire photography) of the topography of the surface of the spine to detect spinal stress deviations. This analysis will be correlated with leg deficiency, patient symptomatology, and levels of spinal tenderness. An analysis of this type can reveal such things as normal and abnormal stress pattern, spinal curvature, muscle spasms, muscle imbalance, spinal distortions, and scoliosis.

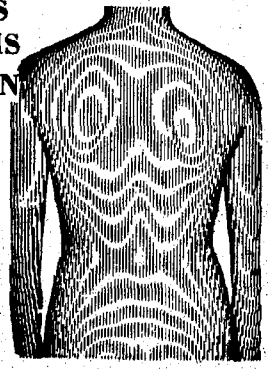

There is no charge to participating volunteers, since the doctors are contributing their time, service, and facilities for the program. Final processing and evaluation will be done at the New York Chiropractic College.

Anyone wishing to be a volunteer may telephone participating doctors directly for information or an appointment.

BOYNE CITY COMMISSION MINUTES

RECORD OF THE PROCEEDINGS OF THE REGULAR MEETING OF THE BOYNE CITY COMMISSION DULY CALLED AND HELD AT THE BOYNE CITY HALL COMMISSION CHAMBERS ON TUESDAY, MARCH 13, 1979 AT 7:00 P.M.

Roll Call: Present: Mayor Keith Fitzpatrick, Commissioners Thelma Behling, Joseph Gierlach, Catherine Jessup and Steven Moody. Also Present: City Manager Timothy J. Clifton, City Clerk Tom Garlock and City Attorney Harvey Varnum.

The Minutes of the last Regular Meeting of February 13, 1979 were approved as received in the monthly packet.

Cebert Gillespie, Darryl Gillespie, James Allen and Ron Powers, appeared before the Commission to discuss solid waste removal from homes in Boyne City. Following lengthy discussion between the aforementioned people, the Commission stated that it was not their responsibility to settle private matters between two competing solid waste refuse companies within Boyne City. They were referred to the Dept. of Natural Resources and the Health Department to determine the proper laws governing them and also asked to try to work out their differences between each other through private discussion.

City Attorney Harvey Varnum presented a trade of Quit Claim Deeds between the City and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Behm, located at the intersection of Pleasant Valley Road and W. Cedar St., including a part of Douglas St. and involving Lots 73 and 74. For years, cars travelled across the corner of Lot 73 and Lot 74 cutting off a triangular piece of land on Lot 73. The actual plat of South Boyne Addition did not have Douglas Street on the plat and ended at the south line on Cedar Street.

However, over the years traffic has proceeded not only on Douglas St. but turned from Cedar Street onto Pleasant Valley Road and cut across the corner of a portion of Lots 73 and 74.

The city previously agreed to work out a transaction for deeds back and forth in parcels of land with Mr. and Mrs. Behm who owns the West half of Lot 72, Lot 73 and Lot 74, upon completion of a survey. The survey has been furnished with the descriptions and the Behm's parcel will be Quit Claimed to the City and the City's parcel will be Quit Claimed to the Behms.

This will enable the Behms to build a garage on the east end of their property without violating lot line distances and at the same time the City should pass a resolution authorizing the splitting of portions of Lots 73 and 74, so as to meet zoning requirements.

Moved by Behling, seconded by Moody to authorize the Mayor and City Clerk to sign Quit Claim Deeds on the two aforementioned parcels of land, in order to trade properties between the City of Boyne City and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Behm. The descriptions read as follows:

City Property Quit Claim Deed: Commencing at a 3/4 inch pipe at the Easterly-most corner of Lot 73, Block K of the plat of the Village of South Boyne (now City of Boyne City) Charlevoix County Records; thence South 55 degrees 58 minutes 0 seconds West along the Southeasterly line of said Lot 73, 66.16 feet to a T-iron stake on the Northeasterly line of Douglas Street as delineated on the plat of South Boyne Addition, Charlevoix County Records, being the point of beginning of this description; thence continuing South 55 degrees 58 minutes 0 seconds West along the Northwesterly line of Cedar Street 126.82 feet to a T-iron stake on the East line of Pleasant Valley Road; thence North 2 degrees 20 minutes 53 seconds East along the East line of said Pleasant Valley Road 128.33 feet to a T-iron stake; thence South 66 degrees 59 minutes 22 seconds East 93.33 feet to a T-iron stake on the Northeasterly line of said Douglas Street; thence South 33 degrees 52 minutes 44 seconds East along the Northeasterly line of said Douglas Street 25.00 feet to the point of beginning; being part of Lots 73 and 74, Block K of the plat of the Village of South Boyne, Charlevoix County Records or part of Douglas Street according to the plat of South Boyne Addition, Charlevoix County Records and part of Lot 271, Block 1 of Nicholl's and Morgans 2nd addition to South Boyne, Charlevoix County Records.

Harold Behm Quit Claim Deed: In the City of Boyne City, Charlevoix County, Michigan, "Commencing at a 3/4 inch pipe at the Easterly-most corner of Lot 73, Block K of the plat of the Village of South Boyne (now City of Boyne City), Charlevoix County Records; thence South 55 degrees 58 minutes 0 seconds West along the Southeasterly line of said Lot 73, 66.16 feet to a T-iron stake on the Northeasterly line of Douglas Street, as delineated on the plat of South Boyne Addition, Charlevoix County Records; thence North 33 degrees 52 minutes 44 seconds West along the Northeasterly line of said Douglas Street 25 feet to a T-iron stake, being the point of beginning of this description; thence North 66 degrees 59 minutes 22 seconds West 93.33 feet to a T-iron stake on the East line of Pleasant Valley Road; thence North 2 degrees 20 minutes 53 seconds East along the East line of said Pleasant Valley Road 35.00 feet to a T-iron stake on the Northwesterly line of Lot 74, Block K of said plat of the Village of South Boyne; thence North 55 degrees 55 minutes 9 seconds East along the Northwesterly line of said Lot 74, 30.30 feet to a T-iron stake; thence South 33 degrees 52 minutes 44 seconds East 106.52 feet to the point of beginning; being part of Lots 73 and 74, Block K of the Village of South Boyne (now City of Boyne City), or part of Douglas Street in the plat of South Boyne Addition, as recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for Charlevoix County and containing 0.072 acres."

Roll call all yeas. Motion carried.

Moved by Moody, seconded by Jessup to allow the City and Mrs. and Mr. Harold Behm to split Lots 73 and 74, located in Block K of the Plat of Village of South Boyne, with the City retaining the portion as described above and the Behm's retaining the portion as described above. Roll call all yeas. Motion carried.

Moved by Behling, seconded by Jessup to adopt the following Resolution as presented by the City Manager:

WHEREAS, the winter of 1978-1979 was characterized by record days of sub-zero temperatures reaching as low as -30 degrees; and

WHEREAS, these temperatures resulted in an excessive number of frozen water and sewer lines; and

WHEREAS, it is the responsibility of the crew of the Water Department to service and maintain the water and sewer lines to ensure the health and safety of all Boyne City residents; and

WHEREAS, the crew of the Water Department worked exceedingly long hours, often skipping their lunch and break periods in order to resume service to our water and sewer customers; and

WHEREAS, when service could not be restored immediately, the staff of the Boyne City Water Department hauled fresh water from the pumping station to the residents in need on a daily basis.

NOW, THEREFORE, be it resolved that the City Commission on behalf of the people of Boyne City commend the diligent efforts of each member of the Water Department staff in responding beyond the normal call of duty to ensure water and sewer service to all Boyne City residents.

CITY OF BOYNE CITY

Roll call all yeas. Motion carried.

Moved by Gierlach, seconded by Moody to adopt the following resolution as presented by the City Manager:

WHEREAS, the Street Crew must prevent the accumulation of snow and ice on City streets to ensure the safety of all motorists using the Boyne City street system; and

WHEREAS, the maintenance of all street drains is also the responsibility of the Street Department so as to prevent potential flooding as excessive snow accumulation thaws; and

WHEREAS, as a result of the efforts of the Street Department during the winter of 1978-1979, the streets and thoroughfares were kept passable on a daily basis; and

WHEREAS, there was minimal inconvenience to the general public, businesses were able to remain open on a daily basis and the entire population was able to commute on City streets cautiously but safely; and

WHEREAS, this effort required that members of the Street Crew to work long and hard hours above and beyond that which is normally required.

NOW, THEREFORE, the City Commission on behalf of all the citizens of Boyne City recognize and commend each one of the employees of the Street Department for their proven concern and loyalty to their job and foremost to the citizens of Boyne City.

The City Manager gave a report on Change Order No. 4 with Seals and Roberts for the installation of RF40N Nutone Ventilation Fan Unit in the Senior Citizen Drop-In Center.

Moved by Fitzpatrick, seconded by Behling to authorize Change Order No. 4 with Seals and Roberts Contractors for the installation of a ventilation fan in the Senior Citizen Drop-In Center, at a cost estimated at $800.00. Funds to come out of Account Code No. 80-E-2. Roll call all yeas. Motion carried.

The City Manager gave a report on the repair of the hangar roof at the airport, a portion of which collapsed this winter because of the heavy snowfall. Bids were received and our insurance carrier was contacted to appraise the damage. The insurance adjuster determined the extent of repairs eligible under our policy to be $515.00, with $100.00 deductible. It is recommended that the bid of Carpenter Construction Co., Inc. in the amount of $924.00 be approved. With the $415.00 of the cost to be borne by insurance carrier. The differential in cost is to cover additional reconditioning of the roof to further strengthen the roof structure to insure compliance with existing building codes.

Moved by Behling, seconded by Jessup to authorize the City Manager to contract the services of Carpenter Construction Co., Inc., to repair the airport hangar roof in the amount of $924.00 as bid and to re-inforce the roof as recommended by the City Manager. Funds are to be paid from Account Code No. 60-E-2. Roll call all yeas. Motion carried.

The City Manager presented the 1979-1980 Fiscal Year Budget to the City Commission with the following introduction being read:

Honorable Mayor and City Commission
319 North Lake Street
Boyne City, Michigan 49712

Dear Mayor and City Commission:

Submitted herewith is the budget for Fiscal Year 1979-1980. The budget is the most significant policy document the City Commission will review as it reflects the extent of services to be provided to the citizens of Boyne City during the ensuing 12 months. It also illustrates the impact of and financial resources required to provide these services.

Philosophically, the preparation of a municipal budget should constitute five major elements:

First, a municipal budget should be responsive to the needs and desires of local citizens. The Administration, in conjunction with the City Commission, must be sensitive to those needs. This budget represents the public's sentiment through the establishment of a $100,000 Capital Improvement Program encompassing primarily water, sewer, street and sidewalk repairs.

Second, a municipal budget should be considered a proposed set of objectives, strategies, goals and results. Consistent with this ideal, this year's budget process highlights the past fiscal year 1979-1980. The use of such will be to permit the evaluation of programs rather than simply an expenditure increment. The most obvious budgeted item which mirrors this element is the proposed funding of a comprehensive plan.

Thirdly, a municipal budget should critically evaluate the cost-effectiveness of City operations. As is evidenced by the Fiscal Year 1979-1980 budget, all contracts have been reviewed and, where necessary, revised.

Fourth, the City budget should represent employee wages and benefits which are competitive with both private and public agencies. A competitive compensation program will assist the City in maintaining a viable, a competent workforce. The Fiscal year 1979-1980 budget recommends salary and wage increases consistent with the presidentially-established guidelines.

Fifth, a municipal budget should serve as an information source to citizens. It should be clear and straight-forward as well as comprehensive and accurate. The new budget format was established with this in mind.

The City of Boyne City began experiencing a tight budget situation in Fiscal Year 1976-1977 and will continue to realize the impact of our National economic situation in future years as we prepare budgetary programs for the City. We, along with other cities in the United States, are realizing a leveling off and, in some instances, a decrease in State and Federal funds available to local governmental units. This situation, obviously, results from an attempt on the part of State and Federal governments to cut back their own expenditures in the face of serious citizen criticism of governmental spending. Concomitantly, we have experienced significant cost increases in the area of labor, in the cost of energy, and in the cost of materials and supplies.

Within these constraints, the Fiscal Year 1979-1980 budget anticipates the introduction of new programs and maintaining present service levels while reducing the millage rate. This has been made possible through the concerted efforts of the individual Department Heads to reduce unnecessary expenditures in their respective operations as well as their acceptance of general administrative procedural changes designed to reduce operational expenses.

The Fiscal Year 1979-1980 Budget as presented totals $1,533,600 representing an increase of $149,250 or 10.8% over the Fiscal Year 1978-1979 Budget. The General Operating Budget is $808,000 which is equivalent to 52.7% of the total Fiscal Year 1979-1980 Budget. The Capital Improvement Fund of $112,000 amounts to 7.3% of the Budget, while Debt Repayment $52,750 approximates 3.4%; Motor Pool $68,250 approximates 4.4%; Street Fund $187,000 approximates 12.3%; and Water/Wastewater Fund $304,700 approximates 19.9%.

In order to generate that portion of the budget financed by property taxes, the tax rate is $20.02 per $1,000 of assessed valuation, a reduction of 2.18 mills:

Operating Budget 12.80 mills
C.I.P.	4.72 mills
City Hall - G.O. Bond	1.50 mills
Sewage Disposal - G.O. Bond	1.00 mill

In recognition of the Community, City Commission and City Administration strong desire to limit taxes, a most diligent effort has been made to keep Fiscal Year 1979-1980 expenditures at a minimum so as to decrease the millage rate. Fortunately, increased revenues from non-tax sources and a very conservative approach to the budget has made this possible.

Major new and innovative programs are recommended for Fiscal Year 1979-1980. Each department within the City has proposed new programs within their respective departments. However, the subsequent schedule is only intended to highlight the major administration-wide programs and service extensions which warrant additional attention:

A. Development of a Comprehensive Plan - This has often been identified as the single most important project confronting the City of Boyne City. The document is necessary if Boyne City is to administer and control its future development.

B. Initiation of a Capital Improvement Program (C.I.P.) - As equally important to the City and its future as is the Comprehensive Plan, establishment of a Capital Improvement Fund insures that the physical plant of the City, i.e., streets, water and sewer mains, street signs and sidewalks are maintained at an acceptable level. Furthermore, a C.I.P. reduces major repair expenses which are the result of continually deferring repairs until they reach critical dimensions threatening either the public welfare or safety.

C. Adoption of a four-year program to install remote reading meters on all water customer accounts - Installation of remote reading meters will pay for themselves in a matter of five to seven years. Estimated readings will be eliminated, labor expense will be reduced and more accurate reading of water usage will be accomplished.

D. Building Maintenance Supervision Program - Through the transfer of personnel within the City workforce as opposed to increasing the City workforce, a new position is recommended for establishment which would permit the city to more economically and on a regularly scheduled basis maintain City-owned buildings and equipment.

E. Completion of the Rotary Park Project which will expand the recreational opportunities available to residents of Boyne City.

F. Reduction of the General Fund subsidy of the Airport by 35%.

G. Establishment of uniform personnel and purchasing systems.

H. Increased funding and commitment to the Public Library.

While Fiscal Year 1979-1980 represents a difficult budget year, it provides the opportunity for challenge and innovation by the administrators serving in a governmental capacity in the City of Boyne City. We are encouraged by the responsiveness of the citizenry to the challenges before us and by the innovation of the City Commission in meeting those challenges. It is within this context that Fiscal Year 1979-1980 is looked forward to with great anticipation.

Respectfully submitted,
Timothy J. Clifton
City Manager

Commissioner Catherine Jessup read the following letter and recommended that it be made a part of the minutes of this meeting. The letter read as follows:

Timothy J. Clifton, City Manager
City Hall, Lake Street
Boyne City, Michigan 49712

Dear Tim:

Last evening I read through the 1979-1980 Budget for the first of what is sure to be many times.

Congratulations to you, to the city's officers and department heads, and to the administrative secretary!

The document which you have presented sets a high standard for professionalism for our city and for its government at the same time that it establishes a high standard for communication of information.

I am proud to be associated with all of you and with your responsible and ambitious Plans for Boyne City's future.

Very truly yours,
Catherine C. Jessup
Commissioner

The City Manager gave his monthly report of the budget and stated it was still within the budgetary limitations as set. He stated that in Fiscal Year 1979-1980 a more simplified monthly form will be presented for a more realistic view of the finances. Accounts Payable in the amount of $21,737.97 were approved.

Moved by Behling, seconded by Jessup to authorize the City Manager to file a Pre-Application with the Land and Water Conservation Fund in the amount of $53,500.00 for the development of a Municipal Park and Swimming Beach, located between the Wastewater Treatment Plant and the old Tannery coal dock. Roll call all yeas. Motion carried.

IN MEMORIAM 2

If you would please me when I've passed away
Let not your grief embitter you, be brave

Turn with full courage from my mounded grave
And smile upon the children at their play

Live on as you have lived these many years
Still let your soul be gentle and be kind

I never liked to see those eyes in tears
Weep not too much, that you must stay behind

Share in the lives of others as you'd share
If God had willed to leave me there.

Boyne City cagers never gave up

BOYNE CITY - It was a tough season for the Boyne City High School basketball team, but Coach Russ Harvey is quick to point out that his team never quit.

"They always tried," he said. "It would have been so easy for those guys just to go through the motions. My hat goes off to young men who work hard throughout the season."

"They always did what I asked of them."

But determination alone wasn't enough to overcome the Ramblers' lack of height, outside shooting and consistent ballhandling. Those problems added up to a 4-15 season record.

The Ramblers beat Petoskey in what was probably their biggest win of the season. Other victories came over East Jordan, Cheboygan, and Grayling.

Boyne City faced a tough road schedule early in the season and lost its first eight games. That losing streak dashed Harvey's hopes for a break-even season, his initial goal.

The tallest member of the team was center Dean Hicks, a shade under 6-3. Hicks was too quick for most opposing centers and led the team in both scoring and rebounding. He averaged 15 points a game.

Harvey said some of the players who he thought would grow taller unfortunately quit growing. "As it turned out, we wound up not having quite as much height as I thought we would," he said.

"But for our lack of height, we never did have a team blow us out on the boards. We blocked out on the boards real well."

A bigger problem than rebounding was outside shooting. The final season statistics aren't complete yet, but Harvey said the team made less than 40 percent of its field goal attempts.

"If you don't have the height or consistent ballhandling, you have to have the shooters to put it in the hole," he said.

The Redbirds will be losing five seniors, Hicks, Ray Greene, Pat Anzell, Scott Paquette and Tim Hartwick.

Boyne City News

Where do all your tax dollars go?

BY JOE McELROY

BOYNE CITY - Tax time is here again. So what's the city doing with all those tax dollars you're paying?

City Manager Tim Clifton presented his proposed 1979-80 budget, a 150-page document, to the City Commission last week, and budget hearings are now underway.

The proposed budget is for $1,533,600, an increase of $149,250, or 10.8 percent over last year. Millage was slightly cut, but assessments went up 6.5 percent, generating more tax money for the city.

Of the $1.53 million proposed budget, $808,000 comes from local property taxes, an increase of $41,850 over last year. The rest of the money comes from the state and federal government and from fees for city services, such as water.

The budget proposal calls for several new programs and re-distributions of funds. Increases are proposed for central administration, city clerk, police, ambulance service and parks and recreation.

Decreases are slated for the airport, public buildings, cemetery and landfill. One important proposal is a $100,000 allocation for a new capital improvements program. This earmarks money for major repairs and improvements in city facilities.

Both street construction and water and sewer main improvements would receive $45,000 each. Clifton said Winona and Harris Streets would be paved while Marshall Road from Front Street to Anderson Road would be resurfaced.

"We're going to hit the worst spots first," Clifton said. "The worst spots are those that damage cars and city trucks, which costs the city more money to repair."

Clifton said part of Marshall Road is slanted, which damages snow removal equipment. "If we don't do Marshall Road this year, half of it won't be there next year," he said.

Another $5,000 will go for sidewalk repair, mostly on Water Street. Another $3,600 will go for the first year of a three year program to replace street signs. North Boyne would be the first to get the metallic, hard-to-vandalize signs which can be read from both sides.

Increases in some areas of the budget are due partially to different bookkeeping methods. Central administration, which is up 18 percent to $62,400, includes salaries for the city manager, treasurer, secretary and tax assessing.

In the past, the manager's salary came from several different sources in the budget depending on how much work he did in each area. For example, if he spent seven percent of his time working on water and sewer problems, seven percent of his salary would come from water and sewer funds.

Clifton's predecessor, Ruth Neymark, also acted as city treasurer, a position now held by Herb Herriman. Clifton has recommended Herriman get a raise from $14,500 to $15,515.

The budget also calls for a pay increase for Clifton from his present $17,500 to $18,725. Both salary hikes are seven percent, keeping with President Carter's proposed anti-inflation guidelines.

The biggest proposed hike is in ambulance service. The budget calls for a 54 percent increase, from $13,000 to $20,000 per year.

But Clifton said the amount budgeted in the past has never been enough. He said the ambulance service has been 10 percent over budget each of the past three years. The ambulance made 284 runs last year, up from 160 five years ago in 1974.

The new budget calls for increased charges to townships for use of the ambulance and addition of a second stand-by driver to be on call at night.

Presently, only Ambulance Director Henry Erber is officially on call 24 hours a day. When he needs a second man, there is occasionally difficulty finding somebody quickly, since nobody is officially on stand-by duty.

"Sometime it takes three or four calls before a second man can be found," Clifton wrote in the budget. "This takes at least 10 to 15 minutes." If the program is adopted, the second stand-by man would carry a beeper so he could be notified immediately.

It would cost $1,460 a year to pay for a second ambulance worker on call, according to the budget. The raise in the ambulance budget would be even higher if Erber hadn't refused a raise from his present $4,200 a year.

Clifton said Erber has received just one raise in seven years, but wants to see the money go towards improving operation of the ambulance service.

Parks and recreation also received a major increase, 36 percent, to $110,000. Clifton said this is "primarily a maintenance budget," but added that the city now has to maintain the Barn Mountain area, which it took over last year. That's an additional 60 acres.

The budget calls for erosion control on the mountain and improvement to the parking area.

Rotary Park is another additional expense, including establishment of a nature trail and plans to expand parking, which becomes scarce during softball games.

The biggest decrease, 37.7 percent, was for the airport, which had its proposed appropriation lowered to $12,850 from this year's $20,650. The cut comes because Clifton is proposing elimination of the airport manager position.

Hal Lentz, the manager, is paid $5,200 a year. "You don't need someone out there all the time," Clifton said. He said he will assume the functions of the airport manager, which include making sure all the lights work and that the runway is in good shape.

The budget for public buildings is down 28 percent because of the $40,000 in bond money for the new city hall, part of which is leased to other governmental bodies.

The budget also calls for transferring a city employee from the waste water department to a new position, buildings maintenance supervisor, who would be paid $12,925 a year.

Clifton said this person would be in charge of preventive maintenance in all city buildings, which he hopes will eventually save the city money.

Funding for the cemetery is down 13 percent to $20,600. Clifton said services there will be maintained at the present level, but spending was cut because new tools were bought last year and don't need to be replaced.

Open again

The Boyne City Library is now open again and features a new look. The walls have been painted and the floor has been re-finished. Helping with the massive job of moving all the books back upstairs after the remodeling was Robert Morgridge's middle school history class. Shown at left is Mike Hulett while next to him is Barbara Boehm. An open house will be held Saturday, March 24, from 10 a.m. to noon and 1-3 p.m.

Mac McNichol of the Boyne River Inn swears that Don Peck cost the BRI's basketball team a big game by badgering the referees from the stand. Mac figured that if Peck is going to be a grandstand ref, he might as well look the part. So he recently got Peck, left, a ref shirt emblazoned with the words "Grandstand referee." Bruneel donated the shirt.
