Wetlands: Hot Lansing issue . . .

BY DIANNE MURRAY
Capital correspondent

LANSING - After several weeks of debate and feuding between House and Senate committees on proposed wetlands legislation, the sponsor of the House version has decided to help the passage of the Senate version.

Doug Reese, aide to Rep. Thomas Anderson (D-Southgate), the sponsor of the House bill, said "the House will hold off any further action to give the Senate the ability to pass the (wetland) bill first."

Wetland legislation would prohibit owners of swamps, bogs and marshes from dredging, draining, filling in or constructing on their land without special state permission.

Wetlands are a form of flood control, wildlife habitat and pollution control. Rep. Ralph Ostling said the wetland legislations, as they stand now, are not good pieces of legislation.

The Roscommon Republican, whose district includes the west half of Charlevoix County, said wetlands legislation will have an "adverse effect on northern private landowners."

The two versions differ in coverage of what wetlands would be under state jurisdiction and in the exemptions granted to special interest groups.

The House version covers only wetlands which border on lakes, rivers or streams.

The Senate version also covers "perched wetlands" which are marshes or bogs not directly adjacent to waterways.

The Senate bill has broad exemptions, one of which allows farmers to drain land for use of agricultural purposes. Because of this, the Michigan Farm Bureau, the Michigan Cattlemen's Association and the Department of Natural Resources support the bill.

The House version does not have exemptions for agriculture but does contain some exemptions for mining companies which would allow them to dump waste materials into wetlands without a state permit.

The Senate version calls for an inventory of state wetlands, but it does not say to what extent. This is one thing that legislators believe will have to be spelled out in amendments to the bill.

In either version of the bill, Ostling said he would like to see an inventory to determine how much wetlands should be set aside.

Ostling would like to see a second amendment added providing compensation in the way of a tax break for those landowners who would be unable to build or fill in their wetland property.

"Let's determine how much (northern property) is wetlands and if enough state property is wetland, then let it go at that," he said.

State Sen. Mitch Irwin's legislative assistant said the Saulte Ste. Marie Democrat was still reading the bills and had no comment on them.

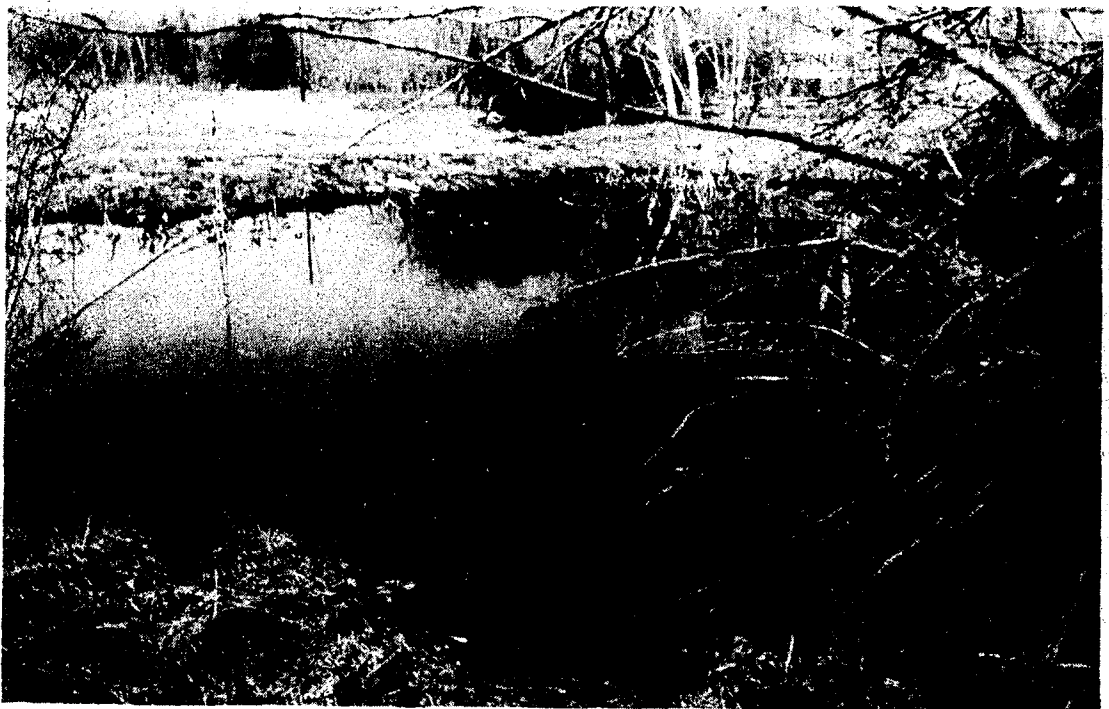

"We are still trying to get the information (about the bills) from the different people in our district and how it will affect them personally," Irwin's aide said.

Floor debate on the Senate bill will not start again until April 2. Sen. Kerry Kammer (D-Pontiac), sponsor of the Senate bill, said the time between will be used to round up votes for the passage of the bill.

In the past, the Senate has been more opposed to the wetlands legislation than the House. The legislation was often blocked in the old Conservation Committee by its former chairman, Senator Joe Mack of Ironwood.

The rivalry between the two Houses was caused by the Senate panel on wetlands passing the bill on almost the same day as the House panel passed the legislation.

"We feel possessive of the (wetlands) issue because we've worked on it for seven years in the House," Anderson's aide said. "But, paramount in our minds is a good wetlands law and if somebody has to give to get it through, it will be us."

Proposed legislation defines wetlands as any piece of land that is under water either all or part of the time, such as this property near M-75 in Boyne Falls. The County Commission is against the bill, which would regulate wetland development. (Press photo by Joe McElroy.)

. . . County residents join debate

BY JOE McELROY

Proposed wetlands legislation is a controversial issue in Lansing, where lawmakers are waging an intense, sometimes personal battle in both the Senate and House of Representatives.

Those disagreements continue up in Charlevoix County, where Department of Natural Resources and other government officials say the law is a good idea. But the County Commission disagrees, and recently unanimously passed a resolution against wetlands legislation.

Bill Grimm of the U.S. Soil and Conservation office in Boyne City estimates there are 25,000 acres of wetlands in the county, of which 23,360 are inland lakes such as Walloon and Lake Charlevoix. The remaining acres include a wide variety of marshes, bogs, shorelands, swamps and other wetlands whose development would be regulated by the bill.

"Wetlands are just like a sponge," Grimm said. "They are filter areas of Mother Nature for the environment. It's nature's way of cleaning that which comes from the uplands."

This sponge-like effect soaks up pollution before it can get into lakes and rivers, Grimm said.

The state's agriculture department has lobbied against the bill, but Grimm, who works mostly with private landowners, says area farmers don't appear to be up in arms against it.

"Farmers realize they have to take care of their land," he said. "It's their livelihood."

But many lawmakers see the proposal as state infringement on private property rights. The county's resolution against the bill says that it would allow the DNR to form land management plans without owners' permission.

"That tells you that the landowner doesn't have a doggone thing to say about what happens to his land," said Commissioner Larry Matthew of Walloon Lake.

Matthew also objects to the various changes the bill has undergone in both the Senate and the House. "They're playing games with it down there," he said.

"Until we get some direction, I'm not going to be a part of their game."

The county commission's resolution also objected to the proposed $25 fee which would be imposed on landowners seeking state permission to develop wetlands.

DNR Forester Bill Mittig says the proposed law is "badly needed. We've seen cases where they've built in floodplains and the homeowners don't even know it until their house floods."

Mittig said wetlands provide habitat for birds and other animals, and said local units of government haven't been aggressive enough in protecting natural resources.

"When we ask counties or townships to develop plans for the Wild Rivers Act, they refused to do so and let it fall back to the state," Mittig said.

The Jordan River was the first to be named under the Wild River Act, which limits development on certain rivers. "The first option was given to the townships and counties," Mittig said.

But that foot-dragging might be changing on the local level. Wilson Township is considering a new zoning ordinance which would include some provisions to protect wetlands.

Senior citizens worried

Bus service threatened

The government-sponsored bus service for Charlevoix County Senior Citizens may end this fall because of lack of funds, according to Art Saworski of the county's Charlevoix County Commission on Aging.

At present there are two buses used for senior citizens. One is funded by the federal Older Americans Act, while money for the other comes from the Michigan Department of Transportation through gasoline taxes. Other funding comes from fares paid by the riders.

Saworski said the Older Americans Act bus, which costs $6,630 a year, expires September 30. The program that funds the other bus ends November 5, he said.

In addition, both bus drivers are paid through the Comprehensive Employment Training Act (CETA), a federal jobs program. CETA funds are being cut back all over the country, and Saworski said the money for the drivers will run out September 30. The drivers make $10,000 a year.

The county's estimated 3,100 senior citizens use the bus service for a wide variety of activities, such as going to lunch programs in Boyne City and at the Charlevoix County Senior Citizens Center in East Jordan.

The bus also transports elderly residents, who need to go grocery shopping or to medical appointments.

"Many of these people can't walk several blocks with a bag of groceries, especially in the winter," said Dorothy Pelton, the director of East Jordan's senior center. "It will have a very serious effect if they take away the busses."

"We have many seniors who couldn't get to any of our programs if it weren't for the bus service," Saworski said approximately 450 different people used the bus service in 1978.

Pearl Ikens, 87, of Boyne City is one of the seniors who uses the bus service. "I think it's wonderful," she says. "A lot of people wouldn't be able to get out otherwise."

Saworski hopes another state program can be implemented to retain transportation for seniors, who have become increasingly dependent on the busses since they started running in February of 1975.

He said the county could get up to $317,000 for three years for as many as five busses from the transportation department, which pays for the program through gasoline taxes. A similar program is already underway in Antrim County.

The money is available," Saworski says. "That's why the tax was put on gasoline. Why not go after it?"

But many state and federal programs are designed to provide funding just in the initial stages. The county wouldn't have to pay anything for the program the first two years, Saworski said, but would then be expected to pay 25 percent a year and eventually pick up half the tab. The program costs Antrim County $40,000 a year, Saworski said, although CETA and other federal funding might lessen the burden.

Saworski said the county commission will discuss the issue at its Thursday, March 28 evening meeting which begins at 7:30 p.m.

Township meetings Saturday

Saturday, March 31, is annual meeting day for most of Charlevoix County's 15 townships. All townships except Evangeline will be meeting, with annual budgets a major topic of discussion.

A new state law regarding annual meeting dates caused some confusion this year. The law says the townships can end their fiscal year either on March 31 or in July. Township meetings are to be held at the end of the fiscal year.

But Evangeline will meet the following Saturday, April 7. "We really should be meeting on March 31," says Evangeline Clerk Anne Thurston.

But she said the township has always met the first Saturday in April and didn't have time to change the date this year. That problem will be solved next year and all townships will meet the same day.

Township residents can attend the meeting and discuss anything they want with township officers.

Court orders

Front Street hearing

BOYNE CITY - The City Commission will hold a special meeting Monday, April 2, at 6 p.m. to consider another resolution on the vacating of Front Street.

Lake Associates, the developers who want to build 270 condominiums units on the old tannery property, say their project won't succeed unless Front Street is closed.

Last summer the City Commission approved a resolution of intent to vacate the street, but now they have to do it again because the developers have submitted revised plans for the project. A second resolution was mandated by the Circuit Court, which must also approve the street closing because Front Street is near Lake Charlevoix.

The street closing is opposed by a group of Boyne residents who call themselves the Save Front Street Committee, but the three city commissioners questioned by The Press have said they still favor the project.

The earlier resolution was approved 4-0, with Commissioner Thelma Behling abstaining because she lives near the property.

Teens might lose 'their place'

BY KAY SEVERINSEN

In downtown East Jordan there is a store with nothing for sale. Ice cream freezers are empty, the soft drink machine is dry.

Yet every evening the Circus O'Flavors is busy. Crowds of teens flock inside to listen to the juke box, play cards or talk, getting something they could never buy -- friendship and caring.

For a year and a month, proprietor Ken Young has been offering East Jordan youth a place to go, a place to hang out and relax. Between 100 and 150 teens come in every day, he estimated.

"They need this so much," Young, 35, says. "Some of them have a lot of problems at home. They come in and talk to me. Here they feel safe and secure. They know someone cares."

But now the teenagers have another problem: the Circus O'Flavors is closing within a month. In the short time the business has been open, Young says he has lost between $5,000 and $7,000.

"All I wanted to do was break even, but I can't even do that," he explained.

"And it's hard on my family. My wife never sees me."

That's because Young works full time at the East Jordan Iron Works. Then he spends another four to six hours every evening at the store.

"We're worried," says Yvonne Kitson, 15. "Some of us think they will crawl under a rock and die when it closes. It might not be so bad if kids could stay home and talk to their parents. But some have such bad home lives they can't stand it."

"I guess we'll just start lining up on the corner like we did before, or else have car parties. There's nothing else to do."

A couple of teens, Yvonne said, show up at the store at 3 p.m., go home for a half hour at dinner and are back until the store closes.

To many of the store's regulars, Young is like a second father.

"He's really helped us get our heads together," Yvonne added. "It was definitely going the wrong direction before he opened. He helped me turn around. I love my own father very much, but Ken also cares about us. It's like a big family down there."

As if to prove it, behind the ice cream counter sits a row of wallet-size portraits of the teenagers who frequent the place. "They're my kids," says Young, simply.

Young has a few strict rules, which he says the patrons respect. "They don't wheel and deal pot in here. They don't drink. And there's no bad language. A lot of townspeople think that's what they do here. But I don't allow it."

Most of the year, the store sells ice cream and soft drinks. Young also makes some money from the juke box and coin-operated games. On a good day, he'll gross $55, but that doesn't meet expenses.

"I hate to close," he said. "I put the for sale sign in the window just kind of to feel things out. I'm hoping someone would buy it that cares for the kids. But I don't think it will happen."

But Young believes what he offers is vital to East Jordan teens: a caring, listening ear.

"I've sent three or four of them over to the psychologist at the health center," he said. "Not that they have mental problems. But they have problems and then they turn to the street and to booze and pot."

"One person's parent is very ill and they can't handle that too well. They can't stand to stay at home, so they come here."

Young thinks the store has cut down on juvenile delinquency, too. "You watch," he warned, "when this place closes, the town is going to have more problems."

Police Chief Joe Hammond was not sure that would be the case. But he did say the store is a "healthy thing to have. It gives them a place of their own."

"There's nothing for them to do. They just walk around."

Young helped the teens organize the East Jordan Youth Group, which last summer sponsored dances every two weeks.

"We don't know what will happen to the group," mused Yvonne. "We always met at the store. We don't know if he will still be able to help us as much."

"We would jump at any chance to keep it open," she added. "But there's nothing we can do."

Savings & loan faces another roadblock

BOYNE CITY - Northwestern Savings and Loan Association of Petoskey is continuing its protest of a proposal to establish a savings and loan in Boyne City.

Such appeals are not unusual, however, and the investors in the savings and loan are confident their application will eventually be approved.

The state Financial Institutions Bureau had notified the 11 local investors in the proposed savings and loan on March 6 that an administrative law judge had recommended approval of their proposal.

But there were provisions for appealing that recommendation. Northwestern Savings and Loan, as well as Family Federal Savings, had vigorously opposed the original application to form S&L in Boyne City. The original application was made in January, 1978.

Four days of hearings were held with Financial Institutions Bureau officials in May and June, and the administrative law judge in charge of the case even visited the Boyne area before making his positive recommendation this month.

But the recommendation for approval was appealed by Northwestern Savings and Loan.

Al Landa, the administrative law judge, told The Press last week that such appeals are common in the competitive world of financial institutions. He said that roughly half of all initial recommendations for approval of new financial institutions are appealed.

Appeals will be made in oral arguments before Richard J. Francis, commissioner of the Financial Institutions Bureau, on April 5 in Lansing.

Francis has the power to uphold or overturn Landa's recommendation. No matter what Francis decides, there can be further appeals by either party to a Circuit Court.

But, Landa said, these appeals are less common. Only about one in 10 are appealed after reaching that stage, he estimated. Such appeals must be made within 60 days of the time Francis makes his decision.

The Financial Institutions Bureau is acting on behalf of consumers in assuring that new institutions are properly organized and that an area can indeed support them.

In the case of the Boyne City savings and loan, he said, "The applicants proved to my satisfaction that there is a need for an association such as this in Boyne City."

Arch Wright, organizer of the local S&L, said he was somewhat surprised the preliminary approval is being contested.

Earlier this month, he said the recommendation for approval "was worded so strongly in our favor it would be highly improbable it would be appealed."

Now that it has been appealed, however, Wright said, "I'm confident the appeal won't be successful. We're proceeding with our planning. In fact we have an architect working possible building plans." He still hopes the savings and loan will open in the fall.

Wright said the S&L office will be in downtown Boyne City, but the exact location has not been chosen yet. He said the investors are interested in buying the old city hall property for an office site.

The 11 investors have already put up

$250,000 and they will have to put up another estimated $250,000 if the savings and loan is approved.

"I know $500,000 doesn't seem like much to start a savings and loan," Wright said. "But we will be taking in deposits, which we will also be able to lend out. We will also be selling mortgages to large holding companies."

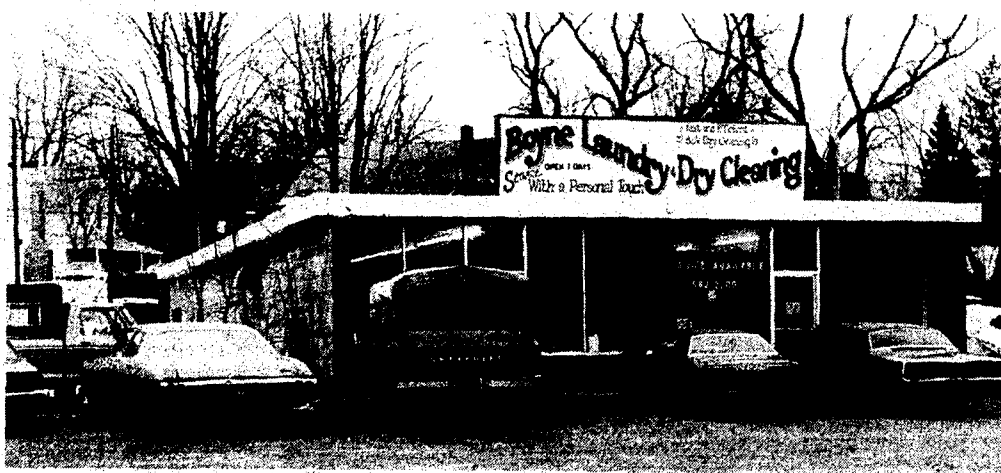

Wright said an economist hired by his group projected that the new savings and loan would bring in $1.2 a year in savings.

"That may even be a conservative estimate," Wright said. He said Family Federal had acquired savings of more than that amount in its first years after opening branches in Charlevoix, Petoskey and Gaylord.

To achieve the $1.2 million figure, the new S&L would not drastically cut into Northwestern State Bank's deposits. Wright contends. He said the bank, which serves roughly the same area, has $50 million in checking and savings deposits.

Wright said his economist is projecting the Boyne City Savings and Loan will realize a profit at the end of its third year of operation.

Co-op reforms are badly needed

The strike is over, but serious problems remain at Top O'Michigan Rural Electric Company.

The behavior of company officials and board members during the five month strike should give the co-op's 32,000 customers cause for concern. The company consistently put more importance on smashing the strike than on being above board with its customers. The management probably deserves credit for keeping the townships' electricity going throughout a hard serving press releases.

But this experience is merely a symptom of a deeper problem, an entrenched, unresponsive bureaucracy. If political leaders acted this way, they would soon be voted out of office. That's what American democracy is all about.

But that's not what Top O'Michigan Rural Electric Company is all about. Co-op members collected 4,200 signatures to force a recall election of the directors. The organizers were under the impression that this election could include mail ballots or proxy votes. Article one, section seven of the bylaws says members can do this.

How has the company responded to this demonstration of due process? Officials have dragged their feet since January 26 on "validating" the petitions, and also claims that the bylaws say members can only cast their recall ballots in person.

That means approximately 16,000 members would have to appear in person to recall even one board member. This is absurd. The co-ops were established by Congress to be responsive to the needs and wishes of their members. Setting up impossible recall procedures is not what we would call responsive.

And it seems especially inconsistent that the co-op would advocate this impossible manner of recall when they set no such standards for their board elections at annual meetings. When it comes to re-electing themselves, the board and its bylaws require a minimum of merely 150 voters -- and they DO allow proxy votes. (They encourage people to come to the annual meetings nearly to the point of bribery -- food is served, and expensive door prizes are given away.)

One of two things is happening here. If the company is interpreting its bylaws correctly, those bylaws are a farce and should be reformed. If the company is misinterpreting the bylaws, then it is just further proof of management's unresponsiveness.

Co-op officials are probably hoping that they will drop from the public eye now that the strike is over. But that might not happen. Hopefully people's memories will be long enough to make some changes at this summer's co-op annual meeting.

Company officials might be able to squash the recall drive through dubious bylaw interpretations, but they might have to look forward to seeing some new faces on the board of directors this summer.

If that happens, the cozy club that has had so much influence over township residents might find that times are changing.

When co-ops were first set up, they had a simple purpose: provide electricity to rural areas. Nearly half a century later, we are now in a time when it is not so wise to encourage growth in rural areas -- because energy and other resources are severely limited.

All of a sudden, the co-ops are making crucial decisions which directly affect the growth of a multi-county area. They are deciding whether to invest millions of dollars in downstate nuclear power plants. And the sad thing is, the people making these decisions are elected by a small percentage of the total number of co-op members who know little about the board members' views.

Then, the board conducts its meetings totally in private, and Top O'Michigan customers end up paying some of the highest electrical rates in the nation.

Other co-ops have been under fire lately, too, and reforms have been implemented. Open board meetings and better communication with the public would be a good start.

Strikers Judy Gay, left, and Will Roisen, right, are out of jobs after the long strike at Top O'Michigan Rural Electric Authority. Preston Schomp, center, was the only striker to get his job back. A recall of board members is still in the works.

winter. Early in the strike the office workers warned of dire consequences when bad weather came. They said the winter would bring downed power lines and long interruptions of service.

That didn't happen. The only major service interruptions came after stupid acts of vandalism that only served to sway public opinions against the strikers, who disavowed any responsibility.

Maybe union members were just blowing hot air when they warned of long outages. Or maybe the company and customers were just lucky. But while the company did a good job technically, it is a public relations disaster area.

One customer says when he tried to get on the agenda of a board meeting, he wrote two letters but still was not given a chance to speak.

This shabby treatment was accorded a long-time member of the co-op, not some outside agitator. At least that's his side of the story. Management? They refuse to communicate with the public except through occasional self-

Inflation tribulations -- Paying bills could give you ills

The people of Boyne City and East Jordan (and all the ships at sea) seem to have one topic of general discussion these days.

And you're wrong. It ain't sex. It's money.

Sex, as a subject of conversation, has taken a drubbing -- over exposed via the movies, books and magazines. Pounded into the ground until it's worn and old hat and no longer batted around in our better circles. In fact, things have degenerated to where young people may now engage in experimental fiddling and be respectable at the same time.

Yes, money has pushed sex aside and come to the fore in most coffee table debates. The worthless United States dollar has us by the ribs and by the mouth and won't let go.

I'm harping on this right now because my fuel oil bill has jumped 43 cents per gallon in six years. It used to cost $175.00 to fill our thousand gallon tank. Today it's $600.00.

That, folks, is called inflation. Back when there was no dignity attached to being heavily in debt, inflation had something to do with blowing up an innertube. How I wish that were so today!

Prices are rising so rapidly, people are calling last week the good old days. I went down town to buy a loaf of bread. The price was laughable. I was forced to laugh for fear of crying.

That dang fuel bill burns me up, my electric bill gives me a shock, my water bill dampens my spirits and my phone bill has me yelling all over the place.

Who can I blame? The large corporations. A man from Horton Bay says yes, they are to blame. I believe him. For no falsehood has ever been traced to Horton Bay.

We who are old enough to hold a grudge the better part of the day, are frightened, worried, sick and moopy. We went through the roaring 20's, the flooring 30's, the warring 40's, the soaring 50's, the missile sizzling 60's, and now are dangling on the tail end of the thrice priced 70's.

The 80's are just down around the corner of Water and Lake Streets. And I, for one, do not have the nerve to pry open the future and look at the price of pickles -- sliced dills.

Things are so gummed up the Government is now anti-abortion. It's looked upon as a conspiracy against the Internal Revenue Bureau. The more people, the more taxes; and the more taxes, the more people the Government can hire to straighten things out.

I discussed this with a woman in Boyne Falls the other day and she tried to pooh-pooh my grouch. "The price of goods and services have gone up in the last few years," she said. "But wages have also gone up. People can afford to pay high prices when they make such high wages."

How silly. High wages and low prices are the American dream. That's what everyone wants.

She laughed at me. "How can you be so stupid and have such pretty blue eyes?"

Women in Boyne Falls are always saying stuff like that to throw me off.

Keeping history alive

Something as important as a community's history deserves all the protection it can get. Boyne City's

The idea of forming a historical commission came from discussions between the city manager and members of the Boyne City Historical Society, an informal group that was founded during the Bicentennial. There is plenty of room for both the historical society and a commission.

Boyne City is rich in history and it's encouraging to see that history is kept alive through groups like the historical society and the middle school's local history class. A historical commission will give history a more formal, permanent focal point within the structure of the city government.

Hopefully the historical commission will be able to encourage potential developers in the area to highlight history, not pave it over, when they make their plans.

Buildings such as Colwell & Company Real Estate and the railroad building are a credit to the community. Others should be encouraged to follow the same trend instead of ruining the charm of a pretty town by covering it over with neon and plastic.

history will be well served if the City Commission approves an upcoming resolution to establish an official Boyne City Historical Commission.

Gas shortage a threat

We might as well look at the bright side.

That's the attitude Boyne Area Chamber of Commerce President Mac McNichol came home with after attending a meeting last week on the threatened gas shortage that has Northern Michiganders shook up and worried about the future.

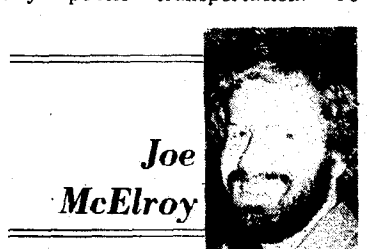

Mac says the message he got was that we don't have to worry about a gas crisis -- at least not this year. Higher prices at the pumps, yes, but not a full-blown, knock-down, get-ready-for-the-soup-line crisis.

At least not yet.

If the gas shortage becomes so bad that the entire country goes to rationing, we're all in trouble. But a more likely alternative is weekend service station closings. It wouldn't be as serious a hardship for most people, especially those in the big cities who could use public transportation.

It would, of course, be a severe hardship up north, since we don't have any public transportation. To paraphrase Congressman Bob Davis, you can't take a subway from East Jordan to Boyne City.

But Davis and our other elected representatives usually find themselves outnumbered, and probably won't get much sympathy when they moan about the woes of their sparsely populated districts. One man, one vote, majority rules, so look out, everybody else.

Hopefully our political leaders will be able to convince their colleagues that putting the hurt on the north's economy will hurt them as well. High unemployment anywhere in the state hurts the economy all over.

And if tourists can't get gas in Northern Michigan, they'll have to become ex-tourists, amusing themselves in the summer by watching each other sweat and in the winter by building snowmen with black snow. After all, there is no subway from Detroit to Lake Charlevoix.

But even if the feds lay heavy restrictions on gas use, Michigan and other states have an ace up their sleeves, according to the experts who spoke at Thursday's meeting.

If rationing or weekend closings appear imminent, the state could get an exemption from the rules if it can come up with other methods of saving enough gas.

That might be the best way to go, since it would force everyone to use their heads on gasoline consumption. Clearly, there is much we can do. America has but six percent of the world's population, but we consume 30 percent of the oil.

Given the crazy political conditions in many of the countries that supply the black gold, it's clear we had better find sensible solutions before the situation gets out of hand.

Correction

An error in last week's Boyne City front page story about taxes may have given the impression that local residents are paying even more than they thought. The total in local income for this year in the tax comparison table should have been $431,962, not $808,000.

The Press regrets the error.

Dry cleaning

BOYNE CITY - Boyne Laundry and Dry Cleaning now has new dry cleaning and pressing equipment. Owner Jeff Bradford's store can now provide dry cleaning that will be returned to the customer pressed and ready to wear.

"People like to have that finished look," Bradford said. "We're trying to grow the way that we see Boyne City growing."

New station

A new FM stereo radio station will make its debut soon. WKLT will be broadcasting from Kalkaska, possibly by Monday. Station officials say they will be serving a 10-county area and Charlevoix County listeners should be able to tune in at 97.7 on the dial.

One spokesman said the station will be playing "adult contemporary rock" music, similar to that of WJML in Petoskey. In fact, the station has lured a couple key personalities away from WJML. Tom Tyler will be WKLT's music director, and Marlene DeVore will be the news and public affairs director.

Station manager and part owner is Michael O'Shea, who has worked with radio and television stations in the Traverse City area for the last 10 years.

Dairy Queen

BOYNE CITY - The Dairy Queen at the corner of Water and Park Streets will soon be featuring a new look.

Owner Art Gibbs says the store is going to be expanded, with construction scheduled to begin April 1. He said the addition on the east side of the present building will include inside seating, approximately 20 tables.

The store will remain open throughout the renovation, which will probably be completed by June 1. The entire building will be done in brick and a new, red roof will be installed.

The addition will enable the DQ to remain open all year.

School collects soup labels

BOYNE CITY - The middle school media center has passed its goal of collecting 10,000 soup labels and will be purchasing a slide projector.

Librarian Flossi Brinley reports that "Six days before the deadline, we still needed 1,000 labels. Miraculously, some how we came up with 1,800. Everyone did a super job in cooperating, and it is greatly appreciated."

With the extra 800 labels, the media center will also be able to purchase a microphone to use with its cassette recorder.

In a contest to see which class could collect the most labels, the seventh grade won with a total of 3,400. The sixth grade was close behind in second place.

Mrs. Brinley says the media center will be organizing another label-saving project next year, and she urges area residents to continue saving labels from all Campbell cans.

Other products such as tomato and V-8 juice and Franco-American may also be redeemed for educational materials.

EAST JORDAN - John Gasco, a magician from Boyne City, will be performing a Family Magic Show at 7 p.m. Thursday, April 5, at the East Jordan High School auditorium.

The magic show is being done in conjunction with Family Fun Night the following evenings at the elementary school. The magic show is sponsored by the Community Education Department. Admission is $1.25 for adults and 75 cents for children.

Gasco's show includes the appearance and disappearance of live doves, card magic, metal magic (such as "swallowing" razor blades), and levitation of small objects.

He's not a magician all of the time, though. Gasco also works as a lineman for Consumers Power Co.

He has been performing magic ever since he met a magic shop owner three years ago. He started a magic club in Petoskey two years ago.

Everybody loves bowling

BY KAY SEVERINSEN

It's the agony -- your beautiful hook ball that won you a $20 prize in January totters on the edge and then plops into the gutter.

It's the ecstasy -- when your average is 152 and you bowl 670 in three games and your teammates are so thrilled they cry.

That's bowling, which lures more local residents to line its shiny lanes than any other sport. In Boyne City there are more than 500 adult bowlers; in East Jordan, over 300.

And we are not talking casual, once-in-awhile bowlers, here. We are talking once, twice and three-times a week bowlers, some of whom may dream about strikes and splits.

Many of them start bowling at the age of 10 or younger and there are several hundred local grade school children in league bowling. It gets in their blood and they often continue for decades.

Greg Boswell of East Jordan has been bowling for 40 or 50 years, he says. Since the '30s, he thinks the biggest change in the sport has been the advance of automatic pin spotters, invented after World War II.

"Pin boys were a problem," he recalls. "They weren't steady. Without automatic spotters you wouldn't have the sport we have today."

Bud Bates of Boyne City says that when he started bowling 37 years ago, the Boyne City lanes offered "duck pins," about one-third the size of today's pins.

"You palmed the ball then," he says. "It was real small and didn't have holes."

But today, bowling is popular because it offers a fairly inexpensive way to get exercise during winter, a chance to compete, improve skills and chat with friends.

Bowling season runs from early September until around Easter with tournaments running through May.

"There's not a lot to do in the winter," says Rex Judkins, one of Boyne City's most active bowlers. "But Judy and I get so wrapped up in bowling the winter just flies by. As a matter of fact, it's hard to get people in to bowl if it is a nice day. But if it's raining or snowing, they're here."

Rex is secretary-treasurer of the Boyne City Men's Bowling Association and the Wednesday Night Fraternal Bowling League. Judy Judkins is secretary-treasurer of the Tuesday Women's League and of the Sunday Sunsetters Mixed League. Secretaries handle membership and substitute lists and are generally the most busy of all officers, the Judkins said.

Another of bowling's attractions is that anyone, even a klutz, can participate.

"We don't care about skill," says Judy Judkins. "Everybody gets a handicap (an additional number of points, based upon average score) and that is a great equalizer. Sometimes it turns out that a low average bowler can be your most improved player."

Some leagues play competitively and other play just for fun.

Don and Debbie Peck of Boyne City play to compete with each other, they say teasingly. And while Don's average is 185 and Debbie's is 157, Don is worried now. Last week Debbie bowled 673 (actual score) in three games.

"I just started crying," Debbie says. "Then my whole team started crying. It was great."

Beginning bowlers needn't make any initial investment in equipment, but those who become committed to the sport usually buy a ball, case and shoes. All three can be purchased for about $75, Rex Judkins said.

And for skilled bowlers, that price can be made back quickly at tournaments.

"At a tournament a couple weeks ago, the top prize was $500," Judkins added. "That's one big reason tournaments are popular. It's also a chance to outbowl the other guy and you think it's your one chance to get hot."

For many, out-of-town tournaments are also a chance to get a little rowdy and have a good time.

"We usually make a family event out of it," Rex said. "But for instance, in a couple weeks 35 men's teams will meet in Traverse City. There'll be about 80 men from Boyne City."

Who knows? Maybe they'll come home a little richer.

After all, as Gene Plite, owner of Gemini Lanes in East Jordan says, "You don't have to be a superstar to win."

Don Peck shows how it's done at the Boyne City Lanes. Peck and his wife, Debbie, are two of the hundreds of bowlers who keep the lanes busy. [Photo by Kay Severinsen.]

'Birdie' coming to Boyne

BOYNE CITY - Spring traditionally means an ambitious musical by the Boyne City High School Drama Department, and "Bye, Bye, Birdie" has been slated as this year's production.

The comedy about Fifties rock 'n' roll idol Conrad Birdie will be performed

May 3, 4 and 5. The cast, which is directed by teachers Bob and Jackie Wollenberg, has been practicing since February.

Since the new elementary school has an auditorium, the musical will be performed there this year, rather than at the Boyne Theatre as in past years.

Students playing lead roles in "Bye, Bye, Birdie" are Terry Morgan, Steve Doneth, Mark Rokus, Laura Moore, Tim Hamlin, Cindy Morgan and Ann Lewis.

Musical director for the production is Cindy Eineder, and Cindy Willson is the pianist. Both are BCHS graduates.

Vern Whiteford celebrates 80th

More than 100 people wished Vern Whiteford happy birthday at a surprise party on his 80th birthday recently. The party was organized by Vern's daughters, Ann Doty of Grayling and Helen Isaman of Troy. Vern was mayor of East Jordan for eight years in the 1940's and 50's, and he retired after 32 years as a store owner in 1964.

"I still like to keep active," the octagenarian says, and there's no doubt about that. Vern is a member of the county Social Services Board and Commission on Aging. Happy 80th Vern!

The biggest saying in East Jordan this past week was "boy the snow sure is melting", two days later it was "It sure feels like winter again."

I received a comment from a local person and thought it would be worth printing: "The new renovation look should blend in with the East Jordan Iron Works. The town should have a rustic iron look to it, but in a quaint way. The modern look should be across the lake. We could have a new town look and old town."

SURVEY QUESTION

Ten mothers and fathers with school age children were called on this week's survey question and here are their answers. 100 percent said yes!

Question: Do you think sex education should be taught in our schools as long as it is not a required course?

Definitely it should be taught. In my mother's younger days it wasn't even whispered about. It would teach the kids the right things instead of the wrong.

Nowadays children grow up so quick I think it's a good idea.

People try to ignore that part of life-- children from ages three on have a natural curiosity, by high school age the facts should be given to them straight.

Most of them learn sex from other kids who don't know the facts and sex education would teach them the true facts.

Adult sex education would be another excellent idea too.

It is sometimes hard for us parents to explain certain things to our little ones about sex and the teacher would be better educated on the subject.

Let's start them out on learning the facts at the age of five because my little one is five and is full of questions.

As long as the teacher is very qualified.

Then the kids would understand the beauty of sex and not make it into a laughing matter.

There are a lot of things us parents don't know ourselves that a teacher would be able to discuss with them.

Next week's Survey Question: Do you think smoking in public should be prohibited?

At age 80, Vern Whiteford is still going strong. His relatives and many friends are thankful for that.

Community events

Seeing stars?

A class in basic astronomy begins April 2 at 8:30 p.m. at the East Jordan High School. The eight-week course will be instructed by Alan Pareis and will include the origins of the universe and solar system, descriptions of planets the sun and basic star types.

By the end of the course students will be able to recognize and identify basic constellations in Northern Michigan skies. To register, call East Jordan Community Education office, 536-3241.

Bake sale

The Charlevoix County 4-H Clubs will be sponsoring bake sales to raise money for 4-H camp scholarships. On Friday, March 30, the sales will be at the B&C Family Center, Boyne City; Oleson's in Charlevoix; and the Northwestern State Bank, East Jordan.

Getting historical

The Charlevoix Area Historical Society will meet at 8 p.m. Tuesday, April 3 in the Community Room of the First State Bank of Charlevoix. A calendar of events for summer will be presented. Every student in the East Jordan Middle School is getting to select four paperback books and keep them for his own, thanks to a program called Reading is Fundamental. Here, students are picking out the first of their books last week. More will be given out in the next two months. Matching funds to help buy the $1,200 worth of books are provided by the U.S. Office of Education. The local match was provided as the American Legion contributed $330, the student council $200 and the Lions Club $100. Middle School Reading Coordinator Pam Allen says the purpose of the program is "to motivate children to read. Each child chooses four books to keep and uses them simply for the joy of owning and reading. It helps show that reading is more than school work. It can be fun. [Press photo by Jim Baumann.]

FREE CONTOUR ANALYSIS EXAMINATION FOR VICTIMS OF CHRONIC OR ACUTE PAIN

The International Pain Control Institute in conjunction with New York Chiropractic College is presently engaged in what is the most extensive research program ever undertaken by the chiropractic profession. This research is directed toward determining the relationship between health problems and spinal misalignments and utilizes a screening process called Contour Analysis.

Volunteers are being sought for screening. Contour Analysis enables taking a three-dimensional picture (called Moire photography) of the topography of the surface of the spine to detect spinal stress deviations. This analysis will be correlated with leg deficiency, patient symptomatology, and levels of spinal tenderness. An analysis of this type can reveal such things as normal and abnormal stress patterns, spinal curvature, muscle spasms, muscle imbalance, spinal distortions, and scoliosis.

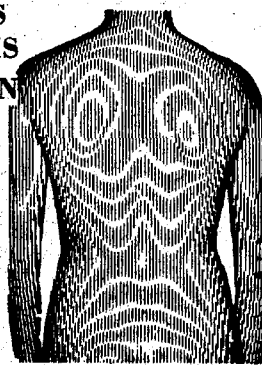

There is no charge to participating volunteers, since the doctors are contributing their time, service, and facilities for the program. Final processing and evaluation will be done at the New York Chiropractic College.

Anyone wishing to be a volunteer may telephone participating doctors directly for information of an appointment.

But be careful

Go fly a kite!

Every year, says R. G. Dahlquist, Consumers Power Company's area manager, youngsters look forward to kite flying time. Now that the season is here, a few timely tips to the youngsters may be necessary.

Dahlquist urged parents and school officials to warn children of the dangers of flying kites near electric lines. Major problems usually occur when a kite is tangled in electric wires and the young person attempts to free it, Dahlquist said.

Dahlquist offered some basic rules for safe kite flying. Having your children learn them could help avoid trouble, he noted.

1. Use dry string -- not wire or anything metallic.
2. Use wood and paper or plastic in your kite -- not wire or metal.
3. Fly your kite on days when there is no rain.
4. Avoid busy streets and highways while flying your kite.
5. Don't fly your kite near television or radio antennas.
6. Keep away from any electric wires.
7. If your kite does get snagged in a power line, don't try to pull on the string or climb the utility pole. It's better to lose a kite than to lose your life.

8. If you see a kite tangled in electric lines, call Consumers Power and let them know the location.

CITY OF EAST JORDAN
FERN L. MORRIS, City Clerk

PROCEEDINGS OF EAST JORDAN CITY COUNCIL

The East Jordan City Council met in regular session Tuesday, March 20, 1979 at 7:30 p.m., Mayor Meredith presiding and all members except Fox were present. Minutes were approved, authorization was given to pay $67,733.78 in bills as presented and the necessary transfers were made.
Action taken included repealing Ordinance 60 (which regulated the hours when intoxicating beverages may be sold, and when business establishments handling such beverages may remain open) and using State law to govern this.

Reports were heard that a demonstration of Punch
Card voting will be held in Charlevoix, March 21st;
the Annual regional meeting of the Michigan
Municipal League will be held in Alpena May 10th;
there will be a meeting with the local Township
Boards to discuss Ambulance & Fire Contracts March 24th at 10 a.m.; and Charlevoix County has advised that the Equalization Department will not be able to do the assessing functions for local units after March 15, 1980.

Consideration of establishing a Commercial Redevelopment District was tabled to allow further study and better understanding of the Act. The question of what to do about the BOCA code (Basic Housing Code) was tabled while Council studies the recommendations offered by the City Attorney.

A bid for some property on the Southwest corner of State & S. Maple having been accepted as high bid, authorization was given for the purchase to be paid from the General Funds of the City.

A resolution of "Thanks to all who donated" was adopted in behalf of the Ambulance Fund and a decision was made to use any unspent budgeted Fire Department funds at the end of the year to repay the Fire Equipment fund for the loan used to purchase the new truck for the Fire department.

Meeting adjourned at 9:27 p.m.
A copy of the official minutes of the above meeting are posted on the bulletin board of City Hall for perusal during normal office hours.

Ken Gahn of B&C Market's men's basketball team leaps high on defense in a game earlier this year. Gahn's defense and playmaking helped lead B&C to its third consecutive league championship.

B&C wins it all again

For the third year in a row B&C Market has won the Tri-City Basketball League.

B&C clinched the title Sunday at Boyne Falls by beating Northwestern State Bank 106-99 while FBT, which had been tied for first with B&C, lost to East Jordan Iron Works 90-74.

The win gave B&C the second round championship with an 8-1 record. The league championship was to have been decided in a playoff between the first and second round champs, but B&C also won the first round.

Dave Peck led B&C in scoring with 24 points. Brad Upton had 20, while Ken Gahn had 15. Tim Hardy had 14 and Terry Urman had 13 as the winners put five players in double figures.

Al Looze of Northwestern was the game's leading scorer with 39 points. Max Houck had 17 and Kirk Kujawski added 14.

Mike Reibieg led the Iron Works with 30 points in their upset of FBT. Ken Griffin had 27 and Dennis Dominic added 20.

John Nachzel had 24 for FBT, while Jim Danbert scored 18 and Larry Taylor 14.

Northwestern State Bank and Boyne River Inn finished the second round tied for third place with 6-3 records. After being down by a point at halftime, BRI blew out Stevens Concrete in the third quarter for a 102-85 victory.

Terry Elzinga had 28 points to lead the winners, while Kim Hocquard added 19 despite playing in just the first half. Chuck Stanek had 20, Bill Anzell 16 and Leonard Puroll 11.

Brian Balser of Stevens was the game's leading scorer with 30 points. Steve Bartlett had 18 while Ken Doty added 16 and Joe McElroy 14.

Sir Jack's ended the second round with a 4-5 record by beating Charlevoix County State Bank, which finished the season without a win. Tim Crego had 32 points for the winners, while Bob Winhusen had 30. Bill Korthase had 18 and Rob Britton had 14.

For the bank, Rich Roberts had 32 points and Ed Roberts added 16.

3M Gas beat Parrish Chevrolet 86-72 as Bernie Kondrat, Terry Erber and Greg Growbowski all had 18 points. Alan Gasco added 16.

Tom Beyer led Parrish with 23 points, while Craig Tompkins, Darrel Korthase and Kevin Hocquard all scored 14.

"Fire insurance is fine. But who pays your salaries and other expenses while your store's being fixed?"

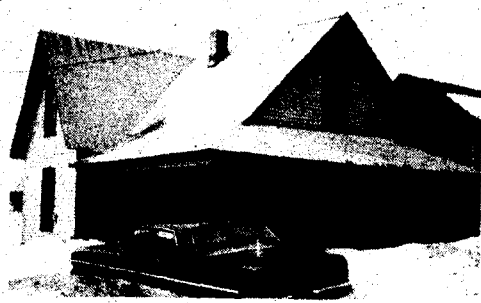

"We'll not only fix the store, but with an Auto-Owners Business Interruption policy, we'll even pay your salaries, interest and other continuing expenses while you're in repair."

Auto-Owners Insurance is for business owners, too.
