Gone fishin'

The East Jordan city dock is a popular place to spend a few hours on a sunny spring afternoon. Even though most of the lake is still covered with ice and the fishing wasn't very good, a dozen fishermen were on the dock just before sundown one day last week. The anglers predicted it would be another week before steelhead and rainbow trout would be starting their runs up the Jordan River -- and the action will pick up considerably at that time. ## Community Center fix-up is in city budget

EAST JORDAN - A new city budget, which includes $70,000 for renovating the Community Center, was unveiled at the city council meeting Tuesday.

A public hearing on the proposed budget will be held in conjunction with the next council meeting at 8 p.m. Tuesday, April 19. After the hearing, changes may be made and the budget will be adopted.

The budget proposal calls for the same property tax rate as last year -- 14.75 mills. But because property valuations have increased, the 14.75 mills will bring in about $220,000, up from $199,858 last year.

However, the $220,000 in local tax revenue is only one-third of the city's budgeted general fund income. Other sources include revenue sharing, CETA funds, ambulance and landfill fees, vehicle gas and weight taxes and numerous others.

Total expenditures for the general fund are budgeted at $661,775, up from $672,647 last year. Including other "self supporting" funds such as the tourist park and sewer and water funds, the total city budget is $915,275, down from $950,026 last year.

Finance Committee Chairman Harry Watson said his committee has included the renovation of the rear of the Community Center because they want "to try to provide some lasting project for the community each year."

"The only reason we can even think about this is we're running a real tight ship," Watson said. "This year, the people who prepared the budgets for each department discovered the difference between needing something and wanting something. We had a little cutting and slicing to do here and there."

To squeeze out the $70,000 for the Community Center, many other departments will be spending less in the coming year than they did last year.

The street budget was reduced from $172,520 to $142,850. The police, fire and ambulance budgets were cut by a total of more than $20,000 because equipment needs were not as great this year, Watson said.

For the second time this year, the city council has been approached with plans for a mobile home park.

The council set a public hearing for 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, April 19, on this latest request, which was made by local contractor Jim Petrie.

Petrie is proposing a 59-lot mobile home park on a 12-acre site on the north side of Deer Lake Road adjacent to the eastern city limits.

Earlier this year, realtor Ben Schenck had proposed a mobile home development for M-66 on the west side of the city. Action is still pending on that request, as the city planning commission has asked Schenck for an environmental impact study.

EAST JORDAN - A young Grand Rapids native who is just completing his residency in family practice will join the East Jordan Family Health Center July 1.

The health center board agreed to hire Mitch Carey to be the community's new doctor after interviewing him Friday night.

The decision was made just one month after Dr. Klaus Hergt notified the board he would be leaving East Jordan on June 1.

The agreement between Dr. Carey and the health center is only verbal at this point, but both parties say there is no doubt that Carey will be coming here.

Part of the reason no papers have been signed is that the federal government may reimburse the health center for Carey's salary for two years.

The U.S. Public Health Service Corps put the local health center in contact with Dr. Carey in December. The public health service paid Dr. Carey's expenses to attend medical school with the understanding that he could work in a medically underserved area for two years to pay back the loan.

In December, the local health center had been led to believe East Jordan would qualify as a medically underserved area.

In late February, the public health service told the health center that East Jordan would not qualify after all. Now that Dr. Hergt has resigned, the health center is appealing that decision. If they get the public health corps designation they seek, the health center will be reimbursed for Carey's salary for two years, and Carey will not have to repay his loan. His salary has not yet been determined.

But the health center board likes Carey, and Carey likes East Jordan -- and even if the health corps designation is not approved, Carey will be hired anyway.

Health Center Administrator Neal Colburn summed it up this way: "Mitch has waited long enough, and the board really wants him to come aboard."

Colburn pointed out that Dr. Carey is exactly the kind of doctor the board was looking for. His specialty is family practice.

Dr. Hergt, who has worked at the health center for a year and a half, is a surgeon. He is leaving East Jordan so he can devote more time to surgery. He will be associated with Community Memorial Hospital in Cheboygan.

Carey said he likes family practice because "You see a lot more variety. Sometimes I treat four or five different diseases -- some of which are hardly mentioned in the textbooks -- in a given afternoon."

"I think I'd get tired of concentrating on just one thing all of the time," he said.

"Of course, there are drawbacks to family practice, too. You can't be an expert at everything. But if I can't treat something myself, at least I'm able to recognize what the problem is and refer it to a specialist. That's how I see my job."

Carey is now completing a three-year residency in a family practice program in Saginaw. He said he has been concentrating on internal medicine, obstetrics and pediatrics during his residency.

He was born in Grand Rapids and graduated from Creston High School and Grand Valley College. He went to medical school at Wayne State University in Detroit.

Carey will be 29 in July. He and his wife Nancy went to high school together, and they have been married for nine years. They have an eight year old son, Mickey.

Nancy works as a registered nurse in a coronary care unit in Saginaw. She may take some college courses or work as a nurse when they come to this area, although Carey said he did not think it would be appropriate for husband and wife to work together at the East Jordan Family Health Center.

He said he and his wife were attracted to the East Jordan area because of "the woods, the hills and the water. We really like that part of Michigan. It doesn't have any of the big city problems which, quite frankly, I'd like to escape from."

The way you vote might be changing

You might find something different the next time you go into a voting booth.

Charlevoix County officials are considering a new punch card voting system, which they say would make voting easier and provide faster election results.

Under the system, which would cost the county approximately $50,000, voters would find a small booklet in front of them when they enter the booth.

The voter inserts the punch card into a slot so it lines up with the proper offices on the ballot. He then uses a metal stylus, similar to a ballpoint pen without any ink in it, to punch the card in spots next to the name of the desired candidate.

The company that sells the equipment gave a demonstration last week attended by 14 township and city clerks. Boyne City Clerk Tom Garlock and East Jordan Clerk Fern Morris both say they favor the new system, and said the general response at the meeting was favorable.

"I think it's the answer to most of our problems, at least when it comes to voting," Morris said. East Jordan has never switched from paper ballots to voting machines, Morris says, because, "I was certain punch card voting was the coming thing."

The County Commission heard about the proposed voting system at its last meeting and referred it to the Ways and Means Committee, which deals with county finances. County Clerk Clarence Rabach said he doesn't know when the commission will make a decision, but he said it must come fairly soon because the county has to start planning for the 1980 primary election. "We have to look at the 1980 election now," he said.

Rabach said that while the county would have to make a significant financial commitment, the township would benefit financially because they will need fewer election inspectors. "They are the ones who will experience the biggest savings," he said.

He said Charlevoix Township, which spent $528 in the last election on poll workers, could have saved $348 if it had used punch card voting.

And the new system wouldn't be throwing people out of work who desperately needed the jobs, he said. "In some precincts," he said, "we had a dickens of a time finding people to work."

Rabach said punch cards can be used for more than one election, another savings. He said the county would also save $500-$1000 because it now has to print many extra ballots in case of a heavy voter turnout.

With punch card voting, every voter will use the same booklet with the names and parties of the candidates. Rabach said the county will also be able to cut down the number of precincts, from 33 to 23.

Absentee ballots have become increasingly popular in recent elections, especially in Charlevoix and among senior citizens. If the county goes to a punch card system, absentee voters will receive a small disposable pointed device to punch the names of their choice on the ballots.

All voters, absentee and regular, will put their ballots in a sealed envelope after voting and deposit them with the election worker. The envelopes stay sealed until they are added up in the computer at the county clerk's office.

Rabach said election workers usually put in long days, and tend to make more mistakes than the computer would. "The chance for error is much less with the mechanical counting system than with exhausted people at the end of a long day," he said.

The system was shown to city and township clerks and others at a recent demonstration, and the response was favorable, according to Rabach, Morris, and Boyne City Clerk Tom Garlock. Emmet and Presque Isle County have recently bought the punch card systems.

Jack Patriarche of the Michigan Municipal League said the punch card system has generally worked well, although he said Detroit had some administrative problems.

Patriarche was city manager of East Lansing when that city went to punch cards in the early 70's. "It worked beautifully for us," he said.

"We never had any problems with it and the public accepted it real well."

Charlevoix County voters will see something like this when they go to vote if the county adopts a punch card voting system. The system uses computers to rapidly count ballots. The County Commission will make the final decision.

Townships plan road improvements

Annual meetings were held in most Charlevoix County townships Saturday, March 31. Because of new legislation, some townships will meet later in the year. Evangeline Township meets this Saturday.

Township meetings are one of the most direct forms of democracy in our government. Any registered voter can attend and take part in the deliberations. Annual budgets are approved, with most of the money usually going towards road construction.

The following is a wrap-up of activity at the various township meetings:

MELROSE

The Melrose Township Board considered a proposal to allocate two mills of tax money for operation of the township. One mill would go for road construction and another half mill would help pay for the fire department. Another half mill would go into a long-range capital improvement budget category.

A special election on the proposed millage will probably be held in May.

The township approved a $90,200 budget, of which $30,000 will go towards road expenses. The board also discussed an ambulance contract with Boyne City.

BAY

The paving of Pincherry Road is one of the major items in the $59,500 budget approved by Bay Township. Of that sum, $35,000 will go towards road construction.

Supervisor Carl Skornia said the township isn't sure yet whether the county road commission will have time to pave the road this summer.

Also approved is the interior and exterior painting of the township hall.

HUDSON

Fire protection was one of the main topics of discussion in Hudson Township. The township has been getting its fire service, for a fee, from Vanderbilt and Elmira, but part of the township could be better served by Boyne Falls.

Hudson used to get its fire service from Boyne Falls, but then felt it was too expensive. But now the two may sit down and try to reach an agreement.

A motion to pave Huffman Lake Road from Camp 10 Road to the Otsego County line was tabled.

BOYNE VALLEY

"Nothing important happened," was Supervisor Joe Topolinski's assessment of his sparsely attended meeting. The township budget was not approved because a second revenue sharing meeting has not yet been held.

Clerk Louise Magee said new legislation enables townships to adopt the budget on dates other than that of the annual meeting.

EVELINE

A budget of $70,126 was approved for Eveline, one of the county's largest townships. Road work will continue on Ridge Road and work will also be scheduled for Mountain and Sequoia Roads.

Sewer work will continue on both sides of the lake. Approximately 20 people were on hand for the annual meeting, according to Treasurer Linda Hildebrandt of Advance.

HAYES

The Hayes township board Saturday approved a $165,853 budget for the coming year. Of that, $68,000 is earmarked for a new township hall to be built sometime in the next five or 10 years, according to township Supervisor Lee Sneathen.

Another $25,000 will go toward general road improvements. The township would like to see the southern part of Pincherry Road improved, Sneathen added, but improvements would have to be a joint venture with Bay Township, which has joint jurisdiction.

Other monies will go for zoning, salaries and fire and ambulance services, Sneathen said.

NORWOOD

Norwood's annual township meeting drew the largest crowd of all meetings: 35 persons. Clerk Nancy Ritsema attributed the turnout to an involved citizenry concerned with the roads, the park and taxes.

Nearly all wanted the township's road improvement priority system reevaluated. Some formerly unused roads, such as Warner, Lake Shore Drive and Clipperview are now more populated and in need of repair, Ritsema said. The township has a budget of $13,400 allocated for road improvement.

Changes in the priority system will be discussed at a meeting at 7:30 p.m. April 12 in the County Road Commission Building in Boyne City.

Township residents also learned Saturday that $3,000 has been budgeted for the township park. Because of problems with vandalism, garbage and dune erosion in the park, between $2,000 and $2,500 has been allocated as matching funds for a Michigan Coastal Management Federal Program site analysis and feasibility study.

The township should be notified in July or August if the grant is approved. The federal share would be 80 percent, the local share, 20 percent. Work would then begin in October, 1979, Ritsema said.

The townships total annual budget is $32,103. However, estimated receipts are only $24,600, Ritsema added. The township has no voted millage, but may have to ask for one this year, she said.

BEAVER ISLAND

The St. James and Peaine townships of Beaver Island have joined to consider buying 50 acres in Iron Ore Bay in the southwest part of the island to convert to parkland.

The townships have applied for a Michigan Land and Trust Fund Grant to finance the project. If the grant is approved, island residents will decide

Child-rearing talks start

EAST JORDAN - A discussion group for parents to discuss children and share their child-rearing philosophies is being formed next week.

The discussion group will meet for the next eight weeks from 7 to 9 p.m. at the elementary school. The first meeting will be April 10.

The group is being sponsored by the school Community Education Department. Discussion leader will be Arline Rullman, who has worked with the school's Parent Readiness Education Program (PREP) for the past two years. She has been an elementary teacher for a number of years.

"The group is for all parents," Mrs. Rullman says. "We'll discuss children's behavior, various methods of discipline, how to set sensible limits and how to develop independence and responsibility."

"No parent is perfect. We'll share things that have worked well for us and we'll share our problems and try to find solutions."

Babysitting will be provided, by women from the Presbyterian Church, and a donation of $10 per couple or person is asked. If money is a problem, you are welcome to come free of charge.

The discussion group will be limited to 10 couples or 20 people, so registration is necessary. Call Community Education Director Jamie Baumann at 536-3241.

Career help Tuesday in Petoskey

An occupational awareness night will be presented at Petoskey High School Tuesday, April 10 from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. by counselors from Charlevoix and Petoskey High Schools in cooperation with the Charlevoix-Emmet I.S.D. Representatives from 10 career areas will be available to explain their occupation and the local job outlook.

The program is designed to guide high school students seeking careers and to help adults considering career-changes. Some of the careers to be represented are: welding, electronics, auto mechanics, construction, food services, graphic arts, physical therapy, nursing, law enforcement and the armed services. More than 30 guest speakers will be present.

Career sessions will last 30 minutes and guests may attend three sessions. The Michigan Occupational Information System will give aptitude tests to undecideds. For more information, call Denny Aenis at 547-9947 or Gayle Kaczynski at 547-2811.

Five burglary arrests

BOYNE CITY - Three local men and two juveniles have been arrested for involvement in 18-20 burglaries, according to Police Chief John Talboys.

Arrested for breaking and entering, Talboys said, were David Larsen, 17, and Don Baxter, 19, both of Boyne City; William Malcomson, 28, of Melrose Township; and two juveniles.

Warrants are also out for Dana Crandell, 18, Boyne City, who Talboys said has apparently left town.

Larsen, Baxter and Malcomson were in jail Monday awaiting trial, Talboys said. The suspects were believed to have been working as a group, he said.

Property recovered totalled approximately $4,000 and included televisions, skis, silverware and money, the chief said.

The investigation leading to the arrests was conducted by Officers Mike Wheat and Randy Howard. "They did an excellent job," Talboys said.

Wilson taxes

WILSON TOWNSHIP - The Board of Review met again March 27 and 28 to hear complaints from residents who thought their tax assessments were too high. The meeting was called by Clerk Patricia Fall while Supervisor Harvey Crozier was out of town.

The first board meetings were held before residents received their tax notices, making it difficult for them to complain to the Board of Review. Township Supervisor Crozier said there was no need to have additional hearings because all residents received uniform assessment increases depending on what type of property they own.

Clerk Falls said she learned of Crozier's plan not to have any more review board meetings from a story in The Charlevoix County Press. She then called the Michigan Township Association and was told she could call another meeting since she was in charge during Crozier's absence.

"She took it upon herself to try to be a bigshot," Crozier said, adding that he thinks the meetings were legal.

But Mrs. Fall says, "We weren't trying to do anything behind Harvey's back," and says he would have been consulted if he had been in the area. She added that the first Board of Review meetings weren't legal, saying that the board members were never officially sworn down.

Bus service

Senior citizens got some good news last week. The County Commission voted unanimously to seek funding for a state program that could provide as many as five buses for senior use. The county presently has two buses, used by seniors to go to meal programs and for shopping and doctor visits, but funding will run out this fall.

Faced with the possible loss of the bus service, the Commission on Aging found alternative funding from the Department of Highways and Transportation.

Commission Director Art Saworski is confident the county will receive the funding now that the county commission has approved it. "The funding is more or less guaranteed," he said. "The only question is when we are going to get it."

The money is for a three year program. In the third year, the county must pay one fourth of the cost. Saworski said he isn't certain yet how much the county's share will be.

Are we prepared?

CHARLEVOIX - There is at least one Charlevoix County resident who has been following the reactor crisis at the Three Mile Island, Pennsylvania nuclear power plant with special interest.

"I've just been glued to the television set," said Alice Tunison, the county's civil defense director since 1963. "It gives us more of an insight into how these things work."

"It's been helpful in that it makes people more aware of what we've been telling them for years -- there is a danger in any nuclear plant and we should be building shelters in existing buildings."

She said this county has a recently updated evacuation plan developed by the civil defense department. The plan must be updated because it involves so many branches of government, including police, fire, social services and health departments. "Everyone has their part to play," she said.

Tunison said personnel changes in these departments make it important that the plan be periodically reviewed. "So new people will know what they are supposed to do in an emergency."

She said Charlevoix County's evacuation plan is flexible, and would vary according to the circumstances surrounding an emergency.

In case of an emergency at Big Rock Nuclear Plant near Charlevoix on U.S. 31, "It would all depend on which way the wind is blowing," she said. "If it is blowing from the north, it would be Charlevoix County's problem."

"It would be up to the police to block certain roads to get people to go in the right direction."

Tunison said officials at Big Rock have always been "very cooperative" in helping civil defense plan for emergencies. She said that local residents have never been concerned about possible safety hazards from the nearby plant, built in 1962.

"Wherever there are nuclear plants you have a certain amount of danger," she said. "But most people who live around here aren't afraid of the plant."

Tunison said the emergency in Pennsylvania has helped calm a fear of hers. "One of our biggest problems has been that we don't have a warning system," she said. "I've worried about that for a long time."

"We don't have the sirens that they do in other places," she said. But the present emergency has shown her that the word of a nuclear crisis spreads like wildfire, so notifying people would be the least of her problems.

But no matter what the civil defense department does, nobody can make people do anything against their wills. "You can't make people leave their homes," the civil defense director says.

Townships

whether to impose a millage to provide matching funds.

St. James Township's budget of $29,000 includes airport costs, public restrooms, planning and zoning and funds to purchase a former U.S. Coast Guard Station for a township hall.

Peaine Township's budget of $21,000 also finances the airport, and also has earmarked $12,000 to buy land for a new township hall.

WILSON

Wilson Township board Saturday approved a $45,786 budget for the coming year. Approximately $20,000 of that is slated for a tar and chip surface for Tomkins Road. The road was widened and filled last year, according to township clerk Patricia Fall.

Board members discussed the problem of the 1979 property assessments arriving too late for appeal to some township residents last month. At the regular board meeting May 15, county assessors will answer questions and explain the costs of the 1980 assessment according to Falls.

Other monies go for salaries, fire and ambulance service and other roads. A motion to raise the superintendent's and treasurer's salaries by $200 was denied.

SOUTH ARM

"We had a nice meeting," said township clerk Helen Cherry. About 25 people attended. "But nobody was arguing," she said. Like everywhere, the people of South Arm are upset about increasing taxes, the clerk said.

South Arm, with a population of about 1,200 has more people and a higher budget than most townships. The coming year's budget, which was approved at the annual meeting, will be $98,519. That's an increase of nearly 28 percent from last year's budget of $77,062.

Like most townships, a one-mill tax rate provides most of South Arm's income. Of the $98,519, $4,800 in federal revenue sharing funds is the only non-local source of income.

The largest budget item is $24,000 for roads. The township board members will have to confer with the county road commission about what roads will be improved, but Cherry said they hope to be able to pave Behling Road in the Richardson Hill area, where it leads into East Jordan. "That would provide a nice shortcut to Boyne City," she said.

Other major projected expenses for the coming year are $15,000 for sewer planning services; $5,000 for an assessor; $5,300 for a fire contract and $2,300 for an ambulance contract with the city of East Jordan; $4,000 for brine to control dust on gravel roads; $2,500 salary (each) for the supervisor, clerk and treasurer; $1,000 for cemetery maintenance; and $7,000 for township trustee salaries and miscellaneous general expenses such as bookkeeping, printing and supplies.

Deadline Monday

Little election interest

With just a few days left before the deadline, few area residents have turned in petitions for school board seats in East Jordan, Boyne City and Boyne Falls.

Although the elections are not until June 11, petitions must be turned in to school administration offices by 4 p.m.

Monday, April 9. Less than 25 signatures are required on petitions in most districts.

Four petitions have been turned in by East Jordan residents. Ed Drenth, an incumbent, and Tom Breakey Jr. have both filed for a one-year term, and incumbent Herb Griffin has filed for a four-year term. Two four-year terms must be filled in East Jordan, however. Long-time board member Bruce Malpass has said he will not run for re-election.

In Boyne City, incumbent board member Tom Neumann is the only one who has filed for one of two four-year vacancies. The other incumbent, Ray Towne, told the Press last month he was not sure whether he will run again.

Two seats are also up for election in Boyne Falls. Superintendent Bill Upton is on vacation this week, and office personnel said they did not know if any petitions have been turned in.

The two Boyne Falls board seats are now held by Jeannette Svenski, who has said she does not plan to run again, and Louis Matelski.

Proposed Hudson beach doesn't please everyone

HUDSON TOWNSHIP - After over three years of controversy, the debate over the beach at Thumb Lake is flaring up again.

Township officials have reached a tentative agreement to lease approximately eight acres of land, including 750 feet of beachfront, from the Lake Louise Christian Association for $1 a year for 50 years.

The lake was formerly known as Lake Louise, and the land around it is owned by the Christian Community, which was given the land early in this century.

Some say the township is getting a good deal; others say the public has used 1,500 feet of the lakefront for years, and shouldn't be confined to half of that now.

The lease agreement also calls for the county road commission moving Magee Road, a narrow gravel road that now runs along the east end of the lake near the water. The road would be moved back from the lake, about 500 feet to the east. The proposed park would include the land west of the proposed new road.

"More land will be available for use as a park than is presently used today," says Township Supervisor Ron Czinki, who thinks opponents of the park are passing up a good deal. "It's a golden opportunity for Hudson Township," he said.

Czinki said the property that the Christian Community is offering is worth approximately $200,000. "It's really a gift, is what it is," he said.

Not all township officials favor the agreement, and Czinki said an advisory township vote might be held.

The opponents of the designated park feel it's wrong for any one organization to have complete control over the only lake in the area. Some say the township should refuse the lease and continue to use the entire beach until the Christian Community acts to fence off their property.

If that happens, the lease opponents would favor taking the question of lake access into court. But township attorney Bob Klevorn of Boyne City said the Christian Community has a clear right to fence off any part of its property.

"They own the whole thing, both sides of the road," he said. "And the road doesn't go to the edge of the water."

Klevorn said the water itself is probably public property, but swimmers have to cross private land to get to it.

Would the Christian Community ever fence off the entire beach if a lease agreement can't be reached? "They've never threatened us, but they have a lot of legal rights," Czinki said.

"It's their land. They can do whatever they want with it."

Czinki says the community has become concerned about traffic problems, which have grown worse in recent years as the beach becomes more crowded. He said another problem is lack of toilet facilities, leading beachgoers to go across the road to relieve themselves.

"It's much more hazardous on the road than it was 15 or 20 years ago," Czinki said. "The Christian Community is not going to tolerate that situation the way it is now."

The narrow road has no parking nearby. Parking would be provided in the proposed park, and the Christian Community would share the cost of fencing off the park from the rest of the lakefront.

Those opposing the park don't want to make any public comment yet, but they object to losing part of the swimming area that has been used by area residents for generations.

"They just don't want anything changed," Klevorn said of the opposition. "They seem to feel they have established a right to use the lake without permission of the Christian Community."

As Supervisor Czinki said: "If somebody always hunted on your land and nobody ever said anything about it, what would happen if you finally decided you didn't want them hunting anymore? They would probably become very irate."

Consider lakefront setback rules

The proposed condominium development of the old tannery property in Boyne City is back in the news again, but in a somewhat different form.

The City Commission Monday night gave preliminary approval to close Front Street for the project. The commission did the same thing last fall, but had to repeat the process because the developers, Lake Associates, have submitted a revised site plan.

Editorial

As usual, Monday's public discussion was long on emotion and short on good reasons not to go ahead with the project. The commissioners were once again accused of jumping headfirst into a project without knowing all the facts. That might have been true in the early stages, but after 13 months of intense debate and study, including a $10,000 impact study, those objections don't make much sense anymore.

Most of the arguments Monday again centered on the proposed closing of Front Street, which the developers say is needed to make their project a financial success. There appears to be no chance they will change their minds on this, and there appears to be every chance that some residents will continue to say the 270 condos aren't worth giving away the street.

Perhaps it is time to broaden the scope of the discussion. A good place to start might be the revised site plan. It calls for building fewer, but taller buildings, thereby leaving more green space on the property.

We agree with this concept, up to a point. Well-built, well-planned cluster housing is a good idea. But there is a limit to how high you can build structures without them getting so high that they overwhelm the landscape.

There is no doubt that the tannery condos would significantly alter the face of Boyne City no matter what shape and form they take. The developers have enlisted the aid of top-flight professionals to design their project and have a good track record.

But, at first glance there is one aspect of the new plans that gives us cause for concern. The new plan calls for moving some of the buildings closer to the lakefront, in some cases as close as 100 to 150 feet from the water. That might be too close.

Yes, the major attraction of buying a high-priced condo at the tannery will be its location on beautiful Lake Charlevoix. Owners of waterfront property often have a tendency to build as close to the water as possible. That enables them to use slogans such as, "The water is at your doorstep," in their advertisements.

But beautiful Lake Charlevoix wouldn't be so beautiful if it eventually became lined with housing units hugging the water. Tannery developer Rick Smith once said with pride that his first project, Wildwood on Walloon, "looks the same from a boat as it did 1,000 years ago."

He's right. You can't see the condominiums from the lake, and the project is a credit to good land use planning. But it doesn't look like Smith will be able to make the same point regarding the tannery. Even though most of the buildings will be further back from the waterfront, a bad precedent could be established.

The city has certain setback requirements in its zoning ordinance, but the distinction between setback requirements for a single family home and a large scale condominium project are unclear. That means, theoretically, that a 20-story condominium might be built as close to the water as a small cottage.

That is ridiculous and it's hard to believe that not even the planned unit development section of the city's proposed new zoning ordinance addresses this threat more completely. But that's the way it is, and the city could someday find itself faced with an unattractive but legal development hugging the shoreline somewhere on the lake. We don't need that.

We still believe the project proposed by Lake Associates for the tannery property is probably the best use possible. But there are other empty pieces of land available, and city officials would be wise to learn what they can from this first planned unit development.

This optimistic message appears on the property proposed for 270 condominium units. But the would-be developers have to go through several more steps before construction can begin.

Do they mean it?

Facelift for East Jordan?

What in the ever loving blue eyed world is this talk coming out of East Jordan? What are these strange mumbblings about giving the Swan City business district a brand new old look of elegance -- a fresh lease on commercial life?

Do they mean it, or will the idea die on the financial vine and drizzle off into the Jordan River?

East Jordan has the highest industrial payroll in Charlevoix County, and in some counties around. But all take home pay isn't taken home. It into a woman he almost married.

Gaylord did it. Central Lake did it. Kalkaska did it. Charlevoix didn't have to do it. The city was born that way.

Petoskey merchants also have a strong interest in East Jordan's activities. Witness the heavy newspaper coverage.

Back in the days when East Jordan seemed to feel it had an obligation to remain run down, I was operating a newspaper there, living off pancakes and baloney. A man came into the office to say that one day the city would rise up, shake its sins of omission and prosper. He was half merchant and half clergyman. I could not believe his prediction. For he was not the sort of prophet who could walk on water. But when he fell into the Jordan River and floated up stream, I knew he was right.

And now the time has come. The merchants have grabbed the future by the horns in meeting after meeting -- with the long missing element at work -- youth, with zip and go and no looking back. People whose future is not behind them.

One wonders if they realize what will happen when their plan succeeds. Springing into the 20th century through feverish home town financial activities could wrinkle the prospects of budding merchants in sister cities. Oh, brother!

Do they not realize that East Jordan money is as important to Boyne City as the hole is to the donut? Cutting the flow of currency could produce dark days in Boyne City.

But not so dark the cats would bump into each other. For Boyne City will prevail!

A city that survived the Great Depression with no business failure except the bank, can grow under any adversity -- so long as the city council doesn't do more for us than we can bear.

Will nuke mishap wake us up?

I think everybody figured it had to happen sooner or later.

Nuclear power advocates always pointed out that there had never been a serious accident involving a nuclear plant. But with the rapid growth of nuclear power, everyone knew it was just a matter of time.

As of this writing, it appears that the accident at the Three Mile Island nuclear power plant in Pennsylvania has been brought under control. Significant radiation leaks occurred, but a disastrous "melt-down" was avoided.

In one sense, it is good that the accident happened. It was such a close call that people will wake up to the dangers of nuclear energy.

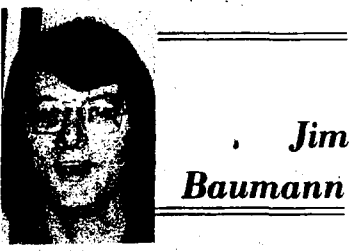

Unfortunately our "management by crisis" government always seems to need a shocking event like an oil embargo, a Watergate scandal or a nuclear accident to move politicians to action. It was, of course, ironic that the accident occurred at the same time the hit movie "The China Syndrome" is making the rounds.

The movie hasn't made it to Northern Michigan theatres yet, but I got a chance to see it when I was visiting relatives last week.

The parallels to the Pennsylvania accident are amazing -- and frightening.

Like in Pennsylvania, the accident in the movie is only a close call -- but enough to scare anyone, especially those of us who live within 15 miles of a nuclear plant.

It is scary to think that nuclear accidents can occur even when the utmost precautionary measures are taken. But the movie brings out the further possibilities for accidents that can happen when safety measures are avoided for the sake of making a profit for the electric companies that own the nuclear plants.

In the movie, power company officials are aware of possible problems in their nuclear plant but they ignore them because they will lose $500,000 a day if they shut the plant down.

And part of the original problem at the plant was that an inspector falsified documents when the plant was being built.

This is, of course, fiction. But the possibility of similar situations in real life is easily believable. In fact, there is a case in Oklahoma where a nuclear plant employee who was thought to be delivering information about falsified documents was run off a lonely highway and killed. We can only imagine what happened behind the scenes at Three Mile Island. But the initial news reports showed the predictable downplaying of the importance and severity of the accident. The first wire service story on the incident, on March 28, said "There was a possible small radiation leak... and the situation was under control."

While I hope the Pennsylvania incident makes us take a long hard look at our future use of nuclear power, I really wonder whether much will -- or can -- be done to slow it down. As a nuclear plant employee in "The China Syndrome" commented while he was watching a nuclear protest on television: "Well lady, how are you going to turn on your hair dryer?" I, too, use a hair dryer -- as well as a clothes dryer, a toaster, a television and a gas-guzzling car. Coal and oil will run out someday, and solar energy seems to offer only limited relief in the near future. There may be no way to stop nuclear power.

Marshall Sayles

bobs and weaves and twists and turns, winding up in nearby communities where merchants have grown to depend upon it for a healthy percentage of their annual business.

If a clean, well stocked business district develops in East Jordan, with workers at the looms increasing their home town patronage, the sale of aspirin tablets will jump in surrounding cities. Sick headaches will abound.

A Boyne City merchant told me that if East Jordan's business district is really modernized, it will be as embarrassing to him as the time he ran

Letters to the editor

Kicked around

Editor,

As one of the people instrumental in establishing a soccer club and program in the Boyne City area three years ago, and as informal spokesperson for the adult club, I am writing in regard to the unanswered questions and situation surrounding the soccer playing field. Briefly stated, the problem is this: there is no decent, safe playing field for the large number of Boyne City people who will be involved in soccer this summer.

Let me bring you up to date: in 1976 the city made available to the soccer club a piece of land adjacent to the new Top O' Michigan building on M-75 to be

All wet?

Editor,

I am dismayed that the Board of County Commissioners apparently went off half-cocked in sending copies of their action regarding wetland legislation to state legislators without first getting a feel for what the people in this county might feel about the matter.

In my opinion, the board appears decidedly uninformed and ill-advised on state matters.

Robert P. McKown

used as a playing field. No formal agreement was made, only a verbal OK from the city allowing the use of the land. The club did the work on the field to put it into reasonable playing condition and the city has done the maintenance, which primarily entails mowing the grass.

Since the land has been recently farmed, it was not possible to create a good playing surface because the necessary equipment was not available to the club. The club and any potential sponsors have been reluctant to invest time and money required to bring the field to a safe, pleasant level of quality since it has been indicated that the city would sell the land if the opportunity arose, and the effort would have been a waste.

The Boyne City adult club was a founding member of the present area 6 team league (with 2 more teams to be added this year), and has hosted amateur teams from Northern Michigan University, Kinloch Air Force Base, and Detroit, and would like to join the National Soccer Federation.

The soccer is improving in Northern Michigan, and the really exciting proof of the increasing popularity of soccer in this area was demonstrated last year as approximately 60 school age participants, including many young women, played in an area fall league of various age groups, to be expanded this summer.

Boyne City School Board was contacted with the hope of gaining use of the football field as a playing area; the club was allowed to play on the field for one game, but none since, for reasons beyond my comprehension. It is my hope that this letter will stimulate some constructive suggestions or concrete help from any source to help solve this problem.

It's maple syrup time; Here's how the sap runs

BY KAY SEVERINSEN

It's a sure sign of spring: clouds of steam rising from backyard sugar houses, maple trees sporting pails brimming with sap, plastic tubing running from tree to tree, automated equipment monitoring the temperature of the syrup. . . .

Wait! Automated equipment? Plastic tubing? Yes, really, for the making of maple syrup is both an old-time craft and a modern day science.

Henry Korthase of Deer Lake, 91, still taps his trees with buckets and boils down the sap on the brick, wood-burning stove he built 30 years ago. Terry Healey of Horton Bay taps 4,000 trees, via electric pump and a huge spiderweb of blue plastic tubing linking tree to tree. He processes the sap in a huge oil-fueled steamer that boils down 250 gallons of sap per hour.

Whether tapping and boiling is done the old way or the new, maple syrup making takes a lot of work. Denny Caughey of Ridge Road reports it took several days for him and a friend, Tony Williams, to tap Caughey's 500 trees. Caughey then sells his raw sap to Healey.

Sap boiling is a time consuming process and must be tended constantly to prevent burning and boiling over.

"We boiled last year," Caughey said. "But there just isn't enough profit in it unless it's on a larger scale. It's too much work unless you are just doing enough for home use. I don't have a big enough operation to have a market for it. It's mostly just a hobby."

It's mostly a hobby for Korthase too, who taps his trees by hand and has the extra chore of keeping the wood fire stoked.

"I get used to sitting here," he said in his sugar house full of steam. A retired carpenter, Korthase also built his own sugar house of logs.

When he first started making syrup in 1948 it sold for $7 a gallon, he remembers. Today it sells for about $5 a quart. But price isn't much of a one should really tap at least 10 trees to make it a worthwhile project.

And since most of the sap evaporates as steam, syruping can be a messy process if done over the kitchen stove.

"It can make the wallpaper slide right off the wall," Healey said. "It's much better to do it in an open pit outdoors or in a sugar house. Some people have done it in their fireplace."

Sap is boiled until it reaches a temperature seven degrees above the boiling point of water -- 219 degrees on most days. Boiled longer it could burn; boiled less, it's not syrup.

The steaming gold liquid is then poured through heavy flannel or Orion filters to remove residue.

Early spring (late March) produces the palest and best-tasting syrup, claims Healey.

"Later in the spring the sugar content is lower and it takes longer to boil. That gives it a darker color and a stronger off-taste," he says. "Lots of times people who say they don't like real maple syrup have had late spring syrup."

His syrup sells for $5.50 a quart. "I feel I have to ask that when it takes a gallon of fuel oil to make every quart of syrup," he says.

Those who are interested in watching the maple syrup process are welcome to visit Healey's Maplewood Farm, one mile north of Horton Bay on the Boyne City Road. But hurry, syrup season is almost over!

Here's what's cooking

Maple syrup delights

When spring comes to the north, it's maple syrup time. Anyone with sugar maple trees can tap them and make their own maple syrup.

But if you don't make your own, locally produced maple syrup is 100 percent pure and available in area

1/2 cup heavy cream
1/2 teaspoon vanilla
1/2-1 cup chopped pecans
1/2 teaspoon lemon juice

Heat the maple syrup and butter over low heat. Stir in heavy cream, vanilla and nuts. When thick add lemon juice, stir and allow to cool at room temperature. Pour over vanilla ice cream.

Or perhaps you'd like to make your own candy.

EASY MAPLE SUGAR CANDY

(1 pound)
2 cups maple syrup
1 teaspoon vanilla extract (or rum flavoring)

Boil the syrup over very low heat without stirring until it reaches the late thread stage (233 degrees). Allow it to cool about 1 hour without stirring to (110 degrees). Then add the vanilla and beat them together until it is fluffy and light. (It should be hard enough to hold its shape when formed into balls or put into candy molds.) Pack in air tight container to store.

Cake frosting is also delicious made with maple syrup.

MAPLE FROSTING

(1 cup)
2 cups powdered sugar
1 tablespoon butter
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon vanilla extract (or rum flavoring)

enough syrup to make it a good spreading consistency

Sift the sugar into a bowl and blend in the next 3 ingredients. Then add syrup a little at a time until it is thick and smooth.

After frosting the cake nuts and/or coconut sprinkled over the top really add to the flavor.

(When mixing your cake batter, maple syrup can be substituted for the sugar, making it taste much better.)

A few other ways to use maple syrup are in a glaze for ham, in baked beans, poured over apples before baking, in cheese cake or.

BAKED APPLES AND SWEET POTATOES

(serves 6)
3 large sweet potatoes, boiled skinned and sliced
3 large apples, peeled, cored, sliced
3 tablespoons butter
1 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup maple syrup

Melt butter in a large skillet and fry apples until light brown. Then arrange apples and sweet potatoes in alternate layers in a buttered casserole. Sprinkle with salt and pour the syrup over them. Dot with butter and bake in a 350 degree oven for about 35 minutes. Serve hot.

Let your imagination run wild and enjoy nature's gift of the season.

Ginger Jackson

stores. It's far superior to commercial brands which have more additives than maple syrup.

There are many more ways to serve it than just poured over pancakes. Maple syrup can be substituted for sugar in any recipe. Just use 1/4 cup syrup for every cup of sugar.

If you use it in baking, reduce the other liquid called for by 3 tablespoons for each cup syrup used.

One of my favorite ways to serve ice cream is with the following sauce.

MAPLE-PECAN SAUCE

(about 2 cups)
2 tablespoons butter
1 pint maple syrup

Q. I am discouraged and I wonder if I am losing my mind? Can you help me? I don't really know what is the matter, but I feel something awful is about to happen. It seems I fear everything. I go to bed tired and wake up tired. Sometimes my heart beats so hard the bed feels like it's shaking and keeps me awake. When I get scared I have to gasp for breath and a lump comes in my throat.

A. Believe me I have tried desperately but I just can't help myself.

Your symptoms are quite familiar and we have many similar cases on file that responded well. There must be some underlying cause for your distressing nerve symptoms and I suspect that it may be physical pressure rather than of emotional origin.

SURVEY QUESTION

Do you think smoking in public should be prohibited?

Of the 10 people called five said yes and five said no. Here are some of their comments:

No, I think it is a stupid question because all the smokers will say no and all the non-smokers yes.

No., that's taking people's freedom away so it's better to have smoking and non-smoking areas. Each individual has his own rights.

No, people have the right to do as they please and if the non-smokers don't like it they can go in another area away from us smokers.

No, why should we all suffer from non-smokers? We will all die from one thing or another so what the hell's the difference if you smoke or not?

No, it would be nice if there were a student smoking room in school, because some of us younger people like a good cigarette, too.

Yes, I'm a smoker but I think it's such a hazard to our health smoking should be prohibited altogether. Then our younger children wouldn't be raised with smoking such a big part of adult life.

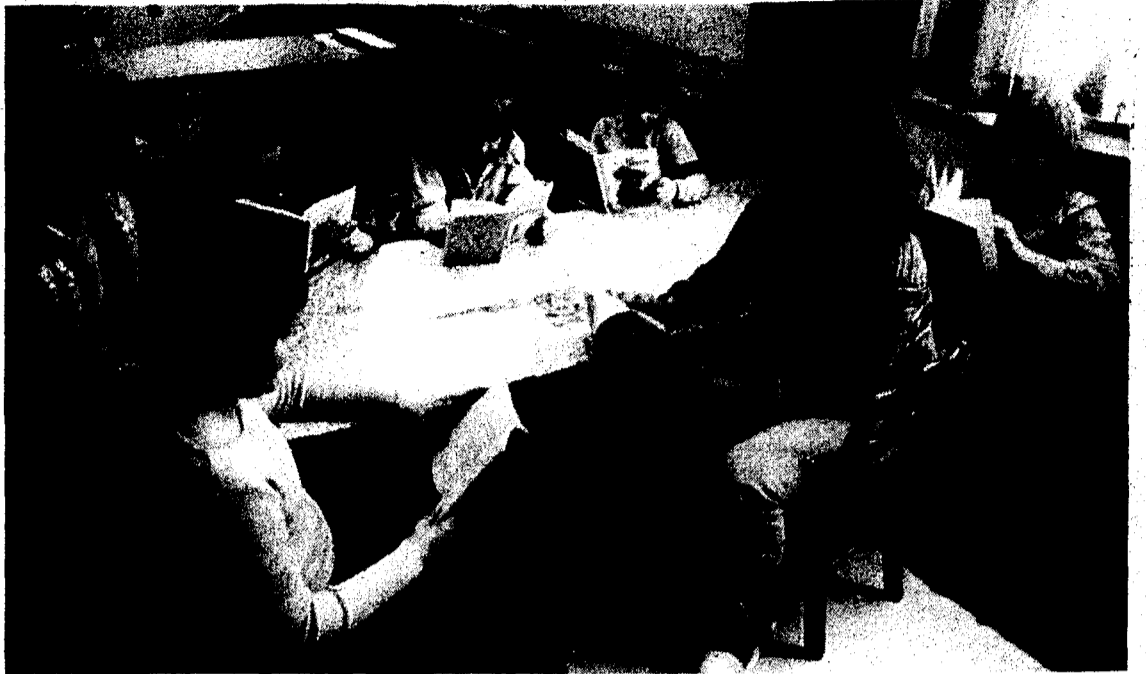

Yes, the smokers are always talking about their rights to smoke in public. Well what about non-smokers' rights?

Yes, just think how much cleaner our lungs would be and how much cleaner the air and streets would be.

Yes, it is a crime we, the American people, know what smoking can do to our health yet we keep right on smoking.

Yes, it is bad for the smokers' health and non-smokers' health.

Next week's question: Has the nuclear accident in Pennsylvania changed your opinion of nuclear power?

4-H achievement day Saturday

Spring Achievement Day will be sponsored Saturday, April 7, by the 4-H members in Charlevoix County. Projects will be on display from 2 to 5 p.m. in the Boyne City Elementary School cafeteria. A style show will be presented at 7:30 p.m. The public is welcome.

Members will bring in their projects at 9 a.m. and evaluations will be from 10 a.m. to noon. Ribbons will be awarded at noon. Projects open for public viewing in the afternoon will include arts and crafts, indoor gardening, horse science, knitting, crocheting, woodworking, cooking, photography, Christmas decorations and sewing. At 2 p.m., style show participants will have a short run through of their evening program.

About 40 members will compete in the Young, Junior and Senior categories of the style show. After the program, winners of 4-H scholarships will be announced.

The primary purpose of achievement day is to stress learning and skills, stressed Bob Bellairs, 4-H program assistant. "That is why we use evaluators instead of judges. In this way the member is judged... according to his own progress in completing his task."

Jim Douglas, right, is a Big Brother to Ken Smith. The organization needs more men like Douglas in the Boyne City-East Jordan area.

Our part of county needs Big Brothers

The Big Brothers/Big Sisters organization of Charlevoix County Inc. needs Big Brothers in the Boyne City, Boyne Falls, and East Jordan area. They have a long list of young boys waiting for older male companions.

The Big Brother/Big Sisters program requires Big Brothers to spend only one hour a week with their little brother. The organization's goal is a one-to-one companion-relationship, stressing friendship between an older male figure and a younger boy.

In many cases this relationship benefits both parties involved. A companionship of this type can alleviate loneliness and can be fun for both the Big Brother and the Little Brother, according to Nancy Wood, spokesman for the group.

Those interested in helping a young boy may call 547-6314 or write Box 192, Charlevoix, Michigan 49720.

Angry

Talk about mad! Felix Spaniak of Boyne Valley Township recently discovered that somebody cut down a beautiful 20 foot spruce tree from his property, probably during the Christmas season. ## Good news for Boyne Falls BOYNE FALLS - Monday was a happy day at Boyne Falls High School. It's no wonder why. After 20 months, the school was officially informed that it has regained its accredited status from the University of Michigan.

The university sends professional educators to different schools to see if they are good enough to be accredited. What is accreditation? Principal Carl Mosher calls it, "A yardstick of how your school measures up to other schools."

Boyne Falls lost its accreditation in July of 1977 when the school's future was in doubt due to questionable millage conditions. The district is now in the first year of a three year millage, and the U of M report cites several other areas of improvement.

When the school lost its rating, several teachers were teaching subjects other than their specialties. "We now have everybody teaching within their area of certification," Mosher said.

This was accomplished by hiring new teachers to fill areas of deficiency. Three areas that needed attention were music, counseling and chemistry. Diane Kelly is a certified music teacher and James Krowell is certified in both counseling and chemistry.

The school now also has written guidelines and goals for the libraries and is offering more courses. "We now have 51 course offerings," Mosher said, including extension courses. "That's pretty darn good for a high school with 82 kids."

Mosher said most of the work done to regain accreditation came from Superintendent Bill Upton, who was school principal when the school first became unaccredited.

"I think he's done one heck of a job," Mosher said. "And you can quote me."

Both sides confident

Front Street showdown

BOYNE CITY - Some people might become very unhappy next Monday, April 9. That's the day Circuit Court Judge Martin Breighner will hear arguments on whether a portion of Front Street should be closed to make way for the construction of 270 condominium units on the old tannery property.

The street closing has been a controversial issue in Boyne City for many months, with some residents forming a group called the Save Front Street Committee.

Both sides are confident the judge will decide in their favor. "I think he will look at it from a rational point of view and not make his decision based on emotional reasoning," said Rick Smith of Lake Associates, the group that wants to develop the property.

Carol Judkins, an opponent of the street closing, said she feels the judge will conclude the city isn't getting a good deal by closing the street.

"We know what we're giving them, but we don't know what they're giving us," she said. Mrs. Judkins said the proposed public beach on the northeast end of the property might not be a suitable swimming site.

Former tannery employee John Kujawski voiced similar sentiments at the Monday City Commission meeting at which the commission approved a resolution of intent to vacate the street.

"I doubt very much if you could ever put a beach there," said Kujawski, who said waste materials dumped from the tannery would wash up against the beach.

He added that he favored the project despite his objection to the beach site. "I think it's good, clean money coming into Boyne City," he said.

But most of the approximately 80 people at Monday's meeting raised their hands when opposition leader

Dick Dixon asked who was against closing the street.

"We feel if the road is worth so much to the developers, it must be worth more to the taxpayers who already own it," he said.

Others at the meeting said the city should hold an election on whether the street should be closed. But Commissioners Steve Moody and Katherine Jessup said that would cause problems.

Moody said it would be difficult to determine whether the vote should be limited to city residents or include residents of Advance, Ironton and other areas who use Front Street to get to Boyne City.

Jessup said a ballot question would be difficult to phrase. "What would you vote on?" she asked. "Would you say, 'Do you approve of a project that would bring in many extra tax dollars,' or do you say, 'Would you like Front Street to stay open?'"

"You might get different answers," The resolution passed unanimously, although Mayor Keith Fitzpatrick inserted an amendment saying the street wouldn't be closed until a new street parallel to Second Street has been completed to handle traffic that now goes down Front Street.

The resolution had originally said the new street would be built "simultaneously or prior to the closing of Front Street."

Fitzpatrick emphasized that the commission's action Monday is merely a preliminary approval needed before the court can rule on the closing. Court permission is needed because the road is located near Lake Charlevoix.

If the court approves the closing, the proposal must undergo final approval by the city commission and then be studied by the Planning Commission and then approved again in its final, detailed form by the City Commission.

The court hearing is scheduled for the morning session which begins at 9 a.m. Monday, but it is uncertain exactly what time the tannery question will be heard.

Rock the night away

BOYNE CITY - Were these kids ready to rock? You betcha!

The youth group at Christ Lutheran Church needed money for a summer trip to Yellowstone National Park, so Pastor Douglas Janetzke suggested a rock-a-thon.

A what-a-thon? That's where a group of people, 15 in this case, sit in rocking chairs and rock for 24 hours. Each rocker has sponsors who donate various amounts of money based on how long their rockers rock.

The teens started rocking at 8 p.m.

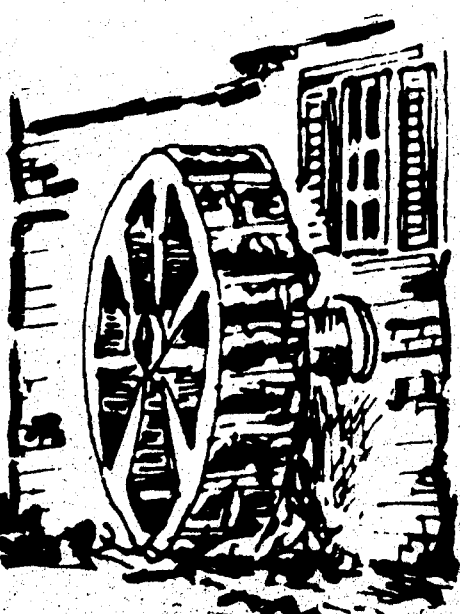

Sunday, March 25. The original plan was to rock until 8 a.m., 12 hours later. But 12 of the teens decided to go on another 12 hours. There was no school Monday.

No sleeping was allowed; the chairs had to keep moving except when the rockers took five minute breaks every hour or a 15 minute meal break.

The group raised approximately $620 for the trip. When it was over, Pastor Janetzke said, "The kids had very bleary eyes. I think a lot of the parents were surprised their kids made it."
