Fairy tale

Drama students at East Jordan High School will perform "Happily Ever Once Upon," a fairy tale parody this Thursday and Friday. Some of the cast members include, from left, Melissa Hite as Red Riding Hood, Kim Barnett as Cinderella, Connie Bartlett as Goldilocks, and Carla Ashley as the fairy godmother. Turn to page eight for a story about the play.

'Survival skill' gets school attention

BY JOE McELROY

EAST JORDAN - He doesn't like reading class. He calls it "boring." No wonder. When he looked at his textbooks, he didn't really understand how to translate the shapes of the letters into words and sentences.

The truth was, he couldn't read very well. So he fell behind in all his schoolwork, and sometimes became a discipline problem.

This case is fictional, but common in real life. Reading problems make education difficult, but a new program in the East Jordan Middle School seeks to improve the situation.

In the past, seventh and eighth graders didn't have reading classes, although some reading instruction was given in English classes. Now all of the middle school's approximately 300 students take a reading class in addition to English.

"We had kids who read at the second grade level in with kids reading at the ninth grade level," says Pam Allen, the school's reading director. "That is not an effective way to teach reading, in my opinion."

A special reading program for slow readers was started last year, but didn't include any funding for supplies. Last year, with the encouragement of the middle school staff, Allen and Principal Doug Shields asked the Board of Education to budget $7,600 in supplies to get the program off the ground.

The board came up with the money. But the new system of teaching middle school reading involves more than extra dollars. Every teacher in the school except a physical education instructor teaches a reading class every day.

The students are grouped according to achievement level, so nobody is very far ahead or behind his classmates. The reading classes stress comprehension and getting information from printed materials.

Reading differs from English, which Allen says puts more emphasis on grammar. "I guess you could say it's a double dose," she says, "but reading and English complement each other. They don't compete."

For most of the middle school staff, teaching reading is something new. What does a science teacher know about reading?

"The science teacher can teach reading if given a structure to work in," Allen says. "It's structured enough to give some direction to the non-reading specialist. The staff sees the need for this."

Sixth grade teacher Phil Goebel says some teachers, "had a lot of questions at the beginning. If you've never taught this program, it could be difficult."

"Some of them have never taught reading before, but the consensus would be that they enjoy it."

Goebel says Allen is well organized and full of encouragement for the rest of the staff. "She really pushes us," he said. "She does a great job. She's really interested in reading."

The middle school has 48 students who are reading at least two years below their grade level. These students are put in one of five special classes taught by Allen and Jamie Baumann.

The smaller class size enables the two reading teachers to give more personalized attention. "They progress at the fastest rate they can, Allen says. "I set individual goals for all of them. Each kid has special reading difficulties."

Since they have had trouble keeping up with their classmates, most of Allen and Baumann's students say they don't like reading. So the reading specialist's first job is to perk up their interest.

The students sometimes play board games, similar to Monopoly or Scrabble. But they must read to succeed in them.

The new program includes special readers written simply enough to be understood by someone at a third grade reading level, but exciting enough to hold the interest of a middle school student. Dick and Jane are out for big kids. Subjects such as CB radios and motorcycles are in.

One way to interest students is to make books available to them. That's the goal of the RIF (Reading Is Fundamental) program. Under RIF, every middle school student is given four books. The Rotary Club and American Legion both donated $300 to help pay for the program.

The reading program will be expanded next year. A special class for gifted readers will begin second semester for the school's 30 best reading students. Allen says talented readers can become just as bored in a regular class as students who are below grade level.

The excellent reading program will challenge them mentally and hopefully keep their interest. "You'll have a very progressive group of kids together," Allen says. "The sky's the limit for where they'll end up."

Since reading is done in everyday life, the new program also stresses "reading in contest areas," which calls for special emphasis on reading in all school subjects, such as math.

"Think about a math book," Allen says. "It has a table of contents. If a student doesn't know how to use the table of contents, he will have trouble learning the math."

"Knowing how to use the table of contents is a reading skill."

Allen says these skills are important to everyone, even if they don't go into occupations that require a good deal of reading.

"You need to fill out a job application to get a job," she says. "Think about it, if you went into the grocery store and couldn't read the labels."

"It's a survival skill. You use it in every aspect of life."

Seek more help for downtown

EAST JORDAN - The city council approved requests Tuesday to rezone property for a mobile home park and to establish a commercial redevelopment district.

Since both issues were discussed at length during public hearings last week, there was little discussion of either item at this week's council meeting.

There was, however, considerable discussion of a request from the Chamber of Commerce that the city contribute $1,000 to help the downtown renovation effort.

Chamber member Duane Chappuis made the request, and he said the Chamber was tentatively planning to contribute $1,000.

He said the $1,000 would be used to obtain an architect's drawings of both sides of the 100 and 200 blocks of Main Street. These would give a general picture of how the street would look, but individual owners would still have to pay to have their own stores restored to the old-fashioned theme.

The council members appeared about evenly split on their first impressions of the proposal. The matter was eventually referred to the Finance Committee for study.

Finance Committee chairman Harry Watson said, "If we can find the money, I'd say it's worthwhile endeavor. Whether or not it will develop into anything or not, I'm not sure. But at least people wouldn't say the city won't cooperate with the merchants."

Mayor Jim Meredith said, however, he wasn't sure the city should contribute toward the project, since the council had just approved the commercial redevelopment tax breaks.

Other points raised in the discussion were that the city also contributes toward business-oriented projects such as July 4 fireworks, and leasing a downtown parking lot.

Chamber member Carol Tighe spoke in favor of the project, saying that "You've got to spend money to make money. If you spend money on this, you'll get more businesses in town, and you'll get more tax money."

In other business, the council approved a rezoning request from local builder Jim Petrie to develop a 59 lot mobile home park on Deer Lake Road at the eastern city limits.

State officials say . . .

Gas rationing a bad solution

BY DIANE MURRAY
Capital correspondent

LANSING - Gas rationing and the restricted sales of gasoline during weekends would have a "devastating effect" on Michigan's tourism industry, says the state's second largest industry. As long as the availability of gasoline is there, people will travel. Price does not appear to be a big factor on whether a vacation trip is made or not.

Availability of gasoline is the critical issue for tourism, the state's second largest industry. As long as the availability of gasoline is there, people will travel. Price does not appear to be a big factor on whether a vacation trip is made or not.

State Representative Lad Stacey (R-Berrien Springs), vice-chairman of the Tourist Industry Relations Committee, has introduced a House concurrent resolution urging the federal government not to restrict weekend gasoline sales.

The resolution, co-sponsored by 10 legislators, says "restriction on Sunday sale of gasoline would have a devastating effect on the estimated 35,600 establishments directly connected with travel and tourism in Michigan."

If passed by the Senate, the resolution will be sent to President Carter and other federal officials for their approval.

Stacey, who is sure the Senate will pass his resolution, said the closing of gasoline stations on Sundays or weekends "would be devastating to the Upper Peninsula as well as the Lower Peninsula because there is no way to get up or back on one tank of gas."

"Ski slope owners, snowmobilers and resort owners live on the weekend business," he said. "The UP has a four billion dollar business going, and more than that when you take in spin-off businesses, that will be greatly hurt by restricted gasoline sales."

State Representative Ralph Ostling (R-Hoschton) is favorable to Stacey's resolution.

"I am opposed to rationing and weekend closings that will curtail tourism, especially in the 103rd district," he said. Ostling's district includes the East Jordan area.

Ostling said he did not think weekend closings would have as much effect on tourism as many believe. Ostling suggested that many tourists will stretch their vacations over to Monday when gasoline will be available.

State Representative Steve Andrews, whose 109th District includes the Boyne area, also supports Stacey's resolution against weekend closings.

The Republican from Wolverine said energy conservation people are using the weekend closings as a target to conserve energy.

"Statistics indicate that ('weekend closings) are not an area that will result in demonstrative energy saving. But it will have a devastating effect on tourism," he said.

As long as gasoline is available, people will travel, Andrews said.

"There could even be an increase in tourism in our area because people might decide to travel to Northern Michigan rather than go to Wyoming or another state."

State Senator Mitch Irwin does not endorse gas rationing nor the proposed ban on Sunday gasoline sales.

Either of these proposals would be devastating to the economy of this state, and especially the tourist industry in Northern Michigan, the Sault Ste. Marie Democrat said.

"Rather than rationing, I think that we should be more aggressively enforcing laws on the books designed to conserve energy and look to alternative sources of energy, such as gasohol," he said.

Irwin has co-sponsored a resolution calling for a gasohol day, June 20, to promote gasohol as an alternative energy source.

Bruce McComb, deputy director of the Michigan Travel Bureau, said at his point no one considers gas rationing likely.

"The idea is a contingency law that Carter has to give to Congress to set up future plans in the event of an emergency gasoline shortage."

McComb agreed that rationing would have an overwhelming effect on tourism in Michigan, especially because of the uncertainty of gasoline that would be put into the public's mind.

"The initial shock of rationing would make the public hold back on their traveling for a while just to find out what was happening and the effects of rationing," he said. "Even after the initial shock, we would see fewer people traveling in Michigan."

Gas rationing would leave "Northern Michigan and the Upper Peninsula out in the cold," McComb said.

"We may see further travel in the southern sections of Michigan, but even there are limitations because of the holding capacities" of downstate recreation facilities, he said.

Weekend gas station closings would not be nearly as restrictive as gas rationing, McComb said, but it would have severe negative impacts on tourism.

The total amount of money spent for state travel during a year is approximately $4.7 billion; 50 percent of that is tourism travel, he said.

Weekend closings could bring about a 11 to 19 percent decrease in tourism dollars, McComb said.

If weekend closings are enforced, we could see a decrease from $500 million to as much as $800 million in direct tourist expenditures per year, he said. "That means a lot of (tourist) places could be very hurt, especially smaller places."

McComb speculated that tourism in Northern Michigan could lose more than 11 percent of its business.

The reason is because of the distance Northern Michigan tourist resorts are from southern population centers, he said.

Charles E. Shipley, executive director of the Service Station Dealers Association of Michigan, said he has had "quarrels with the rationing and gas station weekend closing programs."

If rationing is imposed there will be at least a five cent per gallon increase in the price of gasoline, he said.

At both full service and self service gasoline stations the attendant would have to make sure the customer has gasoline coupons and also that the customer doesn't put any more gas in his car than what the coupon allows, Shipley said.

There would be a difficult enforcement problem, he said.

Shipley also has severe reservations about weekend service station closings because of its effect on tourism, he said.

"Gas station owners on their own should be able to decide their hours. A Gaylord owner might decide to close his station on different hours to accommodate his area customer's needs than someone down in Detroit," Shipley said.

July plans underway

EAST JORDAN - Plans for the city's annual Fourth of July celebration are beginning to shape up.

The city council granted permits Tuesday to the Jordan Valley Lions to set up their Polka Fest tent and to the Chamber of Commerce to hold a parade.

Because July 4 falls on a Wednesday this year, the parade will be held on Saturday, July 7. The Polka Fest tent will be open from July 4 through 7.

Renovation theme chosen

EAST JORDAN - "Today's Pride and Yesterday's Past" is the newly named theme of East Jordan's business renovation project.

That theme was chosen as the best from among 25 submitted in a contest sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce.

The winning theme was submitted by Ginny Carey, administrative officer at Northwestern State Bank. She decided to turn her $50 prize back to the Chamber to further help the renovation project.

Choosing the theme were members of the Chamber board of directors and members of a special renovation committee.

The renovation committee is working with an architect and local artist Hazel Colburn to develop drawings for renovating storefronts along an old-fashioned theme.

Business owners interested in information about the renovation can contact Carol Tighe at the EJ Shop.

Savings & loan approved

BOYNE CITY - The savings and loan association proposed for downtown Boyne City cleared its final administrative hurdle this week when a state banking official dismissed a protest filed by two other area savings and loans.

Arch Wright, who heads the group of 11 Boyne City S&L investors, says his group hopes to have the city's first savings and loan association open by the end of this year. They are considering the former city hall property as a site for the business.

Family Federal Savings and North-western Savings and Loan had protested Wright's application to Commissioner Richard Francis of the Financial Institutions Bureau, a division of the state's Department of Commerce.

The other S&L's claimed Wright and his group didn't have enough experience in the field, but the commissioner apparently didn't agree.

"That's the last administrative opportunity they have to protest it," Wright said, "although they could always take it to court."

Wright said he doubted the other S&L's would bother with a court fight because of the strongly worded approval handed down by the Financial Institutions Bureau.

Bike-a-thon Saturday

EAST JORDAN - The Lioness club is sponsoring a bike-a-thon to benefit cystic fibrosis this Saturday.

A number of area youngsters and adults have been soliciting pledges for each mile they ride. Anyone in the sixth grade or older is eligible to participate. Permission slips and sponsor sheets are available at the middle and high school offices.

The bike riders will register at 8:30 a.m. and leave at 9 from the boat launching ramp adjacent to Taylor's IGA store.

They'll travel south on M-66, west on Mt. Bliss Road and north on Alba Road back to downtown East Jordan. If they make it the whole way, they'll have ridden 17 miles.

Middle schoolers help Mud Lake

BOYNE CITY - Many people in town don't even know Boyne City has a Mud Lake. The county is dotted with several other small lakes with the same name.

But now a group of middle school students are paying attention to the body of water between Boyne Avenue and Grant Street. The 34 members of Harold Leach's Conservation class spend their classtime cleaning the area and improving it for wildlife.

Leach says that the lake once was home to wood ducks, a small duck that he says is now, "sort of an endangered species. I know there has been a tremendous effort to save these ducks."

According to Leach, the ducks were killed off by raccoons and skunks, which have multiplied rapidly since foxes and their other natural predators have been eliminated from the area.

To give the wood ducks a better chance, the class has installed wooden nests on trees near the lake. The nests provide a place for the ducks to lay their eggs in safety.

The class will also be building brush piles along the shore of the lake. "It gives small animals a place to hide," Leach says. "It will be a place of refuge."

The brush piles will be made by first crisscrossing logs and then covering them with brush. The idea is to provide areas where smaller animals can hide from larger animals, such as dogs.

Leach said he eventually hopes to start a tree identification program on the lake, but all of the class activity there must be approved by Elwood Dunlop, who owns the surrounding property.

The first order of business this spring was to rid the lake of trash. "We found there is quite a lot of litter," Leach said.

"It's taken us two weeks just to clean up the litter. Some people have used it as a dump," Leach estimates his students have carried away over a ton of litter.

In addition to cleaning up a natural resource, Leach said his goal for the class is to teach them, "that you have to protect all wildlife. Even in town there are these small animals."

Leach says his students seem to have gotten the message. "They seem to enjoy it," he said, "although they do have their ups and downs about picking up litter."

He said studies how most trash is caused by young people, and hopes his students will learn to avoid the litter habit.

Leaf pickup time again for Boyne and East Jordan

City crews in Boyne City and East Jordan will be participating in "Clean-up Time" by making free pickups of leaves and yard rakings.

Each year, the cities set aside certain days when crews will pickup bags of such debris if they are left at the curb early in the morning.

Since there are private companies which offer garbage pickup service, the cities won't accept household garbage on their free pickups. Leaves, twigs and grass clippings are what they're looking for.

The debris must be tied in plastic garbage bags, and the bags must be placed on the curb early in the morning -- before 8 a.m. If you get missed, they won't have time to make return trips.

Boyne City crews will pick up the garbage bags on Wednesday and Thursday, May 9 and 10 for homes north of the Boyne River, and on May 16 and 17 for homes south of the river.

East Jordan pickup days will be next Monday, May 7, in the first ward (west side of Lake Charlevoix), May 9 in the second ward (southern part of the city's east side), and May 11 in the third ward (northern part of the east side).

LANSING - Gov. William G. Milliken recently urged Michigan citizens to join in the largest cleanup ever attempted in his state.

In an executive declaration issued in advance of the kickoff of the massive month-long litter removal project, Milliken said "legions of volunteers" will participate in "a united effort to clean our state from border to border."

Known as Operation Cleansweep, the project will extend from April 14 through May 14 and will involve more than 4,000 group throughout the state and more than 200,000 individuals. An estimated half million bags of litter will be picked up over the month-long period.

The project was conceived by the Michigan United Conservation Clubs (MUCC) as a means of ridding roadsides, parks, fields and forests of cans and bottles and other litter deposited before the state's "bottle bill" took effect last Dec. 3. MUCC spearheaded the campaign that led to overwhelming voter approval of the bottle bill.

The bill, which requires a deposit on beer and soft drink bottles and cans and bans ring pull tabs, aims at reducing litter by requiring a deposit on containers. It also seeks to reduce consumption of energy and raw materials that MUCC contends are wasted in the manufacture of throwaway bottles and cans.

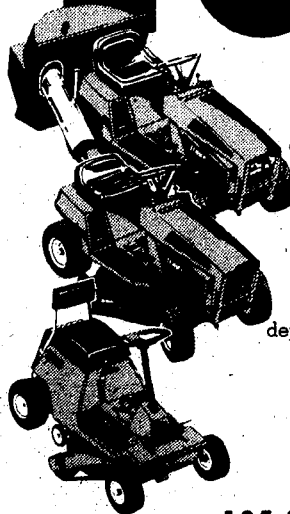

MUCC, which is coordinating the statewide cleanup, said several other groups are helping to lead the volunteer effort, including the Michigan Jaycees, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Farm Bureau, 4-H Clubs, UAW Conservation Department, Michigan Environmental Education Association, Trout Unlimited and numerous other civic and professional organizations.

They will be working with the Department of Natural Resources, National Guard, county road commissions and municipal park and road agencies to collect litter in public areas and recycle metals and glass.

It's not gardening, It's street cleaning

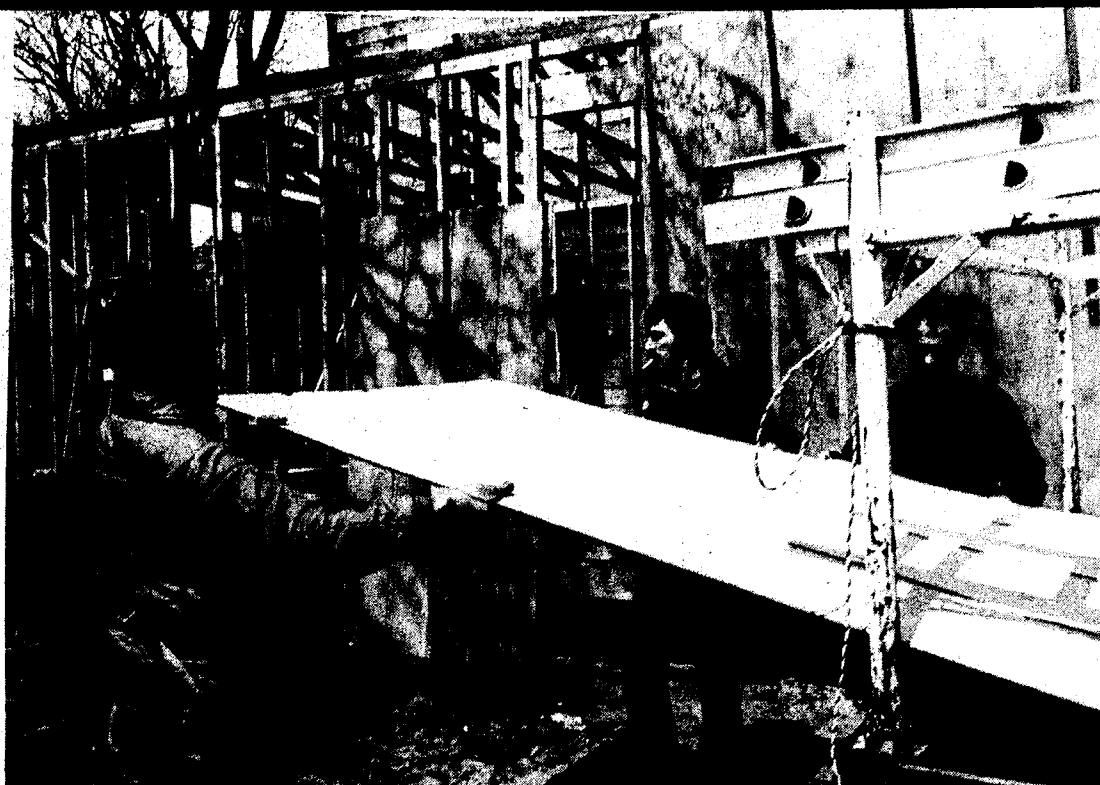

EAST JORDAN - The city's firemen will be "watering the streets" here on Sunday morning, May 20.

No, it's not some type of experimental gardening project. It's part of the city's annual spring clean-up effort. Between now and May 20, city crews will clean the streets with a street-sweeping vehicle.

Then, the firemen will give the streets in the downtown area a good rinsing with fire hoses.

The firemen volunteer their time for the project, and the city thanks them by buying breakfast at a local restaurant.

Boyne Lions lend a hand

BOYNE CITY - When spring comes, it means time for various construction projects. Sunday there was a special one at Behling's Market.

Everett Hadix's construction company was working on a new storage room that the store needed because of the new deposit law on cans and bottles. But Hadix unexpectedly passed away from a heart attack recently, after the work had begun.

Hadix was a long-time member of the Boyne Valley Lions Club, and his fellow Lions decided they should do something special in his memory. So last Sunday 15 of them, and some non-members who were close to Hadix, got together and finished the work needed on the store addition.

The payment for the work will still go to the construction company, but the Lions did the work free of charge. With three licensed contractors in their group, they had little trouble doing the siding, roofing and other work needed to fulfill Hadix's commitment on the project.

"It was a Lions Club tribute to Everett Hadix," said one member, who didn't want his name used. "It's just a good bunch of guys."

"Everett did many things for the community out of his own pocket," he said. Some of Hadix's projects included donated time and material for Rotary Park and the Little League field.

Anyone who's looking for an excuse to be outdoors can find it in the lawn and garden now, Michigan State University Extension specialists suggest the following activities are timely in May:

-Plant onions, beets, carrots, radishes, spinach and lettuce for the second and third times.

-Hold off planting sweet corn, beans, cucumbers, peppers, tomatoes, eggplant, squash and pumpkins until after the danger of frost is past. Or, plan on providing transplants and tender seedlings frost protection.

-Transplant flowers and vegetables in the evening or on a cloudy day to give the plants a chance to get over the shock of transplanting before they have to withstand direct sunlight. They'll adjust better to outdoor conditions if they've had 10 to 14 days outdoors in a protected spot before being set into the garden.

-Mulch or cultivate the vegetable garden to control weeds. When cultivating, cut or scrape weeds off just below the soil surface. Deeper cultivation can injure the roots of crops and bring weed seeds up to the surface where they can germinate and grow.

-Plant tuberous begonias and caladiums outdoors in shaded areas. -Fertilize spring-flowering bulbs before or during bloom. Remove flower heads after blossoms fade, but leave the foliage on the bulbs until it turns brown and dies. The leaves produce food to build up the bulbs for next year's blossoms.

-Fertilize roses and spray them at seven-to 10-day intervals as needed with an all-purpose rose spray to control diseases and insects. Start spraying roses as soon as new growth appears, and continue through August.

-Weak, old, damaged or poorly places branches should be removed from spring flowering shrubs as soon as they finish blooming. Retain the young, vigorous growth that will bear next year's flowers.

-Check pine trees for sawfly larvae,

May is the time to go garden caterpillar look-alikes that raise their heads when disturbed. Control them with a spray of Sevin or malathion. (Bacillus thuringiensis will not control these, because they are related to wasps rather than butterflies and moths.)

-Remove old flower heads from rhododendrons after they've bloomed.

-Watch for spring and fall cankerworm larvae munching on the foliage of elm, cherry, beech, maple and hickory. These caterpillars travel with an inch-worm motion. A spray of Bacillus thuringiensis will control them.

-May is an excellent time to plant trees, evergreens, shrubs and ground covers. Be sure to remove pots or plastic from around the root balls and ropes or wires that may be present around tree trunks. Water well after planting and once every 8 to 10 days if it doesn't rain.

-Water a new or renovated lawn during dry periods to get it established before hot weather.

-In late May or early June, give an established lawn its first nitrogen application of the year. Fertilizing earlier than this can predispose some turfgrass species to disease.

Demand is great for the unique "driftwood look," an effect usually found only in seacoast areas after years of exposure to salt air. Cabot's No. 0241 Bleaching Oil, when applied to untreated wood surfaces, actually bleaches the wood, imparting a delicate gray tone which weathers in a few months to a natural driftwood gray. Better days ahead for trout fishing

Lester Hott of East Jordan enjoys a sunny day of fishing at the mouth of the Boyne River. He said he was fishing for steelhead and trout. Trout runs on the river are expected to peak this weekend, although one local fishing expert says lack of planting is cutting down on the availability of fish. Walloon Lake and Lake Louise are also said to be hot trout spots. [Press photo by Joe McElroy.]

BOYNE CITY - Mother Nature has made life tough on trout fishermen during the season's opening week, but that doesn't mean people aren't catching fish.

And better days are ahead. A week of chilly, rainy weather raised water levels and cut down on productivity in some Michigan rivers, but local fishermen who ignored the nasty weather had some good luck.

Conditions should improve this weekend. Woody Hartlep of Woody's Bait & Tackle Shop says rainbow trout started running in the Boyne River Wednesday, April 25. "The run will probably peak in the river this weekend," he said.

The entire Boyne River is now open. Until last Saturday, the river was open only to the dam between Boyne City and Boyne Falls. Woody says fishermen new to the area should try their luck on either side of the dam. He suggests spawn as the best trout bait.

Another popular spot is the pond on M-75 in Boyne Falls. Hartlep said some people use night crawlers, but better success has been reported with worms.

"The guys were catching them yesterday with those little red commercial worms," he told a customer.

But Hartlep, who has been selling bait in Boyne City for 58 years, says this year's trout run is below average. "We don't have as big a run as usual because there hasn't been as much planting," he said.

"The Boyne City end of Lake

Charlevoix and the Boyne River has been sadly neglected for the past two years," he said. The Department of Natural Resources plants trout in various rivers and lakes, hoping they will reproduce and replenish fishing stock.

Hartlep thinks the Boyne area doesn't get its share of fish because local fishermen have complained about the introduction of salmon into the river and Lake Charlevoix. He says the large salmon have eliminated brook trout from the river.

Trout are also starting to move in other area rivers, according to Jim Genc, a DNR conservation officer. He said steelhead have been seen in the Boyne and Bear Rivers. Brook trout have also been spotted in some areas.

Woody Hartlep says fishermen don't have to stick to rivers or Lake Charlevoix. "Your best fishing in this area is Walloon Lake and Lake Louise," he said, adding that trollers are having good luck on Lake Louise (also known as Thumb Lake) fishing for splake, a hybrid trout developed by the DNR.

Woody advises fishermen new to the area to visit any area trout shop to find out the inside dope on local fishing conditions. As he points out, they have a vested interest in dispensing good advice.

"If you don't catch fish, you won't buy bait," he said. "A bait shop will give you the best information they possibly can."

Students present fractured fairy tale

EAST JORDAN - A "fractured" fairy tale called "Happily Ever Once Upon" will be performed by high school drama students Thursday and Friday nights.

The comedy begins at 7:30 both nights in the high school auditorium. Tickets are $2.50 for adults and $1.50 for students.

The parody might be seen as a "what ever happened to" follow-up on fairy tale characters.

Here's the plot: After 20 years of marriage, Cinderella and Prince Charming have some problems, and their enchanted kingdom is teetering on the brink of bankruptcy.

The fairy godmother is blackmailing Cinderella, and Red Riding Hood is out to capture the Prince's heart. The Prince hopes he can solve his financial problems by having Rumpelstiltskin spin gold from straw, but he's afraid that might turn the kingdom into a tourist attraction.

Bonnie Thomas is directing the play, and she is assisted by students Joyce Roberts, the stage manager, and Jill Froats, property manager.

Cast members include all your favorite fairy tale characters: Kim Barnett as Cinderella, Todd Hart as Prince Charming, Carla Ashley as the fairy godmother, Jerry Weisler as the pied piper, Connie Bartlett as Goldilocks, Melissa Hite as Red Riding Hood, Al Stallard as H.E. Rumpelstiltskin, Kevin Thomas as Jason, Perry Bennett as the court jester, Roxann Frank as Alice in Wonderland, Debbie Skrocki as Snow White, Theresa Bartlett as Tinkerbell, Brenda Shaw as Rapunzel, Jeff Burch as Zorro, Jill Thomas as a princess, Tom Petrie as Jack in the beanstalk, and Diane Sweet as a princess.

The Landing

For informal dining, a leisurely drink, a lakeside view, and a place to dock your boat while you eat, The Landing is the place to go in this area. The Landing is located next to the historic Ironton Ferry, at the narrow part of the South Arm of Lake Charlevoix.

Don Behrens and Marge Kimball reopened the restaurant as new owners on Jan. 25, and thus changed the name from Chester's to The Landing.

Breakfast, lunch and dinner is served, with features such as fresh perch and walleye. Thursday is spaghetti night with salad, garlic toast and a glass of red wine included. There is a different homemade soup featured every day.

SURVEY QUESTION

Have your eating habits changed since the food prices are so high?

Out of 10 people called four said no and six said yes. Here are some of their comments:

Yes. Now all I can afford is a lot of peanut butter. I'm really learning fast how to change my eating habits.

No. My parents buy the food so I eat good, but I don't know what I'll do when I'm finally on my own only making $80 per week.

Yes. We had to cut down a lot on food. We are senior citizens and are on a tight budget anyway.

Yes. I'm eating more than before. Anytime something is scarce or hard to get, I have cravings for more of it.

No. Due to my being a diabetic I need a lot of the expensive foods like fruit, vegetables, and very lean meats. There is no way I can change my eating habits.

Yes. Hamburger used to be cheaper than fish, chicken, and steak but now it isn't. So we eat a lot of the cheaper meats, but they really are better for us anyway than hamburger.

No. I budget myself to eat TV dinners and I ate them a lot before the prices were high, so it hasn't affected me much.

Yes. I have five children to feed and now I can't even afford hamburger. It's cheaper for us to eat out a few nights a week so our eating habits have changed drastically.

Yes. We eat a lot of eggs and venison.

Methodist Church

EAST JORDAN - The United Methodist Church will be celebrating its 100th anniversary May 20 with special worship services, a reunion dinner, and opening of the church cornerstone.

Reservations for the dinner should be made by May 10 by contacting Eleanor Scott, P.O. Box 394, phone 536-2974; or Marion Sheppard, 451 Water St., phone 536-7880. tickets are $5 for adults and $3 for children over age 5. Rev. Dan Minor said all members, friends, former members, former pastors are welcome to help celebrate the occasion.

The May 20 celebration will start with a worship service at 10 a.m., reunion dinner at the elementary school at 11:30, and a reminiscing program, including opening of the cornerstone at 1:30 in the church sanctuary.

Rev. Minor would also appreciate being able to borrow any pictures or other memorabilia for the reminiscing program.

Correction

An error appeared in last week's Boyne front page story on the Boyne City school millage. The story said the present fifth grade is divided into four classes. It actually is already divided into three classes.

When the class goes to sixth grade next year in the middle school, it will remain in three sections. Since all middle school classes presently have four sections, the move will mean one less middle school class section and, therefore, one less middle school teacher. The middle school staff has expressed concern over the move.

She carried a white crocheted basket with white and yellow carnations arranged with baby's breath. The basket and flowers were crocheted by her aunt, Helen Crawford. Traditional wedding music was provided by Margaret Thomson.

Maid of honor was Star Raymond, a friend of the bride. Barbara Moggo and Marsha Baker were bridesmaids. Tina Moggo was flower girl and Renwick Graham was ringbearer.

FREE CONTOUR ANALYSIS EXAMINATION FOR VICTIMS OF CHRONIC OR ACUTE PAIN

The International Pain Control Institute in conjunction with New York Chiropractic College is presently engaged in what is the most extensive research program ever undertaken by the chiropractic profession. This research, is directed toward determining the relationship between health problems and spinal misalignments and utilizes a screening process called Contour Analysis.

Volunteers are being sought for screening. Contour Analysis enables taking a three-dimensional picture (called Moire photography) of the topography of the surface of the spine to detect spinal stress deviations. This analysis will be correlated with leg deficiency, patient symptomatology, and levels of spinal tenderness. An analysis of this type can reveal such things as normal and abnormal stress patterns, spinal curvature, muscle spasms, muscle imbalance, spinal distortions, and scoliosis.

There is no charge to participating volunteers, since the doctors are contributing their time, service, and facilities for the program. Final processing and evaluation will be done at the New York Chiropractic College.

Anyone wishing to be a volunteer may telephone participating doctors directly for information or an appointment.

Child abuse group seeks directors

EAST JORDAN - The Child Abuse Prevention Committee is looking for people to serve on its board of directors.

At least seven nominations are needed by the group's first annual meeting on May 16.

The meeting will be held at 7:30 p.m. in the high school auditorium. Officers will be elected, and an educational program will be presented.

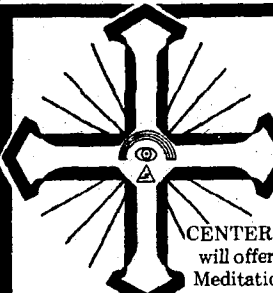

Anyone who is interested in serving on the board should contact Cele Malpass at 536-7683. Nominations will also be accepted at the annual meeting in May.

The Child Abuse Prevention committee was organized at a community forum in September, 1978. A group of 10 to 14 active committee members has sponsored several activities since that time. Much of their effort in recent months has been organizational in nature, however. Bylaws have been written, and papers have been filed to give the group legal status as a non-profit corporation.

Memberships to the committee will be sold at the annual meeting, and only paying members will be eligible to vote in the election of the board of directors. Memberships will cost $3 for individuals and $5 for families.

Besides voting privileges, a membership entitles area residents to receive regular correspondence, including minutes and newsletters, from the committee.

Lea Pareis, who is now serving as chairman of the group, summarizes the group's purpose as preventing child abuse and neglect by offering assistance programs and by educating the general public.

New owners for car wash

BOYNE CITY - Mike and Diane Hausler are the new owners of Lyle's Car Wash on Lake Street, north of B&C Family Center. Their business will now be called Boyne City Car Wash.

They bought the car wash from Lyle Kowalske, who is also a real estate agent for Ski and Shore Properties.

The Hauslers have also purchased the automatic car washing machine which was located at Kowalske's Shell service station. That station was closed last year and will soon be remodeled to be used as the office for Ski and Shore Properties.

The Hauslers are adding some other new features in addition to the automatic car wash. They have installed new coin boxes in the three do-it-yourself car wash stalls. They will also be offering custom washing and waxing by appointment.

The automatic car wash will be open from 8 to 5 on Saturdays and Sundays until June, when the hours will be expanded.

Moved by Commissioner Ingalls and supported by Commissioner Moerland that the Statutory Finance Committee Report be adopted.

Commissioner McDonald, because of his employment with the Frost Pack Co. and a possible conflict of interest, requested an opinion of the Prosecuting Attorney and read this opinion to the Board. Bill Dixon of Millington caught this whopping 32 inch steelhead trout last week near the Boyne River Dam. Trout season is expected to peak on the river this weekend.

No juniors

Trackers lack experience

EAST JORDAN - The high school boys track team has a youthful look this season, made up mostly of freshmen and sophomores. But the lack of experience didn't keep the Red Devils from easily winning their first meet over Central Lake by a lopsided 118-35 score.

The team's second meet ended in a 79-79 tie against Onaway.

"We should be very competitive in most of our meets," said Coach Bob Snyder, "but we lack the experience to be a force in the conference unless we have a super day."

The track team has no juniors but does have several seniors who placed in last year's conference meet. They include two miler Dennis Lapeer, pole vaulter Todd Hart, and Dan Spence in the 440 and 880 relay team.

Other top performers returning are long jumper Ken Thorman and Randy Morris, a hurdler.

Top newcomers include sophomore Duwayne Dougherty, a sprinter, and freshman Steve Graham, who competes in the sprints and long jump. Half miler Rick Hawley will be heard from, as will Dave Karlskin and Bill Spence in the shot put and discus.

Several members of the team took first places in both of the first two meets. Double winners included Todd Hart in the pole vault; Randy Morris in the high and low hurdles; Dennis Lapeer in the 440 and Dan Spence in the 220.

The 800 relay team of Larry Huckle, Kim Thurman, Dan Spence and Duwayne Dougherty also took the two first places, with Morris running in Huckle's place against Onaway. So did the 440 relay team of Spence, Dan Crick, Dougherty and Steve Graham.

Netters win 1st meet

EAST JORDAN - The high school tennis team won its first meet of the year last weekend, beating Whittimore-Prescott, Tri-County and Grayling.

In singles, Jim Bisbee took first place by winning a close three-set match. Tom Zoulek won the singles consolation bracket.

Perry Bennett and Duane Carpenter were runners-up in the doubles competition. Kevin Dietrich and Danny Nessel won the consolation doubles bracket.

East Jordan and Whittimore both finished the match with seven points, but the Red Devils won the meet because they had more points in the consolation bracket.

Rotary Park-- 'It's for everybody'

BY JOE McELROY

First in a series on Boyne City parks and recreational facilities

BOYNE CITY - After years of work, often of the volunteer variety, the development of Rotary Park is entering its final stages this spring.

Construction of four badly-needed new tennis courts has begun and is expected to be completed two weeks before an earlier target date of July 1.

Meanwhile, plans have also been made to improve and shift the location of the park's two softball diamonds, used by an estimated 400-500 Boyne City players. Softball officials hope the new location will make the games fairer and attract state tournaments to Boyne City.

For years Rotary Park was a vacant, seldom-used, undeveloped piece of city-owned property named after the service club which once planted a group of trees in the shape of a Rotarian wheel on the property. Meanwhile, the city's many softball players had to journey to Petoskey for games, since there was no decent softball field in Boyne City.

But in 1976 the city's Bicentennial Committee, headed by Catherine Jessup, chose Rotary Park as the community's bicentennial project, with the help of softball players, who donated their labor, and a $50,000 grant from the Department of Natural Resources, the development of Rotary Park began. A country and western concert was also held to help raise money.

Soon Boyne City had its own softball fields and independent leagues. Tennis courts were originally supposed to be built last summer, but questions over bidding procedures delayed work.

Original plans had called for a general contractor to bid on the entire tennis court project and then hire sub-contractors.

But a local contractor told the City Commission that this would be unfair to small local businessmen, so the commission had the jobs re-bid. According to City Manager Tim Clifton, the delay helped escalate prices.

The entire Rotary Park project was supposed to cost $50,000, with the DNR paying half. But Clifton says the final cost will be closer to $68,000, so the city will have to pay $38,000.

Clifton said the original estimate of $12,000 for each of the four tennis courts was probably too low. Sand base is needed to keep water from seeping through and cracking the courts.

He said Rotary Park is susceptible to this because it lies on low land. The downtown Memorial Park courts have a similar problem and are lined with cracks in the pavement.

Clifton said the new asphalt courts will be "the best in Boyne City. The only ones better in this immediate area will be the ones at Boyne Mountain and Walloon Hills."

Still needed are four tennis nets, which cost $250 apiece. Clifton said money for the nets could be found, but he's hoping somebody will make a donation.

Softball players should also find better facilities awaiting them this season. The A field backstop will be moved 43 feet and the B field backstop 23 feet.

The A field center field fence will be 275 feet from home plate instead of the present 230 feet. That will make for better competition, according to softball leader Lynda Christensen, who has done so much for Rotary Park that the city has re-named the A field in her honor.

"It will make it a more fair game for everyone," she says of the longer fences. "Now, anyone who gets a home run will really deserve it."

The B field has been named after Forbes Tompkins, who was city manager when the Rotary Park project began.

Softball players complained last year that both fields were in bad playing condition. Clifton said the Christensen Field will be worked on this spring by city crews, with softball players also lending a hand.

"We've never been afraid of hard work," Christensen says, adding that improved field conditions will enable the park to sponsor state-wide tournaments which "bring a lot of money into town."

Christensen said Rotary Park would be a popular spot for tournaments because of its location in a scenic part of the state. "People downstate are just begging for tournaments up here so they can come up here," she said. "And Rotary Park is going to be one of the prettiest softball places in Northern Michigan."

Another attraction is a combination concession stand/washroom/storage facility building being put up by the Boyne Valley Lions. Christensen said this should eliminate the problem of vandals stealing softball equipment from the rickety old structure now used to store supplies.

Other attractions at the park include a three quarter mile nature trail, which is almost finished, and a children's recreational facility which will be installed this summer.

Those who have worked on the park hope it soon will offer something for everyone. "Rotary Park is more than just a place for ballplayers to go," Christensen says. "Your kids can play there while you're playing softball and you won't have to worry about them." "The park is for everybody."

Dedication May 11

BOYNE CITY - It's time to celebrate Boyne City's new school facilities.

Last fall, after years of controversy and struggle, the school system opened a new elementary school and remodeled the middle and high schools. The project meant an end to split-day sessions, long condemned as harmful to education.

Although the new facilities opened in the fall, work has continued throughout most of the school year. But now the project is ready for its dedication.

That dedication will be held Friday, May 11, at 7:30 p.m. in the elementary school. After the dedication, all three buildings will be open for tours.

Those who can't make the evening ceremony can tour the schools during classes on Friday. "We're hoping it will help the people who work at night get a look at the schools," said Superintendent Rich Kelly. "But anybody's welcome to come."

Kelly said parents of students will be available at the elementary school during the day to guide visitors.

Kelly promises the evening invocation will be brief, probably approximately half an hour long. Taking part in the program will be Kelly, the three principals, Robert Klevorn, Rev. John Beard and Rev. Milton Walls, school board President Bill Chipman, and representatives of the school staff.

The elementary school choir will sing during the ceremony.

Ole!

Anne Ekstrom's third grade class at Boyne City Elementary School has been studying about Mexico, so they recently tried out the Mexican custom of breaking the pinata, a molding of a horse filled with gifts and food. Street hearing delayed again

BOYNE CITY - Don't stop us even if you've heard this one before: The long-awaited Circuit Court hearing on the proposed closing of Front Street has been delayed for the fourth time.

The hearing was supposed to be held Monday, April 30, and was still scheduled for that date when The Press checked with the Circuit Court office late Tuesday, April 24. But on Wednesday, Judge Martin Breighner rescheduled the hearing to Friday, June 22.

Because Front Street is close to a lake, state law mandates that a court hearing be held before it can be closed to make way for a proposed 270-unit condominium project on the old tannery property.

Monday's hearing was postponed because of lack of courtroom space, according to attorney Jon Michael, who is representing a group of Boyne City residents opposed to the closing of Front Street.

"The judge thought the day was open at his court in Charlevoix," Michael said, but later found out a civil case he thought had been settled out of court would have to be tried that day.

Michael voiced mixed emotions on the newest delay. "I'd just as soon get the thing over with to tell you the truth," he said. "The case has been pending too long; there has been too much public furor."

But Michael said the delay will also give him a chance to schedule "expert witnesses" from out of town to testify against the closing at the June hearing. He declined to identify the experts.

The developers, Lake Associates, now have a decision to make. Their option on the property expires May 21, before the new court date. Rick Smith of Lake Associates says his group could extend the option, "but it's at great expense."

They could also exercise their option and buy the property, but they don't want to do that until they know they have court approval. They would be paying taxes and high interest rates on the purchase price.

Smith said his group hasn't decided on their next move, and are waiting for a marketing report. "We're sort of in limbo at the moment," he said. They were not happy with the latest delay, Smith calling it "a real victory" for those opposed to the street closing.

Anything they can do to delay it, that's what they're after," Smith said. "It's an effective tactic."

Smith says the case could be heard in the Petoskey Circuit Court room, if all parties involved agreed to the move. According to Smith, those against the road closing refused to allow this, but Michael said the question never came up.

"It was never presented to me," he said. "I never talked to the judge about it." He said he probably wouldn't agree to an earlier court date even if he had been asked.
