Chamber (or dump) info-- 24 hours

BY BARBARA CRUDEN

EAST JORDAN - An appropriately East Jordan-sounding voice answers the phone - the tone typically clear and straight-forward. It's appropriate because it really is the voice of East Jordan, 24 hours a day.

"East Jordan Chamber of Commerce," the voice says. It belongs to Mrs. Martha Kamradt, who was born in East Jordan in 1902.

Mrs. Kamradt sits in the Chamber of Commerce booth located on highway M-66 from the middle of May "through the color," which means until the first of November, usually.

Around the booth is an honor guard of swan-shaped containers blooming brightly with red geraniums.

A car stops. "We're looking for the river," the man says, querying. "My son wants to fish."

Mrs. Kamradt directs him to some convenient fishing sites.

A few minutes later a pickup truck drives up with a smiling Labrador retriever and child in the back. "Do you have a map of East Jordan?"

East Jordan Chamber of Commerce is a member of West Michigan Tourist Association and carries a full-page ad in their annual magazine, but Mrs. Kamradt says the number of tourists has dropped over the years. And the Tourist Park is not as full as it used to be. Mrs. Kamradt thinks there are a number of reasons.

"East Jordan is not the tourist town that others are. People here don't want it."

She reminisces about the Tourist Park's beginnings. "It was Tom St. Charles' life for about 10 or 15 years. With a lot of volunteers helping, he laid out streets and planted trees."

The big community building was a log cabin at first and used to be always busy with family reunions and other activities.

What does she wish for out of the old days? "The boatrides. Years ago if you wanted to go to Charlevoix, you either took the train from Bellaire, or you took the boat. The boat would stop at all the farmers' docks along the way. Took on loads of apples, potatoes and lumber. On the trip back, it dropped off grocery orders."

Her father, Roy, was one of the men who went to Washington to get the Pine River in Charlevoix deepened into a channel between the lakes. "That's when he got his stovepipe and tails," Mrs. Kamradt remembers.

On his return, East Jordan latched onto the tail hat and tails for use in local theatricals.

Martha Kamradt gives out all kinds of information in her job with the Chamber of Commerce. She gives maps to tourists and she tells local people what hours the dump is open.

Mrs. Kamradt and her husband, Ed, began answering questions for the Chamber of Commerce in 1961, when the booth was opened. Before that for 18 years, they had answered similar questions at their Golden Rule Gas Station - minus, of course, the maps and brochures available today.

Before that they had a potato warehouse for 11 years with an office where the Iron Works office is now.

Explaining the demise of the potato business in East Jordan, she tells this story. Once the warehouse received a rush order for a carload of potatoes at $1.45 a hundred/weight. The farmers held out for $1.50. "Couldn't buy a potato," she said. In a week the price dropped to $1.45 and by spring was at 10 cents a hundred/weight.

The Kamradts brought up their three children during the Depression. "It was hard, but I'm glad we did," she says surprisingly. "Our youngsters learned how to work and take care of themselves." She remembers how they had to choose between once-a-week pie or a 10 cent ticket to the movies.

Mrs. Kamradt's eyes get a far-away look. There are 16 great-grandchildren now.

When Mr. Kamradt died shortly after they began their Chamber of Commerce work, Mrs. Kamradt recognized for herself the truth that you have to be needed. "I said to myself, you are needed - your knowledge and love for the town. You can help." She emphasizes the "can."

So now she does a 24 hour-a-day stint, because she has the Chamber phone line going into her home. Sometimes that means answering the phone at 2:30 a.m. to tell someone in Ohio if the morels are out yet, or what the weather will be for the weekend. East Jordan's Chamber is the only one in the area with 24-hour phone service.

What is the question most often asked? She laughs. It is "What days is the dump open?"

"Once a man, driving a converted Greyhound bus stopped and asked me where he could get a bear." Stores selling exotic meats being rather far away, she began calling friends to see if they knew anyone who had any bear meat stashed away. "I'm afraid I'm putting you to a lot of trouble," he said. "I only want a few cans of beer."

Accents can be a problem.

She sent him to Bill Taylor's store - and Taylor still ribs her about it. But she is experienced now. She figured it out when some French-speaking tourists asked where is SharVWAH? And she's not fazed when people ask for directions to KahDellie (Cadillac).

"But I'm glad East Jordan isn't like it was years ago when we had 23 beer gardens!" she said. It was, however, a flourishing town, she adds, not with tourists but with two cooperages, two sawmills, the Foundry, a shingle mill, a maple flooring plant, brickyard, handle factory, furnace and chemical plants.

"Nothing can stand still - either has to go up or go down." She would like to see some focus that would draw people to the town. "We have so much to offer people. Seems wicked not to share what we take for granted."

Festival starts July 4

Plans are final for busiest weekend

EAST JORDAN - The Jordan Valley Festival, traditionally the most busy and fun weekends of the year in East Jordan, will start next Wednesday, July 4.

The climax of the festival will be Saturday, when the parade, fireworks, teen dance, polka tent, flea market and craft fair will all be held.

But the festival starts Wednesday with a kiddie parade at 10 a.m. It starts on Main Street across from the Fire Department.

The East Jordan Lionses are sponsoring the parade, which will have "Kiddies of Tomorrow" as its theme.

Cash prizes will be awarded to the top entries following that theme. Categories are floats, groups, individuals and bikes.

After the parade, a children's carnival will be held in Memorial Park.

At 1 p.m. Wednesday, a group of local senior citizens will be performing a musical comedy, "The Family Doctor." They'll be performing in front of the Senior Center on Main Street. They will also repeat it at 1 p.m. Saturday.

Bonnie Omland Thomas is directing a cast which includes Jason Snyder, Isobel David, Allene Elliot, Albert Omland, Milton Ververka, Inez Parker, Fred Eichler, Millie Bathke, Ruby Miller, Muriel Zoulak, Lora Jensen and Florence Jackson.

The Jordan Valley Lions Club will host their fourth annual Polka Fest on the tennis courts on the west side of the lake, just off highway M-32.

Bands will be playing starting at 2 p.m. Wednesday and at 6 p.m. Thursday through Saturday. There's a $1 cover charge to get in the tent.

On Saturday, the Chamber of Commerce will sponsor a flea market in Memorial Park from 9 a.m. to dark, and the Portside Hobby and Handicraft Show at Elm Point.

The parade will begin at 2 p.m. with Barney Milstein leading the way as grand marshal. It will start at the middle school and wind its way through the downtown area. You can still enter the parade by calling chairperson Pam Burr at 536-2160.

At dark, the festival will end with a fireworks display over the lake.

But protect tourism

More industry needed

BY JOE McELROY

CHARLEVOIX - Providing a stable economic base which relies on more than the tourism industry is an important goal for the economic growth of the county, according to a study recently updated by the Charlevoix County Planning Commission.

But at the same time, planning officials say, the push for more industry can't be done at the expense of sacrificing the area's natural resources.

Every year the planning commission must update its report on the subject, titled the "Charlevoix County Overall Economic Development Program. It is the county's economic growth, and calls for new programs such as extended water and sewer service to townships and downtown redevelopment.

But just because a goal is established, doesn't mean it will become a reality. It does however, give the county commission and local governments something to think about.

"It's a listing of what we would like to see happen to promote good economic growth," says County Planner John Hess. "Call it a shopping list."

Things like better sewer facilities cost big money, money which can often be obtained through state and federal economic development funding. But if a municipality requests money without having a comprehensive economic plan, those who control the pursestrings will, "shoot it back and say they won't even consider it," Hess said. "If they have a plan, they'll have a shot at it."

Some of the projects mentioned in the report include: Improved water and sewer system for Boyne City, Charlevoix and East Jordan; upgrading marina and port facilities in Charlevoix; redesigning the East Jordan Tourist Park and developing adequate landfill facilities for the county.

But even federal grant money usually requires some local funding, so continued economic growth is needed to buy some of the things on the county's shopping list.

Hess and the planning commissioners think the county is too dependent on tourism, a pleasant but relatively unstable industry.

"We need to broaden our economic base," Hess says. "The basic building block right now is tourism. If you're totally dependent on that and something goes wrong, like a gas shortage, you're in trouble."

Hess says that tourism is sure to suffer in bad economic times. "If you have to make a cut in your personal budget, one of the easiest things to cut is recreation. You can't cut down your food bill or rent very much, but you can spend less money on recreation."

"We should be looking to even out our economic base a little more." Even though the tourism business in the county has been good in recent years, the county unemployment rate is still 10.6, higher than both state and national averages.

How can the county attract more industry? One attraction is a largely non-union labor force which will work for less money than people in bigger downstate cities. "Texas Instruments put a plant in Antrim County and you can bet they didn't do it just because it's a nice area," Hess said. "They were attracted by the labor force."

Hess said the county also tries to keep incoming businesses from getting tangled in governmental red tape. He said the county doesn't bend the rules, but instead, "We try to streamline the permit process. We try to get it done as quickly as possible."

Most new businesses need health and building permits.

But the county still has to be careful about what type of industry it wants to attract, Hess said. "We realize this area is very attractive because of the natural resources we have," he said.

"We would try to attract the type of business that would be conducive to this area. I don't think you'd want to see something like a steel plant."

The goal, Hess said, is to attract clean, non-polluting industry. "We don't want to destroy the tourism industry," he said. "The idea isn't to make this another Detroit."

"We can look at what's happened downstate and prevent some of those things up here."

Teen talk group starts

EAST JORDAN - "This town has absolutely no place for kids to go."

That's Karen Bennett talking - explaining why she helped start a Teen-Age Talk Group this summer.

As a mother and a board member of the local Child Abuse Prevention committee, Bennett is concerned about teens' problems.

Helping her form the talk group was Ken Young, who did a lot of talking to teens when he owned the Circus O'Flavors ice cream shop. He couldn't make money on the shop, however, and closed it this spring. It was a popular place for teens to hang out, but now they don't have a place.

"Ken said a lot of the kids that came into Circus O'Flavors had problems and liked to talk to somebody about them," Bennett said. So the teen talk group was formed.

The group has met the last two Thursdays and will meet this Thursday, June 28, from 6:30 to 8 p.m. in the middle school gymnasium.

Starting July 2, the meeting night will be changed to Mondays at the same time and place for the rest of the summer.

High school and middle school age youths are welcome to attend the rap sessions.

Some young people are afraid to talk openly about their own problems, and they can remain anonymous in the discussions. They write down their problems and put them in a shoe box. Then Bennett and Young pull them out of the box and the group members discuss them. "No one knows whose problems are whose," Bennett said.

"Some are very serious, and some are relatively minor, but they are all important to the person who has the problem," Bennett said. The problems might range from alcoholic parents to brother and sister disagreements.

Since the problems of older teens are quite different than those of the younger ones, the group will probably be split into two age groups soon.

Films on topics such as drug abuse, teen-age pregnancies and alcoholism will be shown later this summer.

If the talk groups seem to be successful, they may be continued on a year-round basis through the schools, Bennett said.

Name our new bird!

Here it is, your chance to go down in history.

Well, maybe not history, but at least a place in local trivia. Just think, someday, somewhere, someone will say, "Say, who named the bird they use at The Charlevoix County Press?"

Yes, it is time to name the bird, which until now has been known only as The Bird. But a few weeks back, we made a few changes in the way The Press looks.

For one thing, we introduced fancier "standing headlines," which are the logos you see at the top of various pages in the paper, such as the editorial and sports pages.

And, with much effort, we redesigned The Bird to make him more distinctive. Wait a second. Did we say "him?" How could we? We don't know whether The Bird is a he or she.

That's up to you. Think up a good name for The Bird and tell us about it in 25 words or less. Mail your entry to Name The Bird, C/O Charlevoix County Press, Box 216, Boyne City, Michigan, 49712. The winner gets dinner for two, exclusive of drinks, at any area restaurant. Good luck.

City attorney says...

Petitions aren't valid

BOYNE CITY - The legal maneuvering on the future of Front Street continues.

The City Commission and interested citizens were told by City Attorney Harvey Varnum Tuesday that the initial petition submitted by a group calling itself the Right To Vote Committee is invalid.

That petition asked the commission to pass an ordinance putting the closing of Front Street to a vote of the people. The commission has given initial approval to close the street to make way for the 270 condominiums proposed for the old tannery property. But Varnum said the petition is invalid because it goes against the city charter, which says street closings can only be approved by the commission, not public votes.

"Authority granted to the legislative body by the charter cannot be taken away except by amendment to the Charter itself," Varnum said.

But the news didn't really disturb Dick Dubin, spokesman for the Right To Vote Committee. His group has already drawn up another petition to change the charter. Only five percent of the town's registered voters must sign this petition to get it on the ballot.

Dubin's group isn't sure yet whether they will circulate this petition and present it to the city. They are happy that the commission, faced with a possible charter amendment, finally decided to have a public vote August 7 on the closing of Front Street.

But Dubin didn't rule out the possibility that his group will circulate the charter amendment petition in an attempt to force public votes on all future closings of major streets.

The Right to Vote Committee and our attorney will not contest Harvey Varnum's opinion, Dubin told the commission.

But he said his group is now considering two options. They may just wait for the result of the election, or they might circulate the charter amendment petitions.

"That decision has not been reached."

The Right To Vote Committee got over 800 names on its first petition and feels confident it could muster enough support for a charter amendment petition. Carol Judkins said, "I would daresay that 95-98 percent of the names on those petitions are registered voters."

You must be a registered voter for your name to count on any such petition.

Artrain coming to Boyne?

BOYNE CITY - Hey, Boyne City, Artrain might be coming your way.

The Artrain is a traveling art show, a train that carries works of Michigan artists to different cities throughout the state. Mayor Keith Fitzpatrick recently got a letter from an Artrain official saying that Boyne would be an "ideal setting" for the train to make one of its 15 stops next year.

Last year Artrain came to Petoskey, where an art show featuring local artists was held in conjunction with the train's visit.

Artrain Community Coordinator

James Patterson said, "Recently I visited Boyne City and noted the ideal setting, the Boyne City Railroad tracks leading into the BCRR building, which is a structure I find exciting potential for."

The tour will go from April through July. No other city in this part of the state is being considered for an Artrain appearance.

The Boyne City commissioners seemed enthusiastic about the idea, although they hoped the Boyne City appearance would be closer to July than April so the weather would be warmer."

Renovation--good idea turns sour

Renovating the rear of the East Jordan Community building is a good idea that has turned into a public relations nightmare.

A number of instances of poor judgment and poor communication by city officials may scuttle what could have been a popular project.

First, we think the city council and administration had the best of intentions when they proposed the renovation project. It is unfortunate that they are getting criticism as a result of trying to do something progressive. Some council members are getting the attitude that "This is the last time I'll try to do something innovative for this town!"

But we think some of the heat the city officials have been taking on this project is warranted. In politics, the style in which something is done is as important as what is accomplished. The style in this instance leaves much to be desired.

Initially, the project was unveiled informally to council members and the press after a city council meeting. We did an article on the renovation proposal, which told of City Superintendent Herm Rasch's general ideas for how the center might look and what it might be used for. He estimated it would cost $70,000.

That was the last we heard of the idea until the annual budget hearing two months later. The Finance Committee had apparently done a considerable amount of talking about the project, but we didn't hear any of the discussion.

The project was approved by the council as part of the budget -- but only four of seven council members were at the budget hearing. The project was discussed at the hearing, but no clear definitive statement was really made about how the Community Center would be used.

We agree with George Shank, the major critic of the project, when he says there should have been public hearings about the Community Center before it was included in the budget. Answering questions at the budget hearing wasn't enough. Representatives of local organizations could have been invited in a democratic attempt to find out if the community center is really needed, what it could be used for, and where it should be located.

Hindsight is always perfect vision, but if more public input had been sought earlier, we doubt if the project would have met so much opposition later on.

When opposition arose, it was handled poorly. Someone should have asked the city attorney for an opinion on the legality of a vote on the project long before two petition drives were conducted.

As it turned out, the city came out looking deceptive. Shank conducted a petition drive, then was told he had done it improperly. He did it again properly and THEN was told that his petitions didn't matter because he couldn't force a vote on a budget item that has already been approved.

Once again, it was the way in which the matter was handled that was wrong. If Shank had been told at the beginning that he couldn't petition for a vote on such a matter, much grief could have been avoided.

The cost of the project is apparently another judgmental error which adds insult to injury for the city. Two bids were opened last week, and they were $24,000 and $37,000 over the $70,000 estimate.

There's a chance that the project can be re-bid or the current bids can be scaled down. But the bids are so high that perhaps the council would be better off saving the budgeted $70,000 until next year. In the meantime the issue could be thoroughly studied.

There are too many questions left to be answered for the people of East Jordan to be asked to support the renovation project. Is there a need for it? Exactly what are those needs? What will it cost to staff and maintain the building? Is a rear alley entrance desirable? What about parking?

A committee of council members and citizens could take the proper time to analyze these questions, hold hearings and make a decision. Perhaps that decision would be the same one that has already been made by the finance committee. But if it is done in a more thorough manner with public input, taxpayers will be more apt to support it -- even with a higher price tag.

The rear of the Community Center would be used as the main entrance if the back part of the building is renovated. Some East Jordan residents think the question should be put to a vote.

Letter from the editor

Behind the news

It happened. I am told, in the laundromat. I wasn't there, but according to one of my colleagues, the story goes something like this:

A reader was admiring last week's paper. "You know," he said, "this is real interesting. This meeting (on a proposed renovation of the downtown area) didn't happen until last night, but they still got a story on it."

"But a couple of weeks ago, when the Right to Vote Committee decided to get a petition going, there wasn't story about it until the next week."

Hmmm. No doubt other careful readers of The Press made the same comparison. It's true. Dick Dubin let the media know about his group's petition drive at a Tuesday noon meeting of the Boyne City Commission. But there wasn't anything about this latest attempt to "Save Front Street" in our newspaper the next day.

Last week, however, we did have a fairly lengthy report on that meeting between city officials and downtown businessmen.

Why is this? If you have a suspicious mind, you might say to yourself, "Well, The Press has editorially supported the closing of Front Street for the tannery condominiums, so they decided not to give the petition drive much ink, hoping lack of attention would hurt the petition effort."

And that would be a logical, although misinformed conclusion. It's true I think the best thing for the city would be to have Front Street closed so the proposed development could be built.

But it's also true that when a newspaper starts deliberately "managing" the news, its readers will soon quit trusting the paper and become ex-readers. That's why we always try to get the comments of both sides into stories, even if we think one side's position is less logical.

But sometimes the news manages us. When it comes to getting your side of a story into a weekly newspaper, having an opinion that agrees with the editor isn't as important as giving the paper adequate notice of what you're up to.

Tuesday is deadline day here. That means 10 or more hours of semi-organized mayhem, trying to get out a good paper in a hurry. In the middle of this busy day, the Boyne City Commission has its weekly meetings.

I knew the Tuesday, June 12, meeting was going to be important. A major new program was going to be unveiled. I had been tipped off several days earlier that something was in the wind.

Great. We needed a good story for the top of the front page, and we had just taken some pictures of downtown for a Chamber of Commerce brochure. Of course the upcoming school elections were big stories as well.

The meeting was everything I expected, and more. The city manager said the entire downtown could get a facelift within two years. Great stuff.

And Dick Dubin dropped his petition bombshell on the commission, although I didn't then realize how important his move would eventually become. I figured he would get enough petition signatures asking the commission for a Front Street vote, but that they would say no, just as they have for months.

I took some notes on Dubin's petition drive, but as I hurried back to the office, my main concern was finding the time to do a big story on the downtown project proposal.

In between writing headlines, photo captions and telling our new production personnel what stories should go where, I got the downtown story done. I even found time to do a short story on Dubin's petition. I remember wishing he had told me about it before the meeting -- we could have planned the paper differently if we had been given more notice.

By the time both stories were written, we had the paper almost done except for the front page. Right away I could see there was too much material for one page. The downtown story took up much of it, and we had to get the school election stories in. One of them, a profile of school board candidates, made page one. The story on the millage vote was squeezed onto page three by yanking a second picture of the Boyne City ambulance crew's participation in a disaster drill.

The front page was filled out by a story on school kids using the newspaper in class. It had been held the week before and had to get in this time, because the school year was about to end. The petition drive story didn't make it.

In the following days, the importance of the petition drive became clear. By threatening an amendment of the city charter, those against the road closing had forced the commission into approving a public vote. It was a very effective political move.

But even looking back on it, I don't know how we could have gotten the story into the paper on such short notice when another major story had broken at the same time. Who should I give the publicity to, the city officials who let me know about the major renovation proposal ahead of time, or the petition organizers who surprised me at the last minute?

The moral of all this is that the media's motives aren't as manipulative as some might imagine. We usually don't have much time for conniving. The other moral is that if you plan to pull a last minute surprise, do it on a slow news week.

The Press is one of the few weeklies that prints Tuesday night meetings in Wednesday's issue. But we can only do that if we can plan ahead for it. When the city had its meeting with merchants on the downtown renovation, we were given plenty of notice. That's a good practice for newsmakers who want their actions reported in The Press. It helps us help you.

Letter to the editor

Discipline by degrees

Editor,

Isn't it about time to lay to rest the subject of discipline at the school system in East Jordan?

A year ago, when discipline was reportedly lax, we heard a lot of complaints. So the school board hired a man to straighten things out. And we still hear some very vocal complaints.

Complaints of "too strict" and that he should have done it "by degrees" are heard, directed of course at the new principal, Bud Ashton.

He gets the blame for doing what he was hired to do.

Should he have changed rules "by degrees"?

May I set up a hypothetical situation? Consider a situation in which you are a state policeman. You have just caught me driving too fast, way too fast!

You call in and find out that I've barely kept from losing my license over the past few years because of speeding tickets. I was doing 70 when you caught me. So you say, "I see that you have been accustomed to driving way over the speed limit. It wouldn't be fair to make you change your habits too quickly. So I tell you what. This week you cut down to sixty five, next week to sixty and so on until you are driving fifty five and I'll let you go!"

Horsefeathers! Or. If I hit one of your children, playing in the street, when I was going 40 in a 25 mile an hour zone, and Joe Hammond came to investigate would you say, "Don't be too hard on him. He has been driving at that speed, and getting by with it; you shouldn't punish him. It's habit."

Folks, you gotta be kiddin'! Had the new principal done it by degrees, you'd have said, "Good gosh! Can't that guy make up his mind on what he wants?"

When I was in school, Dad always told me, "If you get licked in school, you'll get licked far worse when you get home!" And I knew from several experiences, and a sore behind, that Dad was an expert with that old razor strop for other than stropping that straight edge razor!

And had I ever used swear words to the teacher he'd probably have had to come down to school and see if he could get my head and face back on the same side of the wall that my other end was! And I shudder to think what would have happened after that!

But isn't it regrettable that you have to admit that you haven't taught your kids discipline at home? It shouldn't have to be the teachers job to teach them the basics! Or as a teacher I knew, who had quit teaching, put it, "I got sick and tired of putting up with 25 kids at one time when their parents couldn't put up with them one at a time!"

It was the school system that lured us here in 1948. And I'm glad for the recent turn of events. Sure there are some things wrong and there probably always will be! But we've got things on the upswing and let's keep it thataway.

I have not met Mr. Ashton. But I think it is time to. He took the job knowing it would be a hard one. He laid down his rules. Remember when the country school teacher always had the rules on the blackboard the first day of school? And he has stuck to them. Let's hope by next year things will go smoother. When a teacher's time is used up in discipline, she has less time for teaching.

Correction

The caption on the Ronald Bradley-Roxanne Erickson wedding photo was incorrect last week. It should have said, "Mr. and Mrs. Bradley."

Zounds! Alack! Inflation breezes

Alas and alack and woe and phooey! Times and the stupidity of human nature are fanning the winds of ill fortune to disrupt our accustomed ways.

For more than half a century folks from down state and fringe states have motored north in summer to mingle with a lofty race of people -- and to enjoy the thrill and excitement generated by the murmuring pine and the hemlock.

But zounds! If I may open my dictionary and come up with that alarming word.

People everywhere are spreading rumors in a loud voice: It now costs too much to vacation in Northern Michigan. Many will stay home. And the songs of summer cash registers will be sung off key.

I did not think these things up on my own hook. They came from rumors, coffee table talk, research findings, and financial pencil twisters who are saying doom is all set to flourish.

It's being batted around down state that those who do come here to bask in the summer breeze of Northern Michigan will find the price has jumped from $2 to $3 per breeze. Personally, I prefer those people who shut up even when they know what they are talking about.

Contributing to this delinquent gossip is the highly unstable gasoline situation: Once we're up north, will we be able to wheedle enough gas out of a harassed dealer to get home?

And there's the pump price. What an over sized blackberry seed under your false teeth!

Sharp mathematicians have brought it to our attention that 10 gallons of gas for $10 means that you are paying one dollar per gallon -- another wart to worry about.

I've often said that in a gas shortage, or even a turnip shortage, the first thing to be done is to shoot all mathematicians, for they make worrying too realistic. But no one pays any attention to what I've often said.

A Petoskey businesswoman blames "big oil" and President Carter. "If he doesn't straighten out this gasoline thing, we may have to close our doors." This was emphasized by a mouth that would fit a full sized pumpkin pie.

Marshall

President Carter is a likeable man, a Sunday school teacher, a good individual to spout human rights, a harmless politician who is not a crook -- an upright man who doesn't hardly whip anyone's hind end at all.

But he does have not have Harry Truman's mouth, nor Teddy Roosevelt's big stick. He seems to lack the ability to lower the boom on our energy drought, forcing us the culprits to stop wasting precious resources.

So it might well be that Northern Michigan will tread knee deep in over due bank notes this summer -- despite the murmuring pine and the hemlock. Yea gads, how I hate such troding.

Liking Mr. Carter as we do, and feeling sorry for his inability to cope, there's but one thing to be said:

Mr. President, we who are about to cry, salute you!

(Note to the editor: this column was intended to be sarcastic. I was able to write it that way because I provided myself with a large amount of sarcasm before starting out.

Fireworks lesson

The Fourth of July means fireworks, and that can also mean accidents. That's what happened to Ronda Decker, 13, of East Jordan last week. "I don't want this to happen to anyone else," said her mother Carol Nelson as she called The Press and asked that a picture be taken. "They shouldn't sell these things to kids." However, Ronda was burned by a legal variety of fireworks available in several local outlets. It was cylinder-shaped and is designed to throw off showers of colored sparks. A friend held it to close to Ronda's face, and she was burned so badly that she could not open either eye.

New Boyne realty firm opens in City Hall

BOYNE CITY - The Boyne area has new real estate firm, headed up by some familiar names.

Marilyn Roberts and Keith and Betty Dressel are the owners of Boyne Country Realty, Inc., which opened for business last week with an office in the Boyne City Hall.

All three were formerly associated with Keith Dressel Realty, which Dressel founded but sold several years ago. They have hired Hal Price as a salesman, and say they will add more staff later.

"We feel by opening our own office we can give more personal service," said Mrs. Roberts. "It's going to be fun."

"There's no problem between us and the people at Dressel," she said. "We're still friends, but this is something we want to do."

City officials won't let their new tenants put a sign in front of City Hall, but Mrs. Roberts doesn't think that will hurt. "Our reputation is good so it will travel by word of mouth," she said.

The office is open Monday through Saturday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. The phone number is 582-2242.

SHOULD I BRING MY CHILD TO THE FUNERAL?

Just as with adults, children need to express their feelings of grief. To deny your child this emotional outlet is to handicap his natural, maturing development. Children can cope with death better than you may expect.

A child's emotional resiliency is truly remarkable and often under-rated. With adequate preparation, a child may attend the funeral and will be all the better for it. But the child must be told what to expect at the funeral. If he or she understands what is happening, there's a better feeling during and after the ceremonies.

Do not force the child to attend, though. Each child may react differently, but if you anticipate any problems, feel free to discuss this with us fully at your convenience.

Your questions and comments on this and other subjects are welcome -- in private or publicly through this column.

News Update

Still at large

Boyne City Police are still looking for William Malcomson, Sr., 28, accused with arson in connection with the May 11 fire that destroyed the main building at F.O. Barden & Son Lumber Company.

The suspect was charged with one count of arson and another count of breaking and entering, police say, after goods stolen from the lumber yard were allegedly found in his home.

Police suspect Malcomson might have fled to Florida.

No marathon

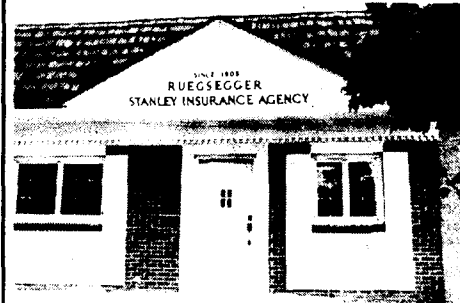

For the second time this month, an attempt to set a new world's record for the longest volleyball game in history has fallen short. A group of Boyne City volleyball enthusiasts gave it a try two weeks ago, but had to quit several hours short of the record because of injuries.

They had planned to try again last weekend, but had to cancel at the last minute because several players were unable to attend.

BOYNE CITY COMMISSION MINUTES

RECORD OF THE PROCEEDINGS OF THE REGULAR MEETING OF THE BOYNE CITY COMMISSION DULY CALLED AND HELD AT THE BOYNE CITY PUBLIC LIBRARY ON TUESDAY JUNE 12, 1979 AT 7:00 P.M.

Roll Call: Present: Mayor Keith Fitzpatrick, Commissioners Thelma Behling, Joseph Gierlach, Catherine Jessup and Steven Moody. Absent: None. Also Present: City Manager Timothy Clifton, City Clerk Tom Garlock and City Attorney Harvey Varnum.

The minutes of the Regular Meeting of May 8, 1979 were approved as corrected as received in the packet and the minutes of the Special Meeting of May 24, 1979 were approved.

Correspondence was read from Michael Davis, Charlevoix-Emmet County Youth Activities Program Director concerning a proposal for the establishment of a Boyne City Youth Authority. He presented preliminary guidelines and by-laws for such establishment. Discussion followed on the formation of such an authority, however the Commission tabled the matter until noon meeting Tuesday, June 19, in order for them to study the by-laws more thoroughly as presented by Mr. Davis.

Correspondence was read signed by John DiMartino, et. al., requesting that the Commission consider the establishment of an Airport Advisory Board for the Boyne City Municipal Airport with a request to enact an enabling Ordinance to create such a Board. Mr. DiMartino appeared, representing the group and stated that the Board would seek to accomplish the following objectives:

1. To serve as a "watch dog" for airport management.
2. To obtain the most efficient return on tax dollars spent at the airport.
3. To create a positive attitude toward the Boyne City Municipal Airport "especially as it relates to non-users."
4. To foster the idea that the airport can be more of an asset to the entire City of Boyne City.

The City Manager recommended that the Commission adopt such an Ordinance, since this is a specialized field and expertise in State and Federal aviation rules and regulations is necessary.

The City Attorney was directed to draft an Ordinance creating such a Board and report to the Commission at the next meeting.

Moved by Gierlach, seconded by Moody to adopt the following Resolution to honor the excellent work done by Officers Michael Wheat and Randy Howard:

RESOLUTION

WHEREAS, Officers Michael Wheat and Randy Howard requested permission to work Extra Off Duty hours so they could work together on the investigation of several Breaking and Entering cases.

WHEREAS, the investigation resulted in solving five (5) Breaking and Entering cases, thirteen (13) Larceny cases and two (2) felony Damage to Property cases.

WHEREAS, the final results were the arrest of four (4) adults and three (3) juveniles.

WHEREAS, Officer Randy Howard requested permission to work Extra Off Duty hours with the State Police Fire Marshal on the investigation of the Barden Lumber Yard fire of May 12, 1979.

WHEREAS, a case of Breaking and Entering and a case of Arson were established.

WHEREAS, a warrant has been issued for the arrest of the suspect.

NOW, THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED that the City Commission of Boyne City on behalf of the citizens of Boyne City commend Police Officers Randy Howard and Michael Wheat for their Exemplary effort in the performance of their duty.

Mayor, Keith Fitzpatrick City Clerk, Thomas Garlock

Roll call all yeas. Motion carried.

The City Manager presented Change Order #2 - Well Installation Contract at Rotary Park in the amount of $461.00 for the substitution of a 1 1/4 HP pump to replace a 1/2 HP pump as originally specified in the bid documents.

The principle intent of the well installation at Rotary park was to provide water service to the drinking fountain to be installed. However, major improvements are also being made to the two ball diamonds. A problem experienced in the past was that water service was not available to sprinkle the diamonds and keep them in an acceptable condition.

By substituting the 1 1/4 HP pump for the 1/2 HP pump, sufficient pressure will be available to sprinkle the fields whereas this would not have been possible with only a 1/2 HP pump.

Moved by Fitzpatrick, seconded by Jessup to allow Change Order #2 in the amount of $461.00 to Luttrell Well Drilling, Inc., to increase the size of the well pump from 1/2 to 1 1/4 horsepower. To cover this additional expense, this amount is to be transferred from Account Code 101-101-985, Contingency Reserve to Account Code 101-691-730.715, Rotary Park. Roll call all yeas. Motion carried.

The City Manager presented Change Order #3 - Well Installation Contract at Rotary Park, in the amount of $397.50 for 150 feet of additional 1 1/4 P.V.C. water service line and associated trenching.

The additional 150 feet of water service line was necessitated to extend the water line to the far field (Christensen Field). Without the extension, maintenance and sprinkling of Christensen Field would not have been equal to the adjacent field.

Moved by Fitzpatrick, seconded by Moody to allow Change Order #3 in the amount of $397.50 for 150 feet of additional 1 1/4 P.V.C. water service line and associated trenching to Luttrell Well Drilling, Inc. Funds to be transferred from Account Code 101-101-985, Contingency Reserve Account to Account Code 101-691-730.715, Rotary Park. Roll call all yeas. Motion carried.

The City Manager gave a report that annually the City must purchase sufficient amounts of patching material to repair "pot-holes" on the City street system. An adequate supply is purchased to be utilized through the summer months for repairs necessitated by washouts. A surplus amount is ordered simultaneously to stockpile the material so that it is immediately available to repair the streets in the spring when damaged by thaw.

Three firms were contacted via the telephone to provide quotations on the shipping of 51 tons of CP-1 Patching Material. Below is a summary of the quotations received:

Peninsula Asphalt Corp. $19.95/ton
Hodgkiss & Douma, Inc. $21.85/ton
Keith Riley Const. Co. $22.50/ton

Moved by Moody, seconded by Jessup to authorize the City Manager to purchase 51 tons of CP-1 Patching Material from Peninsula Asphalt Corporation at $19.95 per ton, total amount being $1017.45. The expense to be spread between the Major and Local Street Funds Patching Activity Codes 202-464-727.06 - Major/203-464-727.06 - Local. Roll call all yeas. Motion carried.

The City Manager gave a report on the letting of bids for a new City Dump Truck in order to begin a scheduled purchasing program for all City vehicles, where they would be replaced every six years, on a revolving program. This would help alleviate the escalating cost of maintenance. He recommended that the bid be given to R. & C. C. Bollinger, Inc.

Moved by Fitzpatrick, seconded by Jessup that the City accept the bid of R. & C. C. Bollinger, Inc., for the purchase of a 1980 International S-Series Dump Truck in an amount not to exceed $19,000. Trade in to be a 1969 International Dump Truck. Funds are to be taken from Account Code 061-000-975.01, Dump Truck. Roll call all yeas. Motion carried.

The City Manager reported that the Monthly Budget Report had been delayed and would be presented during the week of June 18th. The delay was caused by the development of a new format for presenting the monthly budget report. The new format will be more conducive to the needs of the Commission in reviewing the City's monthly financial status.

Moved by Jessup, seconded by Fitzpatrick to authorize the expenditure of not to exceed $500.00 to rent a tree transplanter machine and transplant pine trees donated by Mel Howard to create green belts at the pump station and the sewage plant. Funds are to be withdrawn from Account Code 101-691-730.16, Grounds and Landscaping.

A request was received by the City Commission to financially assist the Boyne City Summer Swim School in the amount of $500.00.

Moved by Fitzpatrick, seconded by Behling that the City appropriate $500.00 from Account Code 101-691-730.30, Band Shell to finance the Swim School Program. Roll call all yeas. Motion carried.

The City Manager gave a report on the need for hiring some additional part time help for the administrative staff. Normal assignments conducted on a daily, weekly, monthly, or quarterly basis are consistently being completed behind schedule. It would be economical to hire part time help at a lesser amount, than to pay overtime expense to the present staff.

Moved by Moody, seconded by Jessup to authorize the City Manager to hire a clerk-typist for additional clerical help for the administrative department with the necessary funds to be transferred from the Contingency Reserve to a newly established code within the Central Administrative Budget. Roll call all yeas. Motion carried.

The Clerk read the schedules of meetings for the month and stated that all minutes of the various boards and commissions were available for public review at the City Hall or the Library. The public is invited to attend the following meetings of Boards and Commissions:

The City Attorney read the complete text of a proposed Junk Car Ordinance. He advised against its adoption, until the city's volunteer clean up program is complete and until the car crusher program is undertaken. The adoption of this Ordinance was tabled.

Mr. Darryl Smith appeared and protested a letter he received concerning Ordinance A-10, Section 16. His protests were heard and duly noted.

Mr. Richard Dubin appeared and asked question of the City Attorney concerning the circulation of a petition to change the charter. The City Attorney stated that it was his decision that under Michigan Case Law, the City Commission's powers cannot be expanded or reduced by Ordinance. Therefore the petition was too broad in scope to be legally binding. The Group must change the charter, rather than initiate a vote on adding an ordinance.

Moved by Gierlach, seconded by Jessup to adjourn. Meeting adjourned at 8:29 p.m.

WHY TEACH children to add and subtract. These are too difficult. I suggest Base One (the counting system) and the Area Method (for multiplication and division). The area method teaches us to draw a picture and count to multiply. Base One uses only one symbol. One million does get difficult to write now. Mathematicians will work on that. Also zero, nothing from nothing leaves nothing. John Kraemer 1-35-ltc

THANK YOU

A BIG "THANK YOU" to doctors, nurses and aides in Charlevoix Hospital, to Rev. Alan Pareis, and his visits to hospital and home. God Bless Lavina Kupp 3-34-2tc

I WOULD like to thank all my relatives, friends, and neighbors for the cards and beautiful flowers sent in memory of my brother Herbert Behling. A special thank you to Rev. BOYNE CITY - Bardell and Jodell Aimesbury combined for seven hits to lead Kaden's to an 11-6 win over Foxy Ladies in early season action last week in the Women's Slow Pitch League.

In another game last Tuesday, Boyne Falls Log Homes beat Mogul Inn 19-8.

On Thursday, the Foxy Ladies beat Ski & Shore, 10-8. Wendy Everest and Geri Weber both had two hits for the winners, with Geri clouting a home run.

Martha Kowalske and Teresa Warren both homered for Ski & Shore.

In the other Thursday night game, Kaden's blew out Mogul Inn, 15-1, as Bardell Aimesbury hit a grand slam home run. Sara Bricker also homered.

Ready for the big race?

Two local runners deserve some commendation for the part each has played in influencing other runners to go out and hit the pavement.

Sandy Kadrovach of East Jordan and Robert Polleys of Boyne City are two dedicated runners that love the sport of jogging.

Both are on the race committee for the July 4 Boyne City Independence Day Race.

"I really encourage everybody in the community to participate in the July 4th race," Polleys, our Boston Marathon man of Boyne City, said. Polleys said the race is going to also attract a lot of people from outside the community.

"We have received entry blanks from Missouri and Waterford, not to mention a lot of other places outside the community."

Two races will be held; a two mile and an eight mile race. Registration for each will begin at 7:30 a.m. at Boyne City Memorial Park.

Ribbons, trophies or T-shirts will be given to each runner who finishes the race.

The race committee will try to provide each runner with the typed results of the race with each runner's official time.

The two mile race will be run through the residential district of town. The eight mile course runs along Lake Charlevoix down Lake Shore Drive to Advance and then turns back to town. Entry fee for the two mile race is $3; a $6 fee is required for the eight mile race if in before June 27 and after that the price is $7.

The race is being sponsored by The Press, Northwestern State Bank, Le Cycliste, Schafers, First National Bank and Trust, Dannon Yogurt, Country

Star Market, Boyne Valley Railroad, the City of Boyne City and the race committee of which Polleys and Sandy are members.

Sandy, one of the first area runners with six years experience behind her, said jogging is an exciting sport that gives her time to think out any problems that might have come up during the day.

"I started (jogging) to get in shape. I wanted to lose some weight. I wasn't doing anything and felt like I was rotting away inside. Jogging is an overall thing; it's not just physical but also mental. I like myself and what I am so I jog," she said.

Polleys, Boyne City's dentist who employs Sandy as an assistant participated in the Boston Marathon last year and had his picture on the cover of Runner's World.

"Running is like winning a lottery," he said, "it has nothing to do with your ability and everyone can do it."

Sandy sometimes jogs the seven miles from home to work. She taught a jogging class through the Enrichment Community Education Program at Boyne City High School last year.

"There is no mile like that first mile. But to run that first mile without stopping is quite a challenge," Sandy told her class.

Polleys' time last year in the Boston Marathon was three minutes, 42 seconds. "It was an experience," he said modestly.

Polleys will probably go back and try the race again next year, but Sandy has set her goal a little lower.

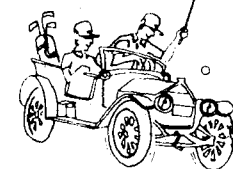

"Maybe I'll run in the Detroit Free Press Marathon this fall. My goal will be just to finish a marathon, but with no specific time set."

Crowded

A good crowd of spectators was on hand Sunday for the finals of the Michigan Amateur Championship, held at Belvedere Golf Club near Charlevoix. Pete Green of Franklin won the tournament for the second time. Mark Custer of Charlevoix also played well in the tournament. [Press photo by Dianne Murray.]

Gas and weather problems

Slow start for Boyne tourist season

Will the tourists who don't ride bicycles be able to come to Charlevoix County? Boyne area merchants report a slow start to the summer tourist season.

BY JOE McELROY

BOYNE CITY - "It could be a tough summer for all of us," moaned one local merchant.

The problem is simple: "Tourism is off to a slow start as area businessmen and tourist centers get ready for the July 4 weekend, traditionally one of the year's biggest.

Nobody is quite sure whether the problem is lack of gas or lack of good weather. But everybody is certain the two are a bad combination.

The weather is bound to improve, but it looks as though the gas situation is getting worse. Several local gas station owners report they are being allocated just 70 percent of the amount of gasoline they were getting a year ago.

What's the gas outlook for the rest of the summer? "We just play it by ear day by day," said Henry Erber, owner of E&M Standard. Mel Howard of Mel's Service estimates that there is 40,000 gallons a month less gas provided for Boyne City than a year ago. That's because allocations are down and two service stations have closed.

Stations have been closing early because they are running out of gasoline. E&M and Mel's now close on Sundays. They say they won't know how much gas they will have for the Fourth of July until early July, when they find out their allocations.

"It's going to hurt everybody in town," Henry Erber predicts. "The tourists are just not going to risk coming up here wondering whether they can get gas."

On a brighter note, weekend gas is still more plentiful up north in Charlevoix County than in downstate cities. "I talk to my friends downstate and they're afraid to come up here," says Gary Schafer, who owns Schafer's store. "But I tell them there's gas five miles outside of Lansing. The problem is in the cities, mostly."

Things are tough all over Northwest Michigan, according to Boyne Area Chamber of Commerce President Mac McNichol, who owns the Boyne River Inn. He recently attended a meeting of area chambers of commerce and reports, "Every chamber says the same thing. The tourists are not here. Every chamber reported a decrease in business."

"But it's not the gas situation. It's really being attributed to bad weather and general economics."

One of the Boyne area's biggest tourist centers is Young State Park in Evangeline Township. Park Manager Ken MacKeller says the park had 2141 camp sites taken on Sunday, June 17, compared with 2,538 a year before.

"That's quite a drop," he said. "It's probably because of the fuel situation down south and the weather."

"It's been colder and we've had a lot more rain this year." On Sunday, June 24, the temperature dropped to 32 degrees at Pellston. Sportsman Bar owner Dan Chamberlain said last week that there has been just one rainless weekend since St. Patrick's Day.

"I am sure it's mostly the weather," said McNichol, when asked to explain the slow start of the tourist season. "Who wants to come to Northern Michigan when it's cold and rainy. We haven't had one decent weekend."

Crossings at the Mackinac Bridge were down 17 percent last weekend from a year ago, making it the least busy June weekend the bridge has ever had.

Northern Michigan businessmen aren't just wringing their hands about slow business. McNichol said both the West Michigan Tourist Association, of which the Boyne chamber is a member, and the Michigan Travel Bureau are planning campaigns to lure reluctant tourists up north.

He said both organizations will be spending $3,500 a week apiece for the next three weeks on newspaper ads in downstate Michigan cities and Chicago. The theme for Michigan cities will be, "Aren't you glad you live close to vacationland?"

How close? Henry Erber says Boyne City is approximately 260 miles, or "exactly one tank of gas," away from Detroit.

Despite discouraging fuel projections, local merchants are optimistically awaiting the Fourth of July weekend. "Tourist season doesn't really start until the fourth, but usually it picks up in June," McNichol said.

So, although one service station owner says, "Our company says it's going to get worse before it gets better," local merchants are hoping for the best.

"People are going to vacation," McNichol said. "You know it and I know it. And we'll get our share."

School open house

BOYNE CITY - An open house of the latest home built by the Boyne City High School building trades' class will be held Sunday, July 1, from 3-7 p.m.

The new house is on Alice Street, just south of Lincoln Street. The homes are built by teacher Harold Hamlin's students and then sold to the public. Hamlin and school officials will be present Sunday to give tours of the new home, a white frame, one story structure.

Boyne railroad ready to roll

BOYNE CITY - The Boyne Valley Railroad is off and running for another year.

The train will make its first regularly scheduled runs of the season this Wednesday, according to general manager Tom Thurston.

It will make round trips to Boyne Falls at 11 a.m. and 1 p.m. on Wednesday and Thursday. It will then start making three trips a day, adding a 3 p.m. trip. It will run Wednesday through Sunday for the rest of the summer.

The train actually made unscheduled "practice" runs last Saturday and Sunday, taking a few passengers who happened to be inquiring about tickets.

Ticket prices will remain the same as last year - $3.50 for adults, $2 for children and a $7.50 family rate for two adults and two children.

The railroad is operating with a different diesel engine than "Ladybug," which has been used the past several years. Thurston said the railroad may hold a contest to come up with a name for the new green engine.

The new engine, he said, is lighter and more powerful than Ladybug.

Howard Fineout will again be the engineer for the train this summer.

Thursday said the train will tentatively be making special runs to Petoskey on July 21, Aug. 4 and Aug. 18, although the dates are not concrete yet.
