COMING EVENTS

Breathe Owl Breathe

Breathe Owl Breathe, a musical duo featuring Micah Middaugh and Andrea Moreno Beals will be in concert July 3, at 2 p.m. at the Jordan River Arts Council, 301 Main St., East Jordan. This creative duo performs all original songs with thought-provoking lyrics sung in harmony.

Breathe Owl Breathe has its roots in independent, classical and traditional music, and has cultivated a musical landscape that is at once playful and reverent, silly and heartfelt, mysterious and familiar. Middaugh and Moreno-Beals experiment with an array of stringed instruments, most notably the cello and guitar, but including the banjo and glockenspiel, and their vocal harmonies to texture the songs. They were raised by rivers and gardens, and their instruments tell the tales. They have traveled to cities and islands, and their voices tell the tales.

Guests will have the opportunity to meet the musicians. Their latest CD, "Breathe Owl Breathe", will be available for sale. Middaugh is a 2001 graduate of East Jordan High School and the son of Steve and Jana Middaugh of East Jordan.

Besides producing music, both Micah and Andrea are visual artists and have works in the Annual Invitational Arts Exhibit now showing at the Center. More than 50 area artists' works are exhibited with many for sale. The gallery will be open daily from 1 - 4 p.m. through July 22. For more information call the JRAC at (231) 536-3385 or Howard Ellis at (231) 536-2125.

Otis Pottery open house

You are cordially invited to the 8th annual weekend of art and chamber music to be held at the Otis Pottery, July 1 - 3. This event features concerts of chamber music on Friday and Saturday evenings at 7:30 p.m., and is open to the public. David, June and Andrew Otis will show their recent clay work.

The chamber music concerts will feature a return of Fran Shelly, professor of flute and principal flutist with the Wichita Symphony Orchestra, Kansas. Andreas Tischhauser has completed his doctoral studies of flute and voice performance. Katherine Tischhauser, cellist, is one of the music faculty of Fort Lewis College, Durango, Colorado.

Otis Pottery is located at 01691 M-66 N., East Jordan; one mile south of the Ironton Ferry. For more information, call (231) 536-7856.

Aten Place presents concert series

The Concerts in the Barn at Bill and Maxine's Aten's farm in Boyne Falls are in their 11th year, and have become a summer entertainment staple for many. The concerts begin on Saturday, July 2, and run all summer, with a final concert on Sept. 3.

All the concerts begin at 7:30 p.m. These are non-profit productions, with a $10 donation at the door provided as compensation to the entertainers.

Concert Schedule:

Employee embezzles $673,000

The Boyne City police department and the Charlevoix County prosecuting attorney have charged a Boyne City woman with embezzlement from her former employer. Karla Lockman, age 34, was arrested and arraigned last week. Lockman was charged with two counts of embezzlement, at this time.

The Boyne City police department received a complaint from the owners of Northern Preferred Title Company regarding missing money from their business. A lengthy investigation has determined that a minimum of $673,000 was converted into Lockman's personal bank account, and was used to purchase a new home and furnishings, new vehicles, horses, trailers and other personal possessions or expenses. Karla Lockman had been employed as a closing agent by Northern Preferred Title. Lockman deposited money from closings, belonging to her employer and their clients, into her personal bank account and they received cashier's checks from her hand, most of which were used for personal items or services. ## Horton Bay expands services

Horton Bay General Store was built in 1876, and it has always been in some incarnation of the same building, and it has always been, at least to some degree, a general store.

It was a central meeting place, a dry good store, and has always had ready to eat foods. Its services changed with the dictates of the time. From 1879 to 1910, the store served as a local post office, even.

Those days are back.

Chip and Claudia Lorenger, former owners of JD's Market in Boyne City, bought the store four years ago. They envisioned a nice store, with the ability to offer fine food. They procured a tavern license for the back, and renovated what were previously living quarters into Morgan's, where they serve that fine food along with beer and wine — the winter months found it cheerfully busy, with local folks gathering for food and conversation in front of a crackling wood fire.

But their vision also extended to the services they would provide Horton Bay by bringing back a genuine "general" store. The store had, through a progression of owners, slipped into a party store motif, and the Lorengers wanted to bring it back to its roots. These days customers can come in for a sandwich or a pound of coffee; a cup of coffee or a coffee cup.

Boyne City celebrates Fourth

With July fourth just around the corner, the Boyne City 4th of July Festival committee has some changes and additions it would like festival goers to be aware of. A complete schedule can be found on page 9.

Schedule changes and additions:

- Kids to Kids Puppet Show: 2 and 4 p.m. on Sunday, July 3, not on the Fourth.
- Family of Faith concert: 6:30 p.m. on Sunday, July 3, not on the Fourth.
- The bike and costume line-up for the parade is at the old middle school, now known as the Early Childhood Development Center.

Stroll the Streets starts Friday

BY KELLY LARSON
Contributing Writer

Downtown Boyne City will again be filled with lively performances and fun activities for people of all ages to enjoy during this summer's Stroll the Streets of Boyne.

The Boyne City Main Street program is organizing entertainment for every Friday night from July 1 - September 2, from 6 - 9 p.m. to create a vibrant and enjoyable atmosphere for residents and visitors to relax and stroll through the downtown.

Last summer's activities, the first time Stroll the Streets was organized, brought a wide variety of activities ranging from high school rock bands to traditional folk artists, gymnastics clubs to drama clubs, and face-painting to balloon-twisting. Last year's event was or-

Six-year-old shoots 40; wins tourney

Maybe what's most remarkable about Logan Smith isn't his golf game. He shot a 40 last week, just four over par, on a 1,200 yard course, and that wasn't bad. He bogied five holes and birdied one. He tied his match and had to go into a sudden death play-off, which he won. That wasn't bad at all. But it still isn't the most remarkable thing about Logan.

The remarkable thing is that he's six years old. He is finally able to write his first and last names, and, since he is finished with kindergarten, is able to even read a good handful of words by himself. Spiderman and Spongebob Squarepants adorn his bedroom walls. In other words, he's a pretty normal six-year-old, who just happens to golf — well.

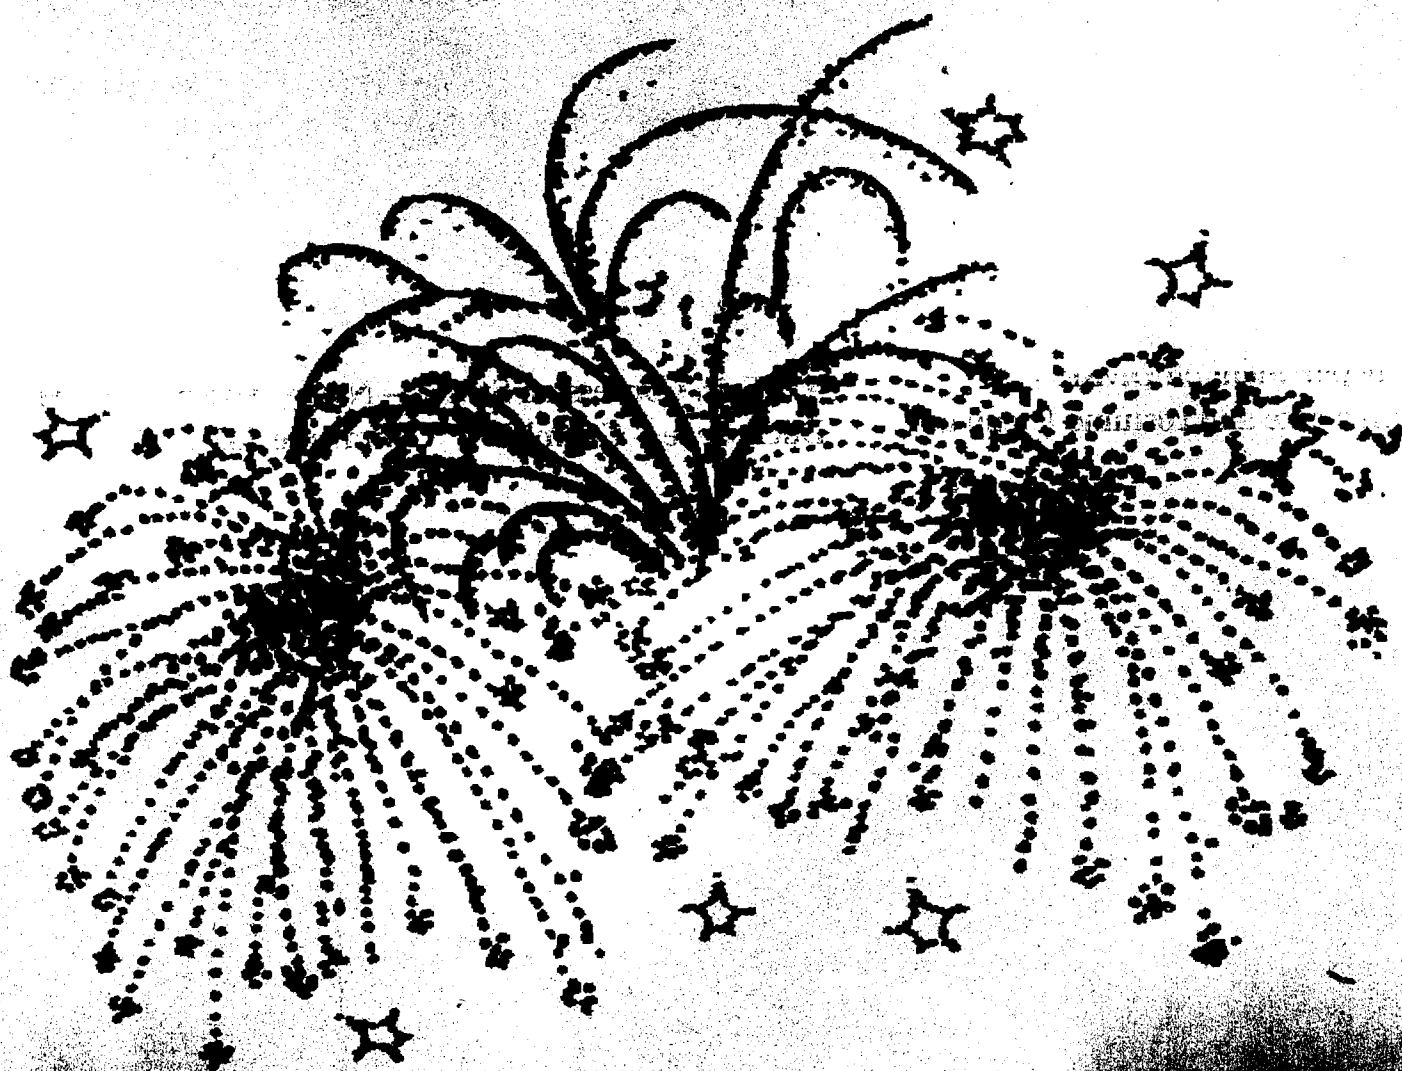

That 40 he shot was the winning game in his age group — 4 years through 6 years — in the State U.S. Kid's Tournament, held at Forest Akers in Lansing.

See LOGAN on page 7

Six-year-old Logan Smith came in first in the Michigan U.S. Kids Golf tournament for the 2nd year in a row. The win will send him to Virginia to compete in a world tournament.

EXTRA HEALTH TIP:

FIREWORKS SAFETY

Fireworks injure thousands of people each year and more than half are children. Most injuries are to the hands or eyes. Many incidents involve bystanders. The three types of fireworks that cause the most accidents are bottle rockets, firecrackers and sparklers. Bottle rockets have erratic flight paths and both these and firecrackers can blow up in any direction. Sparklers can burn at temperatures up to 1800 degrees F, hot enough to melt gold. Keep your holiday safe, abandon the backyard displays and watch fireworks from a distance at our local celebration.

Scents of time

Is it just me, or are smells truly the most evocative thing in the world? More than sights, I think, because nothing looks the same forever. People don't keep looking the same, landscapes and architecture and decorating styles change. They say you can never go back, and I think maybe that's right — but smells can take you back to a place or a time or a feeling in a flash, sometimes unbearable.

Who hasn't heard a mother complain that a certain smell has bothered her ever since it triggered her first trimester nausea — thirty years ago? Who (except those unfortunate sufferers of allergies) doesn't breathe in the scent of lilacs as if the smell alone can capture spring and hold it in place a while longer?

Remember the disappointment of your first cup of coffee? I am a coffee drinker now — but I will admit, the first cup was a bitter disappointment, after years of smelling that heavenly aroma drifting through the morning

LAST CALL

house. In the summer it went with fresh mown hay, in the winter it warmed the smell of snow.

I bought a new perfume this week because it smelled like the flowering bush that grew outside the basement door when I was young — a big bush, and unattractive, with shaggy bark and brittle, snagging branches. But on those branches bloomed a little flower with a scent as pungent and delectable as honeysuckle, only with a pinker aroma — no musk, no spice, just rich sweetness, purely floral. Whenever I catch a whiff of myself these days, I am transported, but just for a millisecond.

My husband's Chevy is another smell. Neil's a pretty tidy, organized guy, and the interior of his Blazer never smells like old french fries or spilled sodas. It smells like one of those tree-shaped air-fresheners, which I don't care for, actually, and his is vanilla-scented, which I generally also don't care for (unless it's for baking, and then, of course, it has a scent history as long as my life).

But I don't know. Events influence smells, like first trimester nausea. In this case, the smell is a dating smell. I get in the Blazer, and it's an automatic date, even if we aren't going any place special. It has that sort of masculine attempt at clean smell, and it smells like a special event.

Christmas trees — so many people have fake ones that the stores sell pine scent at Christmastime. I know why. It's because the feeling of Christmas is captured better by the smell of the tree than its look. I have had a fake one since I got married, and I will admit, it's convenient. And I will also admit, it looks darn nice when it's decorated. People don't even know it's fake. But I do. It doesn't smell like anything. I put it up with about as much enthusiasm as I would set up a garage sale, and take it back down without a pang of nostalgia. In my real tree days, I would drag the tree through the house after Christmas, leaving a trail of needles that burrowed into crevices unknown, and I would be reliving Christmas in June, when the vacuum picked up those straggling and stubborn pine needles and cast their scent out with its exhaust.

Sandlewood takes me to a time in my childhood when we had an Indian visitor, Kanwarjit Singh Dinghra (we said K.D. Singh), and he gave me a little sandlewood figurine of a snake charmer; lavender takes me to England — and so does diesel exhaust. I won't even tell you what takes me to the streets of Paris, but it is that smell's dubious redemption.

And skunks take me to warm weather. When the first little skunk gets hit out on the road, and expires in a cloud of atomized defenses, and my car, perhaps still maneuvering an icy stretch, passes by the scene of its demise, I get my first lingering breath of spring. I love that smell.

Skunks are hibernators. They come out in spring. And early every spring, when they are perhaps still groggy with sleep, a few will wander out into the roadway to be struck by hapless drivers. The ensuing scent is one of the surest signs of coming warm weather.

I know everyone says they hate this smell, but I have a theory: when someone hates an odor, don't they do everything they can not to smell it? When you use an out-house, for instance, you cover your mouth and nose. You rush. You avert your face.

People drive by a dead skunk, breathe in deeply, and say, "Eeeew! Skunk!" Then everyone who hasn't yet smelled it takes a good whiff and there follows an animated conversation about how disgusting that smell is.

Look, skunk spray — up close — is noxious and literally sickening, it's true. I doubt if anyone likes that smell. But I equally doubt that very many people actually hate the drive-by smell of skunk as much as they profess.

Go ahead, breathe deep. It's a summer smell.

LETTERS

Keeping drivers ed local

TO THE EDITOR:

My name is Darrin Hawes. I am the co-owner of a driver's education company, which makes its home in the Gaylord/Grayling area. The name of this company is Northern Driving School. This company is in no way affiliated with Up North Driving School of Pellston.

Northern Driving School is committed to providing an excellent educational experience to the students of northern Michigan. Northern Driving School's commitment to excellence is exemplified in its policy of only hiring certified, public school teachers—people who have made a lifetime commitment to young people.

A concern I have is the way the Boyne Falls/Boyne City area has been treated by a downstate company. Last year this company charged students $280 for Segment I driver's education. This was occurring while the same company was charging $199 for the same course in Gaylord. This year the company is again offering the class for $199 in Gaylord, but is charging the students of your community $229 — only because they were forced to try to match our company's price.

Knowing this, I contacted school officials from both communities to make them aware of the fact that we were willing to provide this service for $230. The Boyne Falls School agreed to allow us to teach within their facilities.

However, when I approached the Boyne City High School principal, our company was denied the opportunity to rent space in the school for the purpose of providing driver's education to students. Instead, the downstate company was allowed back into the school, even though they had taken advantage of the parents and students of Boyne City a year earlier.

Although the downstate company did come in $1 cheaper than our company's bid, I would have to ask your community, "Why couldn't this company provide the service last year, when gas prices and insurance rates were lower, at the rates they are charging this year?" The parents of last year's students paid over $50 more for the same service, which is provided this year — by the same company. Should the company, from down state, give the students a refund? Should this company have been allowed back into the district's buildings, when the school administration was made aware of this? I know that I would have a hard time explaining this situation to the parents who paid so much last year.

I contacted the superintendent for Boyne City Schools this spring with these concerns. Unfortunately, I never did receive a response to the letter I wrote. If someone takes the time to write and sign a letter, it needs to be addressed in some manner.

I need to add one last comment here. Since Up North Driving School (of Pellston) is no longer teaching in your community, Northern Driving School is the only northern Michigan-owned driver's education company, which instructs in your community. Do you really want to see your hardearned dollars go downstate to a person who only cares about your money and not your students? I think not.

History of Flag Day

TO THE EDITOR:

The idea of an annual day specifically celebrating the flag is believed to have first originated in 1885 when B.J. Cigrand, a schoolteacher, arranged for the pupils in the Fredonia, Wis., public school to observe June 14 (the 108th anniversary of the official adoption of the Stars and Stripes) as "Flag Birthday." In 1894, the governor of New York directed that on June 14th the flag be displayed on all public buildings and on June 14, 1894, the first general public school children's celebration of Flag Day in Chicago was held with more than 300,000 children participating.

Inspired by these three decades of state and local celebrations, Flag Day — the anniversary of the Flag Resolution of 1777 — was officially established by the proclamation of President Woodrow Wilson on May 30, 1916. While Flag Day was celebrated for years after Wilson's proclamation, it was not until August 3, 1949, that President Truman signed an act of congress designating June 14th of each year as National Flag Day.

By a joint resolution on June 9, 1966, the Congress requested the president to issue annually a proclamation designating the week in which June 14 occurs as National Flag Week and calling upon citizens of the United States to display the flag during that week. Mr. Francis Bellamy, an ordained minister of Rome, New York, is credited with the authorship of the original pledge and in material which he nationally circulated, he wrote, "Let the Flag float over every school-house in the land and the exercise be such as shall impress upon our youth the patriotic duty of citizenship." He also included the original 23 words of the pledge which he had developed. "I pledge allegiance to my Flag and the Republic for which it stands, one nation indivisible, with liberty and justice for all." Thus it was that on Columbus Day, October 12, 1892, the Pledge of Allegiance was repeated by more than 12 million public school children in every state in the union. In 1923, the words "the Flag of the United States" were substituted for "my Flag." In 1924, "of America" were added. On Flag Day 1954, the words "under God" became a part of the Pledge. Thus the 23 words have become 31 words. The idea of the annual pause for the Pledge of Allegiance originated in 1980 and on June 20, 1985, the 99th Congress passed and President Reagan signed Public Law 99-54 recognizing the pause for the Pledge of Allegiance as part of National Flag Day activities. The effect of this simple ceremony, which transcends age, race, religion, national origin, political and geographic differences, is a stimulating patriotic experience at home and a sign of unity abroad.

June 14, at 7 p.m., we showed our colors and joined our countrymen in reciting the Pledge of Allegiance to our flag. That day, and this, may God bless America."

The 'ideal' American woman

I have never looked like the "ideal American woman." You know the drill: tall, long hair, so skinny you can see her back bone through her bellybutton. I could keep going, but you get the idea. Nope, I look nothing like that. I'm short; 4'10" according to my doctor, but I don't believe him. I'm 4'11.5" I swear! I also have short hair, obviously, and you definitely can't see my backbone through my bellybutton — in fact, I'm not sure you can see it through my back, either. The point is, I will never look like that. I can't. It's a physical impossibility. However, it never ceases to amaze me how much time I spend thinking about it. How much time I waste worrying about something I have no control over. Every time I walk by a magazine stand at the supermarket, or watch television, that image is emblazoned on my mind, along with the knowledge that I just don't measure up. The power that this ideal has over me completely defies logic.

CAN YOU REPEAT THAT?

Hadassah Versnick

First of all, like I said, I am, and always will be, vertically challenged. I can't change that. Therefore, the only thing obsessing about something that is beyond my power is going to do for me is give me an ulcer. Now, doesn't that sound like fun?

Secondly, despite overwhelming positive reactions to my appearance, I still maintain this image of myself as being, to be blunt, fat. Now, this completely baffles a particular friend of mine. His is possibly one of the sweetest guys I have ever known, and is absolutely convinced that I am unbelievably gorgeous. When he tells me this, and I dispute it, we usually end up discussing it for two hours and since neither of us will back down, end up exactly where we started. I can't count the number of times I've been over this with him. I can't describe the strength of his conviction that I'm gorgeous. Yet I still don't quite believe him. And even more baffling (?) is the fact that though he is probably the most vehement about it, he's certainly not the only one to have ever told me so. Yet I still don't believe.

Thirdly, I don't even think that the "American ideal" is all that ideal. I see women who are so thin that they are essentially skin and bones and I think, why? why is that considered beautiful? I don't think it's attractive, and I really don't know many people who do. Why would one want to look like a walking coat hanger? But I do.

Fourth, I read once that super-models are freaks of nature, and it's true. At any given time, there are only about 25 super-models in the entire world. That's because there are only 25 people in the world that actually look like that. Now, if it is only possible for 25 people out of the 6+ billion people living on earth to be that thin, why are all the rest of us aspiring to it?

The truth is, we aspire to it because we're trained to. That's all we see in the media, and all we hear about beauty. The reason the ideal is placed so high is that it keeps people striving. It keeps them buying exercise equipment, and hair-care products, and diet pills. So, as of this moment, I am deciding to reject the "American ideal." I'm fine the way I am. I don't need to lose 20 pounds. I don't need to grow four more feet. I'm all I need to be.

And now for your weekly self-defense tip: when leaving work or wherever you are at night, call ahead to where you are going. If you leave your office at 9 p.m., and are going straight home, call home to let someone know what the plan is. Tell them how long you think the trip will take. That way, if it was supposed to take you 20 minutes to drive home, and you're not there after an hour, someone can begin looking for you right away.

Local artist opens gallery; creates East Jordan poster

Kelly Britt has been painting for a number of years, but when she and her husband, Geoff, bought Swan Valley Marina five years ago, she agreed to put her artwork on the back burner while she worked full-time as a co-owner, occupying herself with book-keeping and the daily details of running a marina on Lake Charlevoix.

As a watercolorist, Britt had a portfolio of painting that she had completed over the years, and she continued to cherish the free time she had to devote to painting, but when Geoff put her paintings in the marina gift store and they began to sell, she realized she needed to do more.

"When a painting sold," she said, "I had nothing to replace it with."

Five years later, Britt was ready to give up her position at the marina and throw herself back into her work. The success of her paintings at the gift store encouraged her to revise the focus.

"Up until now, the marina's been my baby. It's a mom-and-pop establishment," she said. "But this October we will reach the five-year point. I have set aside my dream to paint full-time," but now she says it is time to return to her calling.

"By November, I'm painting full-time, year-round," she said. "I want to create several bodies of work so that when I enter competitions I am prepared." She hopes that by the end of 2006 she will have enough paintings "in stock" that she will be able to send some of her work to studios in other parts of the country.

Out of this dream, a gallery arose.

The Britt decided to do away with the usual gift items at the marina, and concentrate on northern Michigan artwork. Kelly has a dream that her customers will be able to purchase something that is northern Michigan to take home with them; something, she says, that they will not turn over and find "made in China" stickered to the back.

Recently, Kelly opened Whispering Wings Fine Art Gallery at Swan Valley Marina.

The location on M-66 is great, she said, and while most of her gallery customers have until recently been marina customers as well, she hopes the gallery will "catch people" as they drive by, attracting new customers who are not necessarily in need of marina services.

"I want pieces that are hand-made, unique and reminiscent of northern Michigan," she said.

Currently she is talking to other artists, potters, painters and sculptors, all local, who create works with a theme or thread of Michigan.

Kelly Britt stands outside Whispering Wings Fine Arts Gallery at the Swan Valley Marina in East Jordan with the first annual East Jordan poster. She said she was honored to be asked to paint the first poster and she wanted to make it a "knock-out."

Just in time for the opening of her gallery, Britt was able to, with the East Jordan Chamber of Commerce, unveil the first East Jordan poster, a colorful and idyllic interpretation of the south arm of Lake Charlevoix, with East Jordan nestled in its crook.

"I wanted to depict East Jordan as just this wonderful village — a beautiful little town, with the iron works as its heartbeat," she said.

It is how she views the place she and her family have come to call home, and she was pleased to be offered the opportunity to create its first annual poster.

"I had heard through the grapevine that I was being considered to paint the poster, but I was approached by Emily (Murray, owner of Murray's Bar and Grill in East Jordan)," Britt said. "They left it wide open in terms of what to paint." She had one to two weeks, she was told, to paint "whatever comes to mind."

What came to mind was a summer village scene.

The poster idea was in emulation of Charlevoix's annual city poster, always a successful fund-raiser, with the original auctioned off at the end of the year. East Jordan will follow the same pattern, and Britt's painting will be available for bid at the annual Chamber dinner sometime in early 2006.

"(East Jordan) may in the future have a competition, but I was lucky enough to be asked to do the first one," Britt said. "I wanted to make it a real knock-out."

Charlevoix teams compete in clay target competition

Two shotgun teams from Charlevoix competed over the weekend at the third annual Scholastic Clay Target Program shotgun competition held at the Detroit Sportsman's Congress in Utica.

The morning competition had the two teams on the sporting clays range. In the 12-station, 100-target course (for each shooter), the Havers 3 team, consisting of brothers Matthew and Jonathon Haver of Boyne City, and cousin Chris Haver of Clinton, took first place in the Senior Novice division, shooting 233 targets out of 300.

The second Charlevoix team, the CBCs, consisting of Josh Chingwa and Aidan Bell of Petoskey, and Steven Coen of Charlevoix, placed fifth in the Senior Novice division with a score of 197 out of 300.

Two local teams, Havers 3, above, and CBC, did well in a clay target competition in Utica, preparing them for nationals to be held in Detroit.

The afternoon's competition had both teams on the skeet fields. As with the morning's competition, each shooter had 100 targets to break and both teams did well, with the CBCs taking second place hitting 279 out of 300, and the Havers 3 taking first place hitting 283 out of 300.

Each discipline awarded

High Overall Shooter honors. Ethan Heiden from Lenawee County 4-H took top honors on the sporting clays course with 85 out of 100 targets broken.

Jonathan Haver came in second with 82 out of 100 clays broken. The top honor for skeet also went to Jonathan Haver with 98 out of 100 targets broken. The remaining team members all scored above 88 with Matthew Haver breaking 96, Chingwa breaking 94, Bell breaking 93, Coen breaking 92, and Chris Haver breaking 88.

With this strong standing, both teams are expected to do very well in the national Scholastic Clay Target Program competition to be held at the Detroit Gun Club July 23-25. Coach Paul Haver is very proud of the standing of both teams.

"This group of kids has been shooting together for a couple of years, and it was evident over the weekend that they can compete in any major competition, stay focused, and be proud of what they have accomplished individually and as a team," Haver said.

The Horton Bay General Store, looking much like it did a century ago, is getting back to its roots when it opens a postal service center here in July.

Horton Bay

And soon, they will be able to come in for a stamp, or to mail a package, or to pick up their mail.

It happened naturally. Customers would come in and ask if the store had package pickup. Package services would come in to ask directions, or to see if they could leave a customer's package at the counter. Sometimes customers would just come in to see if somebody was going to be running into Boyne to go to the post office.

Over the winter the idea of providing postal service took hold and before long it had gathered enough momentum that Bart Stupak's office was called. You don't automatically know who to call when your question is, "Can we get designation as a post office?" Stupak was helpful: eventually the right person was contacted.

"Glenda was excellent. She pointed — kicked — us in the right direction," said Mike Davis, a manager at the store. "The postal service responded in a positive manner. Individuals became very excited, and said they'd let us become a community post office. We'll be accepting mail." Davis admits they don't fully know what this new commitment will entail, but he said that Horton Bay has been supportive of the General Store, and it is their goal to provide their customers will the best service they can.

Don Black, the postmaster at Boyne City, said that there is no official name for this new service, and that the details aren't all worked out yet. While it is not yet set up, it is a realistic possibility that customers may eventually be able to get a P.O. box at the Horton Bay location. Some things will be determined when the demand is better identified. But he said people will be able to ship a package without having to drive the 10 miles to Charlevoix or Boyne City.

"Basically, you'll be able to carry in an item and ship it," Black said. "Folks up there have always been looking for that kind of identity and we haven't been able to do this until this alternative access became available."

"They are really enthusiastic. That's what's making this so easy," he added.

The Horton Bay General Store post office won't be getting a whole new zip code. Instead it will be a satellite of the Boyne City post office. But it will be one more step in the on-going effort to put the "general" back in General Store.

bezzlement took place from the end of January, 2005, through May, 2005.

Northern Preferred Title became aware of the thefts when their checks began bouncing and terminated Lockman's employment when it became obvious she had stolen the funds in question. According to Northern Preferred Title, Lockman also altered closing documents to hide her activities.

As the investigation is on-going, and Northern Preferred Title has reported much more money stolen, the total amount of stolen money will likely increase. The police are waiting for documents from additional financial institutions, which have been ordered under search warrants.

The ramifications of this embezzlement has been devastating to Northern Preferred Title and its clients. Several clients had mortgages that were not paid off when they sold their properties, and other clients have not been paid money due them for properties which they have sold. This has resulted in some properties not having a clear title, and several victims have come forward. Northern Preferred Title has been forced to close its doors because of the financial devastation inflicted upon them because of this crime, according to a press release by the Boyne City police department.

The ongoing investigation will also be focused on recovering many of the assets purchased by Lockman with embezzled funds, and returning the proceeds of the recovered property to the victim(s).

The police and prosecutor's offices are also investigating to determine if any other person(s) had knowledge of the thefts, or may have benefitted from the money taken.

Lockman, mother of three, and expecting a fourth child, had used the story that she had received a large inheritance from her parents in February to explain the amount of money she was in possession of. Lockman's parents have rebutted her claim, telling officers they did not give their daughter "any such money," according to the police department. Investigators found that Lockman had filed Chapter 13 bankruptcy in federal bankruptcy court in August, 2004.

A $5,000 bond was posted for Lockman, who is now free on that bond. She has, according to the police, retained an attorney.

A preliminary exam is scheduled for July 12, in District Court, at which time the prosecutor must prove that there was a crime committed and that there is probably cause that the defendant committed that crime. After the preliminary hearing, the case will be bound over to circuit court for pre-trial conferences and scheduling.

Northern Preferred Title is out of business, according to the Boyne City police, and its 16 employees have lost their jobs. The financial institutions involved are Bay Winds Credit Union, Bank of Northern Michigan, Fifth-Third, and Community Financial, Lewiston branch.

Reminder of emergency vehicle law

Charlevoix County sheriff George T. Lasater is educating the public about Michigan's emergency vehicle law, designed to protect the safety of men and women who risk their lives every day to protect the citizens of Michigan.

The operator of a vehicle on a roadway which has one lane of travel for each direction, shall, upon approaching a stationary emergency vehicle with its emergency lights activated, carefully move over into the oncoming traffic lane, if it is clear. If this is not possible due to opposing traffic, weather or road conditions, the operator shall slow down and pass with caution, allowing the emergency vehicle as much space as possible.

On roads with two or more lanes of travel in the same direction, the vehicle operator shall move carefully into an open lane at least one lane away from the emergency vehicle. If this is not possible, the operator shall slow down and pass with caution, allowing the emergency vehicle as much room as possible.

"The penalty for a person found responsible for violating this law is guilty of a misdemeanor," the statement said. "If injury or death is involved with the violation then it is a felony punishable by up to 15 years in prison and/or a $7,500 fine."

ganized by a group of Main Street volunteers with big ideas and promoted mostly through word-of-mouth.

"People were pleasantly surprised to run a quick errand downtown and end up spending the entire evening listening to music and visiting with friends," said Marilea Grom, one of the volunteers that helped organize the event.

This summer's event promises to be much more of the same, "except bigger and better," said Grom. Emphasis will continue to be placed on performances by local youth. The opportunity provides an excellent opportunity for kids to show off their talent and gain experience in front of a live audience.

Local businesses are getting involved as well with special promotions and give-aways. Boyne USA Resorts has donated $1,000 worth of gift certificates for Boyne Mountain and Avalanche Bay. Blue Green Vacation Club will have weekly drawings for $25 Boyne Area Gift Cards. Other businesses with weekly drawings include Country Now and Then/Up the Lazy River and Boyne Rapids Adventure Golf.

One of the major goals behind the Friday night Strolls is to improve the overall image of Boyne City as a fun place to spend quality time and gain more exposure for local businesses from potential customers.

"We want people to know that if you come to downtown Boyne City, you are going to have fun," said Kelly Larson, program manager.

Major sponsors for the event include Boyne Country Provisions, Feeny Chrysler Dodge Jeep, Crooked Tree Arts Center, North Central Michigan College, CindiFranco's Cool Stuff, Pat O'Brien & Associates, and Bluegreen Vacation Club.

The Boyne City Main Street program is an entirely grassroots, volunteer-driven program dedicated towards the historic preservation and economic development of Boyne City's downtown. The program follows the national "Main Street Four-Point Approach" to revitalization developed by the National Trust for Historic Preservation. Boyne City was one of the first four communities selected in the state to become a Michigan Main Street community by the Michigan Economic Development Corporation.

Logan

He's a shy kid, doesn't do much talking, and can't think of a hero, except Tiger Woods is his favorite golfer and his dad, Arnold Smith, is his favorite person to golf with.

And he's been at it for awhile, too. He started golfing, by his own admission, as soon as he could walk. He wakes up in the morning ready to hit the green. Lately, now that he's six, and old enough, he takes his pullcart and golfs the course by himself, coming in long enough to ask if he can go again.

He used to chip the ball to his dad, who waited with a baseball glove and tossed it back to hit again. Logan's favorite thing is chipping.

He was three when he first cleared the pond with a golf ball; probably 50 yards, his dad estimates. By the time Logan was four, Arnold and his wife Angela were pretty sure they had a talented golfer in the making.

At home, where his folks run the Mallard Golf Course, he plays on a 3,000 yard course, where he can shoot about a 54, Arnold said.

Last week's win in Lansing was his second state championship, and it leads up to his second shot at a world championship in Williamsburg, Va. Last year there were 28 countries represented in the 680 golfers who played at the world championships; 60 players in Logan's age group. He placed 35th. No one was disappointed.

Arnold and Angela agree that the state championship is a little nerve-wracking. If he wins that, he goes to the world championships — if he doesn't, he's just goes home. While this is also true at the world level, it's, well, the world

As long as he stays excited about it. He's our driving force. It's up to him. As long as he wants to play, we'll take him wherever he wants to go.

— Arnold Smith
Logan's father

level. There simply isn't the same kind of expectation, or pressure.

At the hotel room last week, before the state tournament, Logan told his mother he was taking her to Virginia. How? she asked.

"I am going to win, Mom," said Logan, but pressed, he said he didn't know if he'd win. He likes the tournaments partly because they are quiet and he can think. He is used to golfing with the family dog, Bear Dog, for a companion, and his two-year-old sister, Lauren, providing distraction. Asked what he thinks about when he's playing, Logan answered, "Hitting it far."

The world championship is a three-day tournament, where the kids play three nine-hole rounds. The best total score of the three games wins. Logan will still play in the same age group, representing the State of Michigan.

"It's the best of the best," Arnold said. "It's like watching the pros."

Angela said the opening ceremonies impressed her, with fife and drum corps playing. "It gave me chills," she said.

The Smiths are dedicated to Logan's game, but they try to keep the pressure off. They say that they will support him as long as he is interested in playing.

"As long as he stays excited about it. He's our driving force," said Arnold. "It's up to him. As long as he wants to play, we'll take him wherever he wants to go."

In the meantime, Logan is playing in a traveling tournament started by Jeff Haven to encourage young children to get into the sport. He gets to play on a lot of nice courses and meet children his own age who golf.

Logan said that playing on unfamiliar courses is more difficult than playing at the Mallard, but Arnold said it has been good for him, helps prepare him for the state and world tournaments.

What amazes his parents, though, is how focussed the young golfer can stay.

"It's two and a half hours on the course, and they have to keep their minds on golf," Arnold said. "When a jet goes by, they can't look."

As a parent, he said, you have to keep their head in the game, keep calming them down.

But Logan, Arnold and Angela agree, is focused in most ways. He likes to listen to a book all the way through, for instance; he isn't very distractable.

"He doesn't want to be bugged," his dad said. Spending his first six years on a golf course probably has something to do with Logan's game, but probably some of that concentration and focus is just inherent. At any rate it paid off last week in Lansing, and now, true to his word, Logan's taking his mom to Virginia.

Jordan Valley Band concert

The Jordan Valley Community Band, a fall/winter ensemble that has performed music to a crowd of supporters in the area for nearly 15 years, is embarking on a new venture. Already performing in nearby towns such as Charlevoix and Harbor Springs, many of the band members keep very busy in the summer months. However, not until this summer, the summer when a newly erected bandshell in the park downtown has been christened, has the band attempted to present its own summer concert series.

The first "Concert in the Park" is scheduled for 7:30 p.m., Thursday, July 7, at the bandshell in Memorial Park. The band will rehearse at the bandshell on Thursday, June 30 at 6:30 p.m. and is looking for anyone in the area with a horn that would like to be musically active this summer. Everyone and anyone who wants to play — young and mature alike — is welcome. They simply need to show up the June 30 rehearsal. The ensemble will decide after the first concert whether there is support for additional performances this summer. Tentative dates are already penciled in for July 7, 14, 21, and 28 at 7:30 p.m.

NEIGHBORS

BY NANCY NORTUP

• LEGIONNAIRES WENT TO A STATE CONVENTION in Grand Rapids this past week. While there, they went out to the Veterans Home there and paraded for the patients. One of the patients was Russell Gilmore, Sr. The "fellas" had a great time talking with him. "And," said my respondent, "Gilmore must be very well liked in the Boyne City community!" Legionnaires attending also brought their enthusiasm back to those who didn't go to the meeting.

• THE "HALLMARK GANG," consisting of Walt Ward, Judy and Jack Gerrie, Janet Gardener, Denny Ward and Cindy Hall, traveled to Grand Rapids this past Monday, to surprise their sister Reta on her 70th birthday. And a surprise it was, as "The Gang" paraded up her street, ringing bells, blowing whistles, and singing the Happy Birthday song! They'd taken a cake too, and with much laughter of a good time, they shared cake and coffee with her, before making the trip back home.

• DO YOU KNOW ABOUT the American Legion/Kilwin's of Boyne City fudge program for this summer? It's simpler than last summer. Any customer who buys two boxes of fudge at Kilwin's gets another box free. So, they are asking the free box be designated to send to our troops. It's a great way to say "Thank You."

• RONNIE NUNN AND FAMILY of McKenzie, Tenn. plan to be here on July 5 or 6. The memorial service for her late husband, Bruce Nunn, will be at 7:30 on Thursday, July 7, at the Community of Christ Church, 777 Vogel St. here in Boyne City. Also, on July 8, sister Alma and husband, Jim Phalan will have a family gathering for their 50th Anniversary. And then the Follette's have their reunion at Whiting's Park on July 9. So she will be here for it all — they are expecting sister Judy and family in from Oregon, as well as Deb and family from Nev. It should be a fun few days for us all even though they have a memorial in the middle of it.

• ON FATHER'S DAY Oral Sutliff family and Henry Miller, former Boyne resident, traveled to Detroit via motor coach (actually three coaches), to watch the Tigers play. It was neat to see the New Comerica Park and of course watch the Tigers win in extra innings. Couldn't have asked for a better day, weather-wise — 72 degrees and sunny!

• THE DEMING CLAN held its annual family reunion on June 25, at Whiting Park. About 80 people attended, with Sharon and Howard Stewart from Kodiak, Alaska, coming the farthest to join in the fun. Everyone enjoyed the cakewalk, the auction, and of course, the little "specials" thrown in, too. Lots of good food and fellowship was the order of the day. The Cal Deming family hosted this year's reunion. A moment of silence was held in loving memory of Ronnie Deming, who passed away this past year.

Boating Safety classes starting in June

The Charlevoix County Sheriff's office will be offering boating safety classes at the following dates and times. July 12, 4 p.m. at Boyne City Middle School; July 19, 4 p.m. at East Jordan District Library; July 30, 9 a.m. at Charlevoix Middle School, and August 6, 9 a.m. at Walloon Lake Country Club (Grandma's).

There will be a proctored exam at 10 a.m. on Friday, June 17 at the Charlevoix city park pavilion for those who have an on-line boating safety certificate.

Minimum age for the classes is 12 years. Students should bring date of birth information with them for registration purposes. This course is mandatory for some ages to engage in certain boating activities. For more information, call the Sheriff's office at (231) 547-4461, ext. 320.

BAG offers summer classes

Boyne Area Gymnastics is offering many different classes this summer. They include: martial arts, step aro-bics, yoga, dance, cheer tumbling and gymnastics classes for all ages and ability levels. For more information, call Kari Streelman at (231) 582-9787.

Symphony on the Green

The seventh annual "Symphony on the Green" will present the Midland Symphony Orchestra at the Charlevoix Country Club on Friday, July 8, beginning at 6:30 p.m. when the grounds open. The concert will begin at 8 p.m. Attendees may bring lawn chairs or blankets for "greens" seating for $25 per person, may purchase tickets for seating under the tent for $50, or purchase Patron tickets for $200. Patron tickets include complimentary wine and a cash bar before the event, a full sitdown dinner, the concert and preferred seating under the tent. Patron ticket holders also receive a $120 tax deduction. Food and beverage service will be available for all ticket holders.

The physical therapy department of Charlevoix Area Hospital will be a major recipient of funds this year from the Charlevoix Area Hospital Foundation's "Symphony on the Green."

For tickets or more information about this annual event, call (231) 547-8685.

VETERAN OF THE MONTH

Veteran of the Month for May is Milan Leroy Hardy. Born on April 28, 1915, in Boyne City, Hardy left school in 1928 to work on the family dairy farm. On June 26, 1937, he married Betty Elaine Shearer in Boyne City. On March 1, 1945, Hardy was inducted into the Army, entering into active service in Chicago, Ill. and received basic training at Fort McCullen, Ala. He was transferred to Camp Stoneman, Calif. and was assigned to an ordnance company. On July 19, 1946, Hardy was promoted to Private First Class and was honorably discharged on July 21, 1946, at the separation center, Fort Sheridan, Ill. He received the following decorations and citations: The American Theater Medal, the Victory Medal and the Good Conduct Medal.

Following his military service, Hardy returned to the family farm and went to work for Consumers Power Company becoming a Class A lineman.

When Hardy retired, he enjoyed hunting, fishing and spending time with his family. He answered the final call on July 6, 1983 and is being honored by his children Jerry, Randy, Marilyn, and his sister Evelyn Gould.

Milan Leroy Hardy

The Veteran of the Month program is available for any deceased veteran who served honorably in the United States military. To honor a veteran, call the program chairman, Jerry Evans, at (231) 588-6067 or on Tuesdays call (231) 582-7811 between 4-6 p.m.

The ceremony may be witnessed on the first Thursday of each month in front of the American Legion post located on the corner of Lake and Main in Boyne City, at 6:15 p.m.

Boyne City parade honors troops

All Boyne Area active military personnel (and those recently inactive — which means your uniform still fits you!) are asked to form beside the Dilworth Hotel at 9:30 a.m. on the morning of the 4th to march as a group, behind the color guard to the reviewing stand. UOD will be your choice — but please wear all your ribbons, stripes and medals. After the singing of the national anthem, the announcer, Tom Clemens, will introduce each of you and thank you for your service to our country. This is the official "welcome home" event for all our troops.

In other news... The American Legion and Kilwin's of Boyne Treats for Troops program is well underway. People who buy two boxes of fudge get one free at Kilwin's. Customers are asked to designate the free box for our troops. Previously, two boxes each were mailed to SSgt. Gene Mont, Sgt. Scott Leist, SSgt. "Rusty" Gilmore and CWO2 Kevin Crandell. This week two boxes of fudge will be in a welcome home packet for SRA Shawn Weisler who will be on leave until July 5. Thanks to many who signed "Anonymous" and to Janet and Sarah Stahl for this week's purchases. The feedback from those who have received their fudge again this year is awesome — they really appreciate it. Thanks to all who support our troops.

CRAZY SALLY

A SERIOUS CLOWN

Sally Pasque of Boyne City remembers what it was like when her own children were small, and the generosity of their school was what kept them in boots during the winter. Neither she nor her children or grandchildren fret too much about having warm clothes or enough food on the table now, but having lived through it makes all the difference for some people.

So when Pasque was working at the high school one day and saw a student who needed shoes, it didn't just tug at her heartstrings — it galvanized her into action.

Pasque — who doesn't mind her nickname, Crazy Sally — has been putting on road rallies for her family and friends for years, and she has considerable experience in fund-raising and helping with benefits for other people, so her reaction was a natural response to the needs she saw.

"I woke up one morning and God put in my head I had to help," she said. "I thought I could give something back."

When Pasque lived in Madison Heights, she worked at Madison Community Hospital, and did a lot of fund-raisers there, though her initial role was modest enough.

"I started being a driver, bringing people to rehab," she said. But there was an in-hospital fund-raiser, and Pasque lent a hand by selling her services to deliver "Granny Grams." It was a success, and Granny Grams became a staple fund-raiser — and Pasque became not just the bearer of grams, but a fund-raising dynamo.

So this time around, acting independently, the first thing Pasque did was make it legal with county, state and federal governments. She has started a 501(c)(3), tax-exempt charity organization which she calls Compassionate Heart.

Compassionate Heart will provide services in a variety of ways. She will be available to doctors, schools, churches and dentists. If, for instance, a youngster needs dental work that his or her family is unable to afford, the dentist may call Compassionate Heart and request assistance to cover the costs.

Pasque plans to do two unique fund-raisers a year — one in the summer, one in the fall. The money raised will be kept in escrow until a need arises, where it can be immediately available. Additionally, Pasque has a few people who are willing to provide money on an occasional case-by-case basis, but Pasque hopes that she will be able to raise enough to avoid asking individual donors for money.

Her first benefit will take place on Friday, July 8, at the Knights of Columbus Hall, and will fit in with the Stroll the Streets event going on downtown.

Teams of four can purchase tickets at $20 each person, and assemble in costume at the K of C hall at 6:30 p.m., where there will be food and door prizes. At 7:30 the clown teams will leave the K of C to go downtown for a clown search.

In the meantime, Scott MacKenzie at the Boyne Area Chamber of Commerce, will have been conducting a clown contest for the Friday night Stroll the Street crowd, who are encouraged to dress up as decoy clowns. (The Chamber will be giving out prizes for its top three clown costumes as well.)

In the tradition of Crazy Sally's road rallies, the contestant teams must find ten specific clowns from among the decoys, and get back to the K of C as quickly as possible.

There will be quirks and kinks thrown in along the way, of course.

"It will be a crazy night — we're going to have fun," Pasque said.

Teams are restricted to adults, as there will be a cash bar at the K of C after the search. Prizes will be awarded the top two clowns, and there will be a 50/50 drawing. After 9:30 p.m., the doors will be open to the public, with a $5 cover charge.

Mostly, though, it's about making memories while helping someone. Pasque said that 100 percent of the proceeds will go to help people in need.

Volunteers are needed, before and during the event, and people not wishing to form a team are encouraged to clown around at the Stroll the Streets event.

Tickets are available at Boyne Country Books. For more information, or to donate or volunteer, call Sally Pasque at (231) 582-0154.

Horton Bay prepares for commencement

Horton Bay seems to possess a community-wide sense of humor that borders on the irreverent — when it doesn't cross right on over. It's humor may be grounded in something quite serious, however: a basic philosophy that the celebration of the freedom of the nation should not be defined by commercialism and politics.

"No commercial entries is what distinguishes this parade," said John Rohe, spokesperson for the annual Horton Bay Fourth of July event. "We don't want to celebrate this nation's birth with a string of billboards that teach us how to be better consumers."

Rohe thinks the Horton Bay parade is rather a demonstration of the resourcefulness and ingenuity of its participants, though he admits finding those participants might be a little more difficult under the circumstances.

"We welcome entries, (but) without commercial incentives, we have to shake the bushes a little harder," he said, estimating that the current roster of entrants is somewhere under a million.

The Horton Bay Parade also distinguishes itself with an unusual theme. This year's parade will celebrate the "Commencement Ceremony of L'Universite de Bay Horton," an auspicious institution of higher learning fondly abbreviated to UdBH, or "Uh-Dah-Bah." Virtually anyone can receive a diploma, and the parade will reflect the general level of that accomplishment.

As in previous years, the Horton Bay parade will be brought up by the singing of the Fat Lady, which, as we all know, indicates the end of something. This year it is the end, not just of the parade, but of this particular Fat Lady's career.

A spokesperson for the Fat Lady, Horton Bay's G.T. Long, said that she was unavailable for comment, as she is currently working at finding a replacement. Five Fat Ladies-in-training are waking at 5 a.m. for Tai Chi (difficult, Long said, due to their weight), before they work on marching steps and child/dog maneuvers.

When questioned about the vocal deficiency of previous Fat Ladies, Long bristled, stating that for the last five years the Fat Lady has been under strict contract with Horton Bay in order to prevent her going on the opera circuit. He cited unmatched vocal skills and passionate lyrics as the defining characteristics of the Fat Lady.

A new Fat Lady will be chosen this year and her installation with the Horton Bay parade will be recognized with a puff of white smoke.

"This represents five or six thousand years of Fat Lady tradition," Long said. "Even the Catholic church has borrowed this tradition." He added that it has not been seen in the modern era in Horton Bay because there has been no need to choose a new Fat Lady for some years.

The parade will begin promptly at 1 p.m. on the Fourth, rain or shine, "sleet, pestilence, famine ... everyday household pests" notwithstanding.

Entrants are encouraged to arrive early, and submit entry applications no later than July 1.

Boyne Chamber seeking host families

The Boyne Area Chamber is looking for host families for this year's international visitors from Gravelines, France.

Through the Blue Lake International Exchange program, a 20-member big swing band will be visiting Boyne, arriving Friday, July 8, and departing Monday, July 11. Band members range in age from 16 - 28; they will perform Friday evening, 6:30 p.m., at Stroll the Streets of Boyne, then Saturday night at 7:30 p.m. at the Boyne City High School auditorium.

Host families, their guests, and the community are all invited to a Boyne City-style potluck on Sunday at 1 p.m. at Veterans Memorial Park.

Host families are needed to house and transport our guests and to help show Boyne City's famous hospitality.

For more information or to host one of our international visitors, call the Chamber at (231) 582-6222.

Public Notice?

Without it in your newspaper, you're left guessing what the government's doing in your community.

Public notice is the people's right to know the issues that affect them directly, and people know the place to find public and legal notices is in the newspaper. What you're holding right now is a historical document, printed and published with a date on every page. Public notices have been posted here since the days of colonial America. In our democratic society your newspaper fulfills an essential role in serving your right to know. After all, it shouldn't be your responsibility to know how to look, where to look, or when to look, let alone to know what you're looking for to be informed. Why guess? That is why you have, and read, your newspaper... where your right to know is already being served.

Public Notices in Newspapers.
Your Right to Know, Delivered Right to Your Door.

20th Annual Jordan Valley Freedom Festival TRIATHLON

With a record-breaking 178 registered for the 20th Jordan Valley Freedom Festival Triathlon, and about 168 actual participants, this year's event was JVF's best yet. Gar Atchison placed first overall in the men's division, while Jamie Strauch finished first overall in the women's. Contestants ranged in age from 15 to 76 — and the 76-year-old loped across the finish line just four places behind a 19-year-old athlete! Triathletes came from as far away as Texas and Arizona to compete in the event. The race generally coincides with the Freedom Festival, but with that event moved up a week, the athletes and their fans had the town to themselves.
